MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa, June 2.—A despatch to a local newspaper from the scene of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific wreck at Packard, Iowa, states that possibly a score of passengers lost their lives when the passenger train plunged through the bridge. It was stated that the dead will total at least 15.

PACKARD, Ia., June 2.—Two women were killed, and ten persons were injured as the result of the collapse of the bridge over Goldwater creek near here, early today, under the weight of the north bound passenger train No. 19 on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad. In addition to the two dead, seven persons are missing and are believed to be dead either by drowning or as the result of their injuries.

PREPAREDNESS PARADE

Big Demonstration Planned For Evening of Flag Day, June 14—Mayor O'Donnell's Statement

Mayor O'Donnell today made the following statement in relation to the proposed Preparedness demonstration to be held in this city:

"It has been decided to have Lowell's Preparedness demonstration take place on the evening of Flag day, Wednesday, June 14, and we are hereby invited to the local Spanish War Veterans for the part of the entire parade. Flag day, suggestion as to the date. Flag day, usually is observed by the Spanish War Veterans, the Elks, and other organizations throughout the country, and the former have suggested that it would be fitting to close the observance of the national day of Old Glory with a grand patriotic demonstration on the part of the entire public.

"We feel confident that the general public will take kindly to the idea of combining the celebration of the birthday of the flag with a grand demonstration by the people of their love of country and flag, and their determination to defend and protect both, whenever and in whatever capacity, they may be called upon. Surely, the occasion is appropriate to the day.

"From the date upon which the proposition to hold a preparedness demonstration in Lowell was first made public to the present, we have received many assurances of hearty co-operation from the different military, semi-military, social and fraternal organizations, and are confident that notwithstanding the short time to elapse prior to the date of the event, the people of Lowell will turn out in one of the grandest parades ever witnessed in this city.

"In placing the time for holding the demonstration at 5 o'clock at night, we have been actuated by a desire to give the greatest number of people accommodation. In the recent demonstration in Boston general business was interrupted by the stores closing, while thousands of working people sacrificed a day's pay in order to participate in it. While we know that the people of Lowell would gladly make similar sacrifices, it called upon to do so, we believe it to be better for all concerned to have the demonstration take place after the business of the day has been suspended. Hence, the parade will take place on

FIVE BIG BRITISH WARSHIPS DESTROYED

According to Berlin the British Lost One of Their Latest Dreadnoughts, Two Battle Cruisers, Two Armored Cruisers and Numerous Smaller Craft While a Large Number of British Battleships Were Damaged—Germans Admit Loss of One Battleship and Small Cruiser

German and British battle fleets clashed in a great engagement. According to Berlin the sea fight resulted disastrously for the British who lost one of their latest dreadnoughts, two battle cruisers, two armored cruisers and numerous smaller craft while a large number of British battleships were damaged. The Germans admit the loss of one battleship and a small cruiser, while the fate of one cruiser and of some torpedo boats is unknown.

The British dreadnought sunk was the Warspite of the Queen Elizabeth class, a 27,000 ton vessel. The battle cruisers were the Queen Mary and Indefatigable. The British battleship Marlborough is reported to have been hit by a torpedo.

German warships rescued parts of the crews of the sunken British sea fighters. It is declared that only two of the crew of the battle cruiser Indefatigable were saved.

The engagement took place during the afternoon of May 31 and continued.

TRAIN BLOWN FROM TRACK

Fast Mail Train Wrecked by Tornado Near Saunemin, Ill.—18 Injured—One May Die

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., June 2.—A tornado blew the Chicago-St. Louis fast mail train No. 17, on the Wabash railroad, from the tracks near Saunemin, Ill., early today injuring 18 persons, some probably fatally. The accident occurred in a deep cut, which kept the cars from overturning and probably prevented heavy loss of life.

The combination baggage and smoking car and four coaches were blown from the track. A Pullman sleeper crashed through the smoking car, tearing it to pieces. It was in the smoking car that most of the casualties occurred.

School Confers Degrees on Eight Four Year Students—Lt. Gov. Coolidge's Address—Pres. Cumnock Speaks—The Theses of Students

The commencement exercises of the day class of the Lowell Textile School were held this afternoon in Southwick hall. The speaker of the occasion was Lt. Gov. Calvin Coolidge. The usual inspection of the school was made in the early afternoon. The inspection included not only the school, but the various articles manufactured by the students and a great many Lowell people who never visited the school before were much interested. The exhibition of the work done by the school was a revelation to them. The school is steadily advancing in the standard and character of its work as well as the standard for admission to its day classes, and the state legislature has so appreciated this fact as to grant the school the power to confer degrees of bachelor of textile engineering (B.T.E.) and bachelor of textile dyeing (B.T.D.) upon those students who satisfactorily complete one of the prescribed four-year courses. The growth of the school has been constant. It opened in February, 1917, with 31 day and 110 evening pupils and January 1, 1915, showed

TRADING STAMPS

STATE HOUSE, Boston, June 2.—The bill prohibiting the use of trading stamps was defeated in the house this noon when that branch by a vote of 57 to 143 failed to pass the bill over Gov. McCall's veto.

In his veto message the governor said he was sorry that he felt obliged to withhold his approval but in view of so many decisions of the supreme court he was forced to believe that the passage of the bill would be a violation of the liberties guaranteed by the bill of rights.

NEWS OF THE LEGISLATURE

Governor Halts Prorogation— Message Blocks Legislators— Trading Stamps Measure

BOSTON, June 2.—A special message from Gov. McCall to the state senate at 10:30 last evening prevented the prorogation of the Massachusetts legislature, which shortly afterward adjourned at 11 o'clock this morning.

The governor was not satisfied with the action of the senate in referring the trading stamp bill to the so-called Davis bill to transfer to the industrial accident board certain powers regarding adequate rates of workmen's compensation insurance.

The result was that His Excellency would not allow the general court to make the "betwixt" it had so carefully planned, mock session and all.

The special message was not alone the reason for the governor's decision not to allow prorogation. The "trading stamp" bill was a matter which caused him to devote several hours to hearing interested parties on both sides. Some of the most prominent attorneys in the state were included in the delegations that called upon him late in the afternoon and came back in the evening at his request. The governor had not cast on the bill when he left for his home.

Other bills not signed by the governor when the prorogation program was abandoned included the measure to provide that at least one member of the minimum wage commission shall be a woman and also the bill to change the distribution of the corporate franchise tax measure assessed on public service corporations.

Governor's Special Message

In his special message the governor said: "I have already called the attention of the members of the general court in two messages to what I consider an imperative demand for legislation at this session.

"I can add nothing to what I said in my message to the honorable senate and house of representatives on April 21 relative to the necessity of transferring to the board of labor and industries and the industrial accident board, acting as a joint board charged with the duty of bringing about a reduction in the number of injuries to workers and of occupational diseases.

"I again recommend that an act be passed transferring the powers and duties of this joint board to either the industrial accident board or the board of labor and industries in order to make less the frightful toll in human life and in the efficiency of workers.

"I also again recommend that any doubt as to the application to the workmen's compensation act of section 7 of chapter 207 of the acts of 1915, to which I referred in my message of April 21 last, be removed by the passage of a suitable act.

"Further in view of the extreme importance as well as difficulty of the subject of rate making under the workmen's compensation insurance act and the failure of the legislature to pass any new law this year relating thereto, I recommend that a recess committee be created, thoroughly to investigate and study the people of proper rate making and report to the next general court suitable recommendations for legislation upon the subject."

The message was referred to the joint committee on judiciary, which will meet prior to this morning's session.

Senate Has Much Work

When the senate came in yesterday morning, it had before it a large number of matters which the house had stayed up late Wednesday in order to clean up. This resulted in much free time for the lower branch and a lot of work in the upper.

By early evening, however, about everything had been disposed of one way or another in the passage back and forth.

The bill to appropriate $25,000 for the purchase of homes for citizens by the homestead commission has apparently been lost between the two branches. The senate refused to accept the report of its conference committee and no second conference committee was appointed.

The bill to increase the powers and jurisdiction of the civil service commission landed safely in the governor's office in the form in which it had left the house. There was a bitter fight in the senate, which tried to kill it, but finally allowed it to be enacted through the efforts of Pres. Wells, after accepting the report of the committee on conference.

The measure permits Gov. McCall to accomplish some of the improvements of the civil service which he outlined in his inaugural address.

The bill has been chopped and hacked, but there still remains the "efficiency" provision which provides that any official, except policeman and fireman, who is not doing his work satisfactorily may be the subject of an investigation by the civil service commission or by the mayor or selectmen on their own initiative or at the suggestion of the civil service commission.

The much discussed "Tour Workers' bill to provide three eight-hour shifts for tour workers in paper mills, on which Gov. McCall had urged action after the matter had lain on the table in the senate for weeks, was finally disposed of, but not exactly as the governor had suggested. Instead the general subject was included in a resolve for a recess commission to study social insurance by the state.

The bill for a street railway parallel to the Cape Cod canal was debated at length in the house and finally referred to the next legislature by a large majority on a voice vote.

Signs Many Bills

The governor signed the $5,000,000 state tax bill just before he left the state house.

Bills signed by the governor during the day included the following:

To authorize the Central Vermont Railway company to acquire any or all of the shares of the capital stock of the Southern New England railroad corporation.

To abolish the state board of insanity and establish the Massachusetts commission on mental diseases.

To abolish the commission on economy and efficiency and to establish the office of supervisor of administration.

To allow cities and towns to license "jitneys" or cabs.

To abolish the board of harbor and land commissioners and the directors of the port of Boston and to establish the Massachusetts commission on waterways and public lands.

To make more severe the penalties for the reckless driving of automobiles.

PLAINS OF VICENZA

HARVESTING "GRAPES OF WRATH" INSTEAD OF THE PRODUCT OF THE ITALIAN VINE

WASHINGTON, D. C. June 2.—If the present offensive of the Austrian forces on the Italian front develops in accordance with the predictions of military critics, the fertile plains of Vicenza, 20 miles south of Piazza, where the Tyrolean border has been crossed, will soon be harvesting its "grapes of wrath" instead of the product of the Italian vine for which this section is famous. The National Geographic society's war geography bulletin, issued today from its Washington headquarters, describes this area of hostilities.

"Closely massed on both banks of the small Bacchiglione river, Vicenza, with an urban population of 35,000, has been an important town of northern Italy since the early Roman days, when it was known as Vicetia," says the bulletin. "It has not played a thrilling role in Italian history, however, but is noted rather for its architectural splendor than for its achievement in arms.

"The surrounding plain, whose luxuriant mulberry trees, with their armies of silk worms, so soon may be supplanted by the cypress fronds of sorrow over countless soldiers' graves, extends to the north through Thiene and Schio, two manufacturing towns in the Leogra valley, and to the east as far as Venice, 40 miles distant. Sixteen miles to the west, beyond the Berici mountains, lies Verona, with its many Shakespearean associations. Beautiful villas and blossoming fields are a feature of this landscape now overcast with the shadow of invading Austrians.

"Vicenza's share in the history-making of the early middle ages was as a capital of Lombard duchy. It was one of the cities which formed the Lombard league in the 12th century, opposing Frederick Barbarossa during the several campaigns whereby he attempted to re-establish the western empire on a Charlemagne scale. In 1236 the city was stormed and pillaged by the Sicilian emperor, Frederick II, a catastrophe which the inhabitants were able to bear with more equanimity after this ruler's overwhelming defeat before the walls of Parma, when his imperial crown was placed in mockery on the head of a hunch-back beggar who was given a triumphal entry into the victorious town. Early in the 14th century Vicenza asserted and secured its independence from Padua, but a hundred years later it came under the extensive sway of Venice.

"The most distinguished name in Vicenza's hall of fame is that of one of the greatest architects of the Italian renaissance, Andrea Palladio, who broke away from the excessive, ornate style of his contemporaries and turned, perhaps too reverently, to the simple, stately standards of ancient Rome. His handiwork is pre-eminently dominant in his birthplace, so much so in fact that a famous American novelist has complained that the cold hand of that friend of virtuous poverty in architecture lies heavily upon his native city. One of the most interesting structures designed by him is the immense Olimpico theatre, modelled after the ancient theatres and dedicated in 1584.

"Another great artist of Vicenza was the preocious peasant boy Mantegna, who left his flock of sheep at the age of 11 in order to become a great painter under the patronage of the unique Squarcione, a tailor famous both as art connoisseur and teacher. The stiffness of Mantegna's draperies is said to be accounted for by his custom of drawing from models clad in paper or in gummed fabrics. As an engraver Mantegna's fame is assured by his plate entitled "Entombment," said to have had a greater influence on art than any other ever executed, for its composition was adopted by Raphael, Holbein and Durer."

WANT STANDARD BARREL

Line Dealers Not Helped by Tuttle Bill to Pleas Made by Massachusetts Man to Congress

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Arguments in favor of a bill to establish a standard lime barrel of 250 pounds net for a large barrel, and 150 pounds for a small barrel, were presented to the house committee on coinage, weights and measures today by Representative Treadway and David Follett of Adams.

At present, it was explained, dealers

buying presumably 200 pounds of lime were likely to get a barrel ranging anywhere from 150 to 210 pounds, with the general run below 200. This situation will be changed on July 1, when the Tuttle bill, passed by the last congress for a standard barrel, will become effective, but it was argued that this prospective barrel is designed chiefly for fruit and will not help the lime dealers.

ROOSEVELT ON TARIFF

Says Protection Needed By Industries After War is Over in Address at Newark, N. J.

NEWARK, N. J., June 2.—Returning from his middle western trip, Colonel Roosevelt stopped here last night, on his way to his home at Oyster Bay, to deliver an address at the industrial exposition held in connection with the celebration of the 250th anniversary of the founding of New York.

Before he entered the Exposition building, Colonel Roosevelt addressed briefly a company of New Jersey National Guardsmen.

"I do not believe," he said, "in weak words or weak deeds. I don't believe in 'letting George do it.' But I do believe in preparedness. I am glad to meet you men who represent preparedness."

"I do not believe in the kind of preparedness where the patriotic employer tells his employees to do it. I believe the employer and the employee should sleep in the same dog tent if we are to have effective preparedness."

In his formal address in the armory Colonel Roosevelt spoke at some length upon the tariff question. He declared a protective tariff is the barrier behind which American industry can be developed in safety and, asserted that unless such a tariff is created the United States will face economic disaster after the close of the European war.

"After this war," the former president said, "we shall face a Europe which has cast off the shackles of the past, and which industrially will be as aggressive as any military power has ever been in a military sense. It is time for this great country of ours to be unified in its Americanism. One phase of that Americanism must be the Americanism of our industries. With that end in view it is an absolute necessity that there shall be protection; that we shall have a protective tariff administered as I have on other occasions described."

ROOSEVELT AT NEWARK

Declares Protective Tariff is Barrier Behind Which American Industries Can Be Developed in Safety

NEWARK, N. J., June 2.—The protective tariff is the barrier behind which American industries can be developed in safety, and unless such a tariff is created the United States will face the greatest economic disaster after the close of the European war.

Theodore Roosevelt declared in an address here last night at the industrial exposition held to commemorate the 250th anniversary of the founding of New York.

"After this war," the former president said, "we shall face a Europe which has cast off the shackles of the past, and which industrially will be as aggressive as any military power has ever been in a military sense."

"It is time for this great country of ours to be unified in its Americanism. One phase of that Americanism must be the Americanism of our industries. With that end in view it is an absolute necessity that there shall be protection; that we shall have a protective tariff administered as I have on other occasions described."

"This legislation ought to embody the principle of reciprocity which years ago was advocated by Blaine and McKinley, who were then ahead of their time."

Merely the Beginning

"But while such a tariff is essential to our permanent well-being, and while if there is not such a tariff, we shall face the gravest economic disaster after the close of the war, we cannot afford to forget that it is merely the beginning of securing for our industries the efficiency and the justice which are indispensable."

"The protective tariff is the barrier behind which our industries can be developed in safety. But it remains for us to see that they are thus developed with the highest efficiency and in nationalized fashion for the good of us all."

"We must in every way encourage industry. We must recognize in the fullest and frankest manner the great services of those exceptionally able men without whose leadership there is no progress in industry. At the same time, we must recognize that together with the exceptional rewards rightly due for exceptional service there must be a sincere and common sense attempt to secure the passing around of the prosperity, a reasonably just division of the rewards of prosperity. Upon our success in these two lines of endeavor depends the real greatness of our industrial and therefore of our national future."

"It is for the great leaders of industry, and for the men of this type who have organized this extraordinary exposition, to see that our course in these matters is shaped with such good humored sanity and at the same time such appreciation of high ideals and such perseverance in following them that we shall avoid the twin evils of disaster. We must steer between the two extremes of the hope of those who when they made this republic made it with the expectation that its citizens should be prosperous men and women, who did justice to others and demanded justice for themselves."

Welfare Rests on Workers

The whole structure of the national welfare, Colonel Roosevelt said, "rests on the men who do the work of industry, and the men who do the work of agriculture."

"Of recent years," he continued, "we have grown more and more to realize that, as a mere business proposition, while the welfare of each is primarily his own concern, yet it must also be to a large extent the concern of all of us."

"As regards farming, for instance, if the soil is exhausted, then the people who draw their living from the soil will become impoverished and then the whole social structure with it. It is the business of the whole community to see that the soil, that has been tilled for 50 years is more productive and not less productive at the end of that time. It is our business to help the men who dwell in the open country in such fashion that not only shall their work be more productive, but their lives, and especially the lives of their women and children, be led in full and satisfactory fashion."

"The same thing applies here in industry. It is essential that industry shall be in the highest degree productive, that is, that there shall be great efficiency, and as a necessary corollary, the ample rewards for great leadership without which such efficiency cannot be achieved. It is no less essential that justice shall go hand in hand with the efficiency; and that the great rewards paid to the captains shall be paid, not at the expense of those who work under them, or of the public which they serve, but as a just recognition of the fact that their activities have been to the benefit of the public, and that the reward of these activities has been with a measurable approximation to justice, shared with and among the people who work for them."

Fair Play for All Sides

"Unfortunately there are many of our people who have refused to consider more than one side of this problem. It can never be rightly approached or satisfactorily solved unless full consideration is given both sides, unless there is a real attempt to combine common sense with a love of fair play."

"There are some men who talk and act as if all that is necessary is that kind of efficiency which produces an enormous immediate result and great prosperity for the few without regard to the fact that it creates among others a rankling sense of injustice which is bound in the future to work harm. On the other hand there are many of visionaries, and of demagogues who take advantage of visionaries; and both these classes of men talk and act as if men who do not receive their fair share of prosperity could somehow be benefited by having the prosperity destroyed, so that they would receive no share at all."

"Both types, the type of prosperous man who prospers by exploiting his fellow, and the type of unprosperous man who seeks to gratify his anger by wrecking the prosperity of others, are equally undesirable from the standpoint of the republic as a whole. Moreover normally they are really the same thing. Each nourishes the views of the other, and yet his own view is merely that of others changed in form but identical in essence."

"The arrogance of the rich man who exploits and oppresses his fellow who is less well off, and the malignant envy and hatred with which a certain type of agitator regards the man who is better off, although in appearance opposite views, are fundamentally merely diverse manifestations of the same evil spirit. The arrogance felt by the unscrupulous man of means toward his less favored brother, and the envy and hatred toward his brother who is better off, are merely two sides of the same evil shield. Arrogance is painted on one side and envy on the other, but the shield itself is the shield of selfish disregard for a brother's welfare."

FULL PAY AND EXPENSES

UNITED FRUIT CO. OFFERS MEN WHO WISH TO ATTEND MILITARY CAMP PAY—$75 FOR EXPENSES

NEW YORK, June 2.—The United Fruit Co., its employees learned today, has offered to grant any man in its service who wishes to attend a military training camp this summer not only four weeks' vacation with full pay but an expense allowance of $75.

More than 500 corporations have granted their employees four weeks' leave on full pay if they wish to attend the training camp but the United Fruit Co., so far as is known, is the first that has promised to pay expenses as well. The expenses of the recruits are estimated at about $50.

The Military Training Camps' association made public today a telegram sent to President Wilson asking his assistance in urging the passage of that section of the new army bill authorizing the appropriation of funds to meet the expenses of training camp recruits who will accept government assistance. The association said that it feared that congress may delay passage of the necessary appropriation for another six weeks.

The total enrollment for the Plattsburg camp today reached 10,727.

M.I.T. TELEPHONE STUNT

GOLDEN JUBILEE CELEBRATION OF THE MASS. STATE INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY, JUNE 14

The telephone is going to contribute the most remarkable "stunt" of the times to the famous Golden Jubilee celebration of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology this month. And not only will it be the latest word in telephone marvels, but there will be gathered the most distinguished audience that has ever been assembled in this or any other country. When President MacLaurin speaks, or Bell or Edison or Watson, he will be addressing, not only the company assembled in Boston, but Tech. men in thirty-five cities of the country, and governors, mayors and local officials whom the local M.I.T. clubs will have for their guests.

At first sight the accomplishment seems as if it were much the same as some of the previous ones, but telephone history is being rapidly written and what is proposed is far ahead of anything that has been done. The day when mark an era in the story of the telephone. Transcontinental transmission of speech with the waves of the Pacific audible at Atlantic banquet tables was the surprising feat of three months ago and this was surpassed a month ago by a meeting by five city delegations separated by long distances with one presiding officer who conducted affairs through the telephone. Each of these groups came to the telephone in a great city on the main trunk lines of the transcontinental system.

Now the telephone that goes to where the Tech. alumni are and hunts them in their home cities no matter where these may be located. The lines will run north, south and west and thirty-four places in a score of states will be linked up with the diners in Boston. Every M.I.T. association west of the Hudson—every man east of this great river will be in Boston—will be gathered for its own celebration with invited guests from its own city and state, and in these places there will be happenings of local interest. It will be an event coming home to every section of the country.

On the platform of Symphony hall in Boston that eventful evening of June 14 will be a group of inventors such as the country has not before seen together, Bell, Edison and Gray. With and besides them will be an assemblage of the men who have developed the telephone, Vail, president of the great American company, Vice-Presidents Bethel and Kingsbury, Spalding of the New England company, Watson, Carver and Professors Cross and Pupin, representing the scientific end, together with the educational dignitaries who will have assembled to do honor to the dedication of the great new educational plant of Technology. In the early days of the telephone there was so much on the way of experimentation done at the Tech. laboratories, by Cross and his associates, that it is particularly fitting that the great event of the Tech. celebration should be the demonstration with the telephone. Every place at the Symphony hall banquet have its watch-case receiver and with one for every one of the auditors in the spacious galleries. In all some three thousand receivers in Boston, and in other places provisions are made for installing the receivers by the hundreds. Everybody will hear the line and there will be no oratory with a man on the platform emphasizing his remarks with gestures. Every speaker will deliver his address into the telephone and to a magnificent audience whose distribution will be country wide. This means so far as the telephone is concerned devoting main lines for two solid hours to the Boston Tech. celebration together with the enormous work of preparation for which thousands of the watch-case receivers have been specially made.

The list of places in which the local M.I.T. club members will be assembled to hear the voice of their president and his guests is quite formidable and includes, in New York state, New York, Albany, Schenectady, Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo; in Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, Harrisburg and Erie; with Washington, Atlanta, Birmingham, Louisville and New Orleans in the south. West of New York there are Akron, Cincinnati, Cleveland and Dayton, Indianapolis, Detroit, Milwaukee and Chicago and Urbana, Ill. West of the Mississippi there will be Kansas City, Denver and Butte, Montana, with the west coast represented by San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle and Spokane.

OREGON LAND BILL PASSED

Senate Adopts House Measure, But Changes Division of Proceeds From Sale of $30,000,000 Tract

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The house bill providing for reclamation by the government of 2,300,000 acres of Oregon land granted the Oregon & California railroad was passed yesterday by the senate.

The lands, valued at about $30,000,000, are alleged to have been forfeited by violations of the terms of the grant, which required their sale to settlers at $2.50 an acre. Amendments were adopted to provide that 30 per cent. of the proceeds of re-sale, shall go to the state of Oregon, 10 per cent. to the reclamation fund for use in Oregon and 10 per cent. to the federal government. The house bill provided that 50 per cent. should go to Oregon for the use of the road and schools, 10 per cent. to the federal government and 40 per cent. to the general reclamation fund. Another amendment provides that sales of land shall be made for cash.

HOW TO BE SLIM

If you are too fat and want to reduce your weight 15 or 20 pounds, don't starve or weaken your system, or think you must always be laughed at on account of your fat, but go to A. W. Dows & Co., or any good druggist, and get a box of Oil of Kola capsules, take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week and note what a pleasant and reliable method this is for removing superfluous fat from any part of the body.

It costs little, is absolutely harmless and a week's trial should convince anyone that it is unnecessary to be burdened with even a single pound of unsightly fat.

IN BASEBALL POOL CASE

Officer O'Sullivan in Disguise Buys a Ticket—Several Auto Cases Before the Court

William N. Fadden, who has been conducting a baseball pool in which there were daily prizes, appeared in court this morning and entered a plea of guilty to a complaint charging him with the unlawful possession of lottery tickets for money. At the request of Supt. Welch, who stated that the defendant had made a frank confession to him, he suggested the imposition of the minimum fine and Fadden was ordered to pay a fine of $75.

Fadden's appearance in court came about as a result of the arrest of John H. Stanley on Wednesday by Patrolman Thos. P. O'Sullivan, who disguised as a mill hand, purchased a ticket in the baseball pool from Stanley in Merrimack street about 6.30 o'clock in the morning.

Stanley, when catechized by the police, gave Fadden's name as the promoter and admitted that he had been selling tickets but that the profit was very low, and that if he could assist the police he would do so.

When Stanley's case was called this morning, charged with the unlawful sale of lottery tickets, Supt. Welch recommended placing it on file and the court did so.

Unlawful Use of Automobile

Ernest Baehand, through his counsel A. S. Goldman, entered a plea of not guilty to a complaint charging him with the unlawful use of an automobile, the property of William J. Barry, shoe manufacturer in Stackpole street. The court after considering the evidence offered by the government accepted a plea of nolo by the defendant and the case was placed on file.

The first witness called was Mr. Barry who testified that the night before last the defendant called him on the telephone and asked him if he would like to sell his automobile. Mr. Barry replied that if the price was satisfactory he would sell it but the price named by the defendant was lower than Mr. Barry was willing to take.

Baehand called at the shoe shop yesterday morning about 9.30 o'clock and said he would like to show the car to the proposed purchaser, a Mr. Nelson, saying that he would go no farther than Merrimack square. Mr. Barry said he and his wife had to go to Haverhill on business and told the defendant to be sure and be back with the machine at 11 o'clock.

Neither the defendant nor the machine appeared at 11 o'clock and Mr. Barry waited until about 1 o'clock when he notified the police and asked them to assist him in locating the car.

Sergt. David Petrie was assigned to the case and he learned that Mr. Nelson, who Baehand intended to sell the car to, had gone to Manchester. Sergt. Petrie and Mr. Barry in another automobile belonging to the latter, then started over the road for Manchester.

When about three or four miles this side of Manchester they met Baehand and two other men in the Barry machine and trailed the car to the Pawtucket boulevard, where Sergt. Petrie placed Baehand under arrest.

Baehand explained to the officer that he had given Mr. Nelson a demonstration and inasmuch as the latter had missed a train for Manchester he took him to Nashua in order to get a train for Manchester, but upon arriving in Manchester found that the train had departed and then Baehand started for Manchester.

Lawyer Goldman informed the court that the defendant had no intention of going to Manchester when he was given the machine, but that owing to trouble with a leaky valve and shortage of gasoline he had to stop and have the machine repaired and when Mr. Nelson had missed the train he felt that he should carry him to Manchester as Mr. Nelson had an important engagement there.

The court after considering the testimony offered by the government witnesses felt that there was no intent of unlawful use of the automobile on the part of the defendant and therefore placed the case on file.

Speed Merchant Fined

William King appeared before the court on a complaint charging him with unlawfully operating a motor vehicle at an unreasonable rate of speed on April 22. Melvin G. Rogers, counsel for the defendant, entered a plea of guilty and explained to the court that at about 11.30 o'clock on the night of April 22 King was driving an automobile through Merrimack street. He was in the rear of an electric car and when the car slowed up he steered his machine to the right and crashed into an automobile which was standing near the corner of Pawtucket street. Mr. Rogers said that King had paid the damages done to the other machine. The court imposed a fine of $25 which the defendant paid.

NEW DINING ROOM

CHARMING REFECTORY OPENED AT HARRISONIA HOTEL BY 200 GUESTS LAST EVENING

A decidedly metropolitan and thoroughly pleasing atmosphere pervaded the Harrisonia hotel last evening when Proprietor Frank P. Harris opened his new and elaborate dining room to the public, some 200 guests assembling to "christen" the new and beautiful refectory, which for artistic design, modern appointments and general comfort cannot be excelled even in the metropolitan cities. Proprietor Harris in planning the latest addition to his hostelry had an eye for service, and as a result the guests, last evening, were frequently heard to remark: "Isn't the service fine!" Not only has a new dining room been added but in connection with it is a special kitchen, serving room, refrigerator and buffet bar, which together make it possible to give most efficient service. There are tables and booths for the guests, while arrangements are in readiness for chasing dish parties, and in fact for any form of reception. In a corner of the dining room is a stage on which is a baby grand piano, where entertainments of a high class are promised in the future. If they are as good as that provided last evening, they will satisfy the most fastidious lover of entertainment. Lavigne's orchestra of six pieces, assisted by Mrs. Saxon and the reorganized Honey Boy quartet, provided a continuous program, which was thoroughly enjoyed. The Honey Boys now consist of Messrs. Handley, Lyons, Perry and Brown, and no professionals have anything on them. The menu for opening night which included an infinite variety of delectable specialties, met with the enthusiastic approval of the guests, and as was mentioned previously, the service was faultless. While the new dining room will be open to the public, private parties may engage it for banquets, when by means of heavy doors, it may be completely separated from the remainder of the hotel. The new room is lighted by 220 incandescent bulbs, set in decorated globes of artistic design and gracefully hung about the room. Proprietor Harris is to be congratulated upon his enterprise in providing such a charming dining room.

Employees of the sewer department are busy on the Woburn street sewer from the sewer extension in Anderson street. Sand and stone have been brought for the Dummer street extension and work there will be started at once. Mr. Morse has also several other jobs he hopes to rush along providing he can get the men and material.

LONDON, June 2.—Earl Kitchener, a statement on the conduct of the war and reply to questions.

The war secretary was accompanied by several members of his staff and the political heads of the war office. The extension of Anderson street will be started soon, and incidentally Mr. Morse wishes to state that the shutters along the streets that will be tarred will not be taxed for water or oil.

Employees of the sewer department are busy on the Woburn street sewer from the sewer extension in Anderson street. Sand and stone have been brought for the Dummer street extension and work there will be started at once. Mr. Morse has also several other jobs he hopes to rush along providing he can get the men and material.

Measles Epidemic

The past month has been very bad as far as contagious diseases are concerned, according to reports from the board of health office. The number of cases of measles reported for May is the largest for any month for the last five years. There were 230 cases, 191 of the straight measles and 36 of the German kind. Other diseases reported at the office of the board of health during the past month were as follows: Scarlet fever, 10; tuberculosis, 17; typhoid fever, 7; whooping cough, 6; infantile paralysis, 1; trachoma, 1; ophthalmia, 4.

Public Buildings

Work on the erection of a tower on the Weed street school has been started by the employees of the public building department. The tower will be for the purpose of a bell, which has been ordered and shipped from a bell foundry at Baltimore, Md. The bell weighs 600 pounds and should arrive in Lowell in a few days.

Busy Man

Among the engagements the mayor will have to fill within the next few days are the following: This afternoon, commencement exercises at the Lowell Textile school; Monday evening, banquet of the Metropolitan Insurance agents of the New England district at the Somerset hotel, Boston; Tuesday afternoon, Rogers Hall school commencement exercises; Tuesday evening, annual meeting of the members of St. Patrick's Irish Name society; Wednesday afternoon, annual musicale at Notre Dame academy, and so the mayor will have nothing to do after Wednesday.

The employees of the Gow Co. were kept busy all day yesterday on repairing the leak in the head of the filtration plant, which was caused through the loosening of some of the joints in the pipes. The men completed their work and the pipes will be given a test today.

Street Department

Commissioner Morse says that good men for street work are very scarce and he fears that for this reason his work will be hampered to some extent. The commissioner has a pile of work on hand and he is doing his very best to rush it along. One of the most important jobs of the department is the paving of Dutton street from Broadway to Fletcher, Fletcher street to Thorndike and Thorndike to Middlesex. As soon as this is completed then the people of the Highlands will have a smooth thoroughfare from Smith street to Merrimack street.

Four carloads of steel rails have arrived for the Bay State Street Railway Co. and the employees will get busy at once tearing up the old rails in Dutton street and putting in the new. The employees of the street department will follow the Bay State men very closely in their work in order to rush the job along.

up during the night, the German fleet returning to its base on June 1.

The German battleship lost was the Pommern, a 13,000-ton vessel, and the cruiser, the fate of which is uncertain, is the Frauenlob of 2672 tons. The small cruiser sunk was the Wiesbaden.

Germans Gain at Verdun

The furious drive which the Germans have launched northeast of Verdun has already resulted in important gains in a sector where the battle lines until recently have held almost stationary since the early days of the Verdun struggle.

Supported by artillery fire of exceptional violence, the crown prince's forces have pushed south from Fort Douaumont and captured the Caillotte wood while further to the southeast they have reached the southern shores of Vaux pond. The German progress marks an advance of nearly a mile south of the Fort Douaumont line.

GERMAN ADMIRALTY ANNOUNCES VICTORY IN BIG SEA BATTLE

BERLIN, June 2. (By wireless to Europe). The German admiralty announced today that the German high sea fleet on May 31 had encountered a British fighting fleet. The engagement which developed, the admiralty says, was favorable to the Germans. The battle continued all night.

The German admiralty announces that the large British battleship Warspite, the battle cruisers Queen Mary and Indefatigable and two armed cruisers were destroyed.

It is also reported that a small British cruiser, a number of torpedo boat destroyers and torpedo boats were sunk.

The German admiralty statement adds that by observation it was established that a large number of British battleships suffered damage from the fire of the German big ships and the attacks of the torpedo boat flotilla.

The admiralty statement also declares that the British battleship Marlborough was hit by a torpedo, this being confirmed by the prisoners rescued. Several of the German ships rescued parts of the crews of the British ships which were sunk, they including, it is said, two men from the Indefatigable, the only survivors from that ship.

On the German side the small cruiser Wiesbaden was sunk by gunfire and the Pommern was sent to the bottom by a torpedo. The fate of the Frauenlob is not known and some torpedo boats did not return. The German high sea fleet, the statement adds, returned to port June 1.

The text of the German admiralty report, which is dated June 1, says:

"During an enterprise directed to the northward our high sea fleet on May 31 encountered the main part of the English fighting fleet, which was considerably superior to our forces."

"During the afternoon between Skagerrak and Horn Riff a heavy engagement developed, which was successful for us and which continued during the whole night."

"In this engagement, so far as known up to the present, there were destroyed by us the large battleship Warspite, the battle cruisers Queen Mary and Indefatigable, two armed cruisers, apparently of the Achilles type, one small cruiser, a new flagship of destroyers, the Turbinant, Nestore and Alcazar, a large number of torpedo boat destroyers and one submarine."

"By observation, which was free and clear of objects it was stated that a large number of English battleships suffered damage from our ships and the attacks of our torpedo boat flotilla during the day engagement and throughout the night."

"Among others the large battleship Marlborough was hit by a torpedo. This was confirmed by rescued parts of the crews of the sunken English ships, among them being two, and the only survivors, of the Indefatigable."

"On our side the small cruiser, Wiesbaden, by hostile gunfire during the day engagement and his majesty's ship Pommern during the night as the

BRITISH REPORT MANY GERMAN WARSHIPS SUNK IN BATTLE

LONDON, June 2, 7:05 p. m.—The British admiralty announced today that a battle had occurred in the North sea between the British and German fleets, in the course of which a number of German warships were sunk.

The British battle cruisers Queen Mary and Indefatigable and the battleship Invincible were sunk.

The cruisers Defence and Black Prince also were sunk, and the cruiser Warrior was disabled. The German losses are described as serious.

The announcement says two German battle cruisers were sunk and two German light cruisers were disabled and probably sunk.

The British destroyers Tipperary, Turbulent, Fortune, Sparrowhawk and Ardent were lost and six others have not yet been accounted for. The admiralty announcement says no British battleships or light cruisers were sunk.

From the advices thus far received it would appear that the greatest naval battle of history has taken place. Never before have two naval forces of such magnitude as the British and German high sea fleets engaged in combat. But apparently the battle was not fought out to a point to determine mastery of the seas, for the losses, serious as they are reported to have been, will not impair the strength of either fleet to a vital extent.

The scene of battle was in the eastern waters of the North sea. It is probable the German fleet was on one of the excursions into the North sea which it has taken from time to time during the war and met, whether or not by design, with the British fleet.

Skagerrak is an arm of the North sea between Norway and Denmark. The point referred to in the official German statement as Horn Riff probably is the reef off the Horn, on the southwestern extremity of Denmark. This would indicate the battle was fought off the coast of Denmark.

From the reef to Helgoland, the main German naval base in the North sea, is about 100 miles.

The British dreadnought Warspite, reported destroyed, in the North sea engagement, was a sister ship of the Queen Elizabeth, and both these vessels played a prominent part in the attempt of the British Mediterranean fleet to force the Dardanelles. The Warspite was 650 feet long and displaced 27,500 tons. She was built in 1914 at an estimated cost of $12,500,000. Her complement was 230,000.

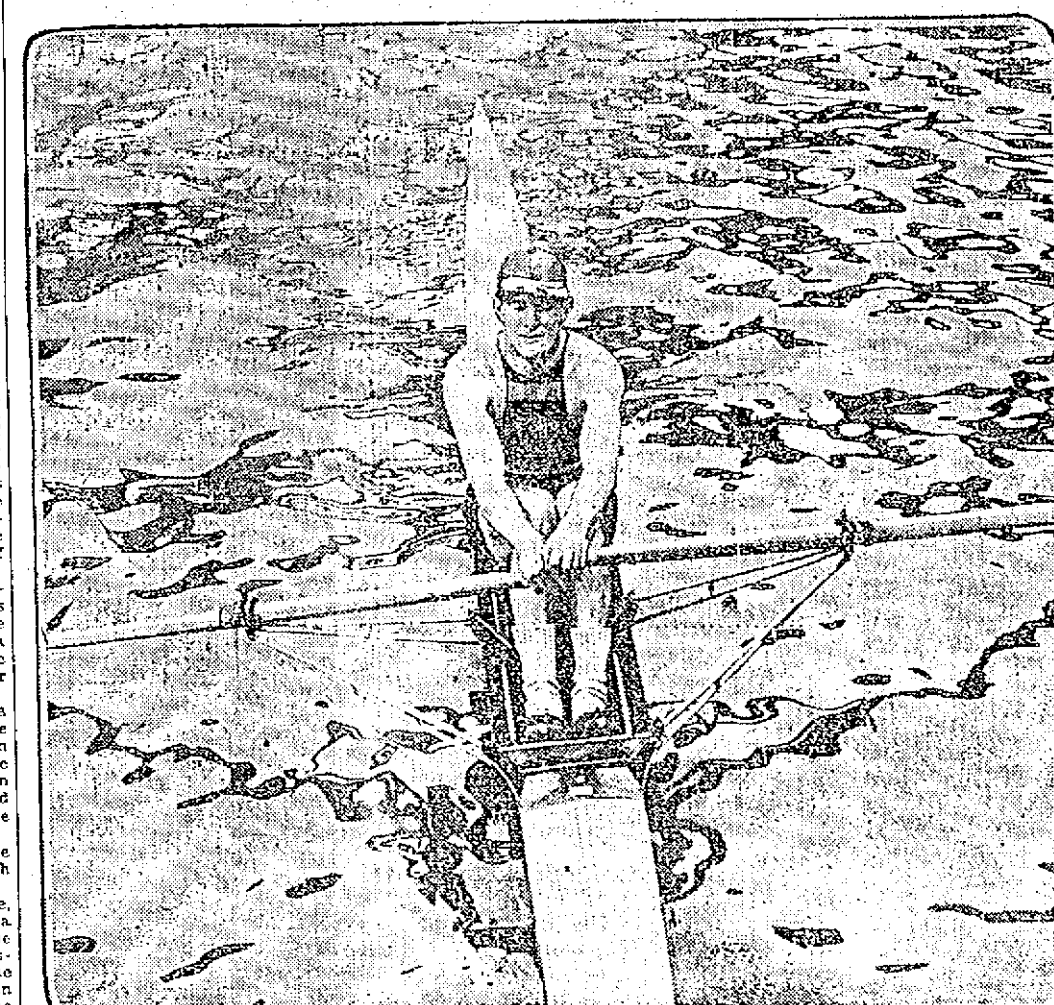

The Queen Mary and the Indefatigable were both battle cruisers of 27,000 and 18,700 tons displacement respectively. The Queen Mary was 720 feet long.

The Indefatigable was 578 feet long. The Queen Mary and the Indefatigable carried complements of between 900

ROWING EXPERTS SAY JOHN KELLY IS GREATEST SCULLER IN AMERICA

NEW YORK, June 2.—Rowing experts here are of the opinion that John Kelly of the Vespers of Philadelphia is the greatest sculler in the United States today. He proved his skill on the New York A. C. in the senior sculls, held under the auspices of the New York Rowing association. Kelly got sweet revenge for his defeat here last year in the senior singles when he defeated Rooney. The latter finished second by a length and a half and had his work cut out for him to head off Smith. Considering the strong tide with the scullers Kelly's time, 8:22 2-5, was not remarkable. In the senior double Kelly and Smith met old rivals in H. K. Livingston and R. H. Pearce of the Norelles. It was a dual race and the Quaker City pair had nearly two lengths to spare at the finish. Kelly will compete in all the big events to be held in this country this summer. Photo shows Kelly after winning the senior event.

WILSON AT ANNAPOLIS

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 2.—President Wilson unexpectedly made an address to the naval academy graduates at the commencement exercises today declaring that great responsibilities rest on naval officers of the United States. He had not planned to speak but said he now felt a particular interest in the first year's class because it saw him "get into trouble" at his inauguration three years ago.

The president declared that he gained a liberal education in the White House. He said that discipline in the academy must be strict because "you are more than college boys; you are officers of the United States and any laxity of duty cannot be overlooked. There might come a time," he added, "when a laxity in duty might change the world's history."

"It had not been my purpose when I came here to say anything," he said, "but as I sit here and look at you youngsters, I find that my feeling is a very personal feeling indeed. I know some of the things that you have been through and I admire the way in which you have responded to the new call of duty. I would feel that I had not done either you or myself justice if I did not tell you so."

"I have thought that there was one interesting bond that united us. You were at Washington three years ago and saw me get into trouble. And now I am here to see the beginning of your trouble. Your trouble will last longer than mine, but I doubt if it will be any more interesting. I have had a liberal education in the last three years with which nothing that I understand before bears the slightest comparison. But what I want to say to you young gentlemen is this: Once in a while when youngsters here or at West Point have forgotten themselves and done something that they ought not to, and were about to be disciplined, perhaps severely, for it, I have been appealed to by their friends to excuse them from the penalty. Knowing that I have spent most of my life at a college, they commonly say to me: 'You know college boys. You know what they are. They are headless youngsters, very often, and they ought not to be held up to the same standards of responsibility that older men must submit to.'"

"And I have always replied: 'Yes, I know college boys, but while these youngsters are college boys they are something more. They are officers of the United States. They are not merely college boys. If they were I would look at dereliction of duty on their part in another spirit, but any dereliction of duty on the part of a naval officer of the United States may involve the fortunes of a nation and cannot be overlooked.'"

"Do you not see the difference? You cannot indulge yourselves in weakness, gentlemen. You cannot forget your duty for a moment because there might come a time when that weak spot in you should affect you in the midst of a great engagement, and then the whole history of the world might be changed by what you did not do, or did wrong."

"The fortunes of a nation are confided to us. Now that ought not to depress a man. Sometimes I think that nothing is worth while that is not hard. You do not improve your muscle by doing the easy things; you improve it by doing the hard things and you get your test by doing a thing that is difficult, not a thing which is 'easy.' I would a great deal rather, so far as my sense of enjoyment is concerned, have something strenuous to do than have something that can be done lazily and without a stimulation of the faculties. Therefore, I congratulate you that you are going to live your lives under the most stimulating condition that any man can feel, the sense of private duty merely, but of public duty also. And then if you perform that duty there is a reward awaiting you which is superior to any other reward in the world. That is the affectionate remembrance of your fellowmen—their honor, their affection. No man could wish for more than that or find anything higher than that to strive for. I wish you Godspeed and remind you that yours is the honor of the United States."

Prior to the president's address and the presentation of their diplomas, the graduates were addressed by Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

GERMAN AIRSHIP WRECKED

PARIS, June 2.—A squadron of French aeroplanes pursuing a group of German machines which had just bombed Bar le Duc, brought down two machines, one of which was a Fokker.

The raid referred to probably is the one mentioned in last night's French official statement, which said that 18 civilians in Bar le Duc were killed by German bombs. The French statement recorded the bringing down of only one German aeroplane.

A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION

Oil Tank Blew Up Setting $30,-000 Fire in East Boston—Narrow Escape From Conflagration

BOSTON, June 2.—Originating with the terrific explosion of an oil tank, fire swept through the one-story wooden building at 163 Border street, rear, East Boston, late yesterday afternoon, spread to five adjoining buildings and for a time threatened to reduce to ashes the Maverick church and other valuable property skirting Border, London and Liverpool streets. The total loss is estimated at $30,000, partly covered by insurance.

Peter W. Fletcher, owner of the building where the fire started, was at work in his office at 155 Border street when the explosion occurred. He ran out to the street and found the shed leased by him to the George Lowins-bro company a mass of flames. He ran to box 534 and sounded an alarm, but by that time the whole building was burning and the flames had spread to his place at 157 and 155, a 2 1/2 frame structure, and were leaping across to the brick building at 153 occupied by the Federal Finnish company.

The flames, despite the fire department's efforts, jumped to the wooden building at 153, occupied as a tobacco store by Benjamin T. Graham. From this it jumped to the 2 1/2-story wooden building at 155, 157 and 159, owned by Henry B. Fish of Winthrop and occupied by William Davis company and D. C. Crosby.

Backing up to the place where the flames were discovered is a three-story wooden apartment house at 1 and 2 Central court. The intense heat set the rear piazzas and roof afire and for awhile five buildings were burning at the same time.

From Liverpool street side engines 5 and 11 crews pumped tons of water into the burning buildings, checking the fire in the apartment house and beating the flames back.

Reinforced by the crew of fire boat 47, which ran lines over the McQuesten wharf, Companies 9, and 40 attacked from Border street, and after a little more than an hour's work the fire was extinguished.

The building where the fire originated is a total loss, with two automobile trucks and several heavy wagons. The tank which blew up, causing the fire, was nothing but a mass of twisted iron. The other buildings were only partly burned, but were well soaked with water.

The cause of the explosion is a mystery, inasmuch as the tank, which was being placed on a truck for delivery

IF YOU WORRY, READ THIS

Worry never brought any good to anybody. But you say, "I don't worry because I want to, I worry because I can't help it." Or, "I worry because I have so much to worry about."

We all have our troubles and worry, of course, makes matters worse. The patient generally recognizes this fact without being able to profit by it.

The doctor who could meet this nervous condition and cure it would be the most popular medical man alive. But he cannot do it because the form of nervous exhaustion known as neurasthenia, of which worry is a characteristic symptom, must be cured by the patient himself. That is why you should write today for the book, "Diseases of the Nervous System," and read the chapter on "Neurasthenia."

So many people have read it and written back, "This is my case exactly. I am giving the treatment a trial and being benefited," that Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., has had a lot of these books printed and will send you a copy free on request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a non-alcoholic tonic, particularly suited for nervous, neurasthenic people. Your druggist sells them or they will be mailed postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50.

NEW PERISCOPE DEVICE

IN BOSTON INVENTION—BUOY

BOSTON, June 2.—The Charlestown navy yard and waters of Massachusetts bay, within the next few weeks, may be the scene of experiments with a new periscope device which will make the submarine of the United States superior to any in the world, if the dream of a marcher in last Saturday's preparedness parade comes true.

The device is a child of the inventive mind of Van Antwerp Clarke, of this city. He described it about 10 days ago to officials at the Charlestown navy yard, and received a welcome there. He wrote to the navy department at Washington, and last Tuesday received a letter from Sec. Daniels giving him authority to use submarines at the Charlestown yard for perfecting his plans.

Last night Mr. Clarke told of his basic idea and gave all the details which he deemed it wise to make public. Much of the detail he has saved for the United States navy alone.

It is an invention which will allow the submarine to see miles farther than through any present periscope and will make the submarine a far more deadly force than at present.

Plans are now on foot to secure the use of one of the submarines built by the Fore River shipbuilding corporation for Great Britain, now held at the navy yard as Mr. Clarke's laboratory. The United States submarines are away at maneuvers.

From the description the inventor gave last night, the device might be described as a floating eye. It is a periscope buoy, from which a vision for many miles may be photographed over a cable to the submarine. The periscope on the buoy can be raised much higher out of water than can a submarine periscope, with a consequently wider range of observation.

The periscope will have an instantaneous vision in all directions, and this vision can be transmitted by cable to the submarine a mile or more distant from the buoy, according to Mr. Clarke. Once the submarine commander has picked up the exact location of an approaching ship, the cable connection can be dropped, so that the submarine is not confined for torpedo action to the radius of its cable.

Two difficulties in the inventor's mind when he submitted his idea to Naval Constructor Baxter and others at the navy yard were cleared up by them, he says. The possibility of detection was one; the other was the problem of stability for the floating periscope.

The officials suggested that dummy periscopes be placed in the same waters with the actual periscope, perhaps one to four or five dummies. The inventor's plans include a device for controlling the height of the periscope from the submarine, elevating the lens to perhaps 30 or 40 feet above water.

The naval constructors told the inventor also, he says, that there is now a known device for giving such an upright object as the periscope attached to a buoy absolute stability even in rough waters.

Besides the submarine use of the periscope it will be equally valuable to land naval stations, Mr. Clarke believes. A land station can probably have a much longer cable connection with a floating periscope and can pick up visions of objects at a much greater distance at sea than is now possible. A five-mile cable would be feasible, probably.

SCHOOL GIRL ARRESTED

Helen Katzwahl of Worcester Said to Have Stolen $30—Many Complaints

WORCESTER, June 2.—Charged with larceny, Helen Katzwahl, aged 14, a school girl, was arrested by the Worcester police following the receipt of complaints from different sections of the city that apartments have been ransacked and robbed during the past few days.

The girl was arrested shortly after John J. Keating, of 900 Chatham street, notified the police that his apartment had been ransacked and $30 stolen. The police allege that the girl entered the block late in the afternoon and waited until the family had left for a trip downtown. The curtains in the different rooms of the Keating apartment had been drawn, say the police, so as to shut out any view from people living in the next block.

When searched at the police headquarters $30 was found tucked away in the girl's hair, it is alleged. The girl told the police she lived at 45 Summer street, this city.

THE STATE TAX TWO EXECUTED BRANDEIS IS CONFIRMED

How Reduction Lowers Share of All Massachusetts Cities

BOSTON, June 2.—Massachusetts' state tax this year will be $5,000,000, or $1,750,000 less than last year. This is the lowest tax that has been declared by the commonwealth since 1913, the last year of the Foss administration. It is likewise the greatest reduction in a state tax in the city's history.

Boston's share of the state tax this year will be $2,518,240 or $659,510 less than last year, when the Hub paid as its portion of the tax of the commonwealth $3,207,750.

The state tax had been steadily mounting of late years, it having jumped from $5,500,000 in 1911, the first year of the Foss administration, to $9,750,000 last year, when it was the highest in the state's history.

As a result when the house committee on ways and means reported this year's tax yesterday morning there was great rejoicing among the republican leaders of the legislature. Governor McCall was delighted with the figures presented by the committee.

Two big factors operated to keep the state tax down this year. The chief of these was the new inheritance law, which reduced the revenue of about $3,500,000 or $500,000 more than even the most optimistic state officials hoped that it would produce.

Then the present administration got a $700,000 windfall from last year, because the income, when the 1915 state tax bill was made up, was underestimated that amount. As a matter of fact, the total appropriations this year were greater by nearly $1,000,000 than last year. In 1915 the total appropriations amounted to $20,163,222.75, as against $21,002,276.87 this year.

On the other hand the total revenue and cash on hand was about $2,700,000 more this year than last year. In 1915 the total revenue and cash on hand at the time the state tax was declared was $10,398,945.77, as against $13,095,707.65 this year.

While the reduction in the state tax will come as a direct boon to many cities and towns, some of the cities and towns will have to pay considerably more this year than last year, as the result of the new apportionment of the state tax, which was recently completed.

Among these is the famous "millionaire's retreat," Orleans, which has rejoiced in the past in the lowest tax rate in the state, the rate being down to 33 per thousand in that town last year.

The state tax which will have to be paid by the cities of the state follows: Attleboro, $35,320; Beverly, $74,730; Brockton, $98,240; Cambridge, $216,960; Chelsea, $25,400; Chicopee, $38,240; Everett, $54,560; Fall River, $180,960; Fitchburg, $70,080; Gloucester, $43,520; Haverhill, $75,480; Holyoke, $111,040; Lawrence, $184,560; Leominster, $24,000.

Murderers Put to Death at Sing Sing Prison This Morning

SING SING, N. Y., June 2.—Two murderers, Roy Champlin and John Supe were put to death early today in the electric chair at the state prison. Champlin killed his uncle, Henry Mettee at Wellsville, in June a year ago. The murder was the outcome of a family quarrel.

Supe was executed for the murder of Vincenzo Abbatiello at Westbury, Nassau county, on June 25, 1915. Supe was employed on the estate of Harry Payne Whitney and his victim worked for Willard in the straight. They quarrelled over an old debt owed by Supe.

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS

Senate Upholds Nomination by Vote of 47 to 22—One Democrat Failed to Support Him

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The nomination of Louis D. Brandeis of Boston to be an associate justice of the supreme court of the United States was confirmed by the senate in executive session yesterday afternoon, by a vote of 47 to 22. All the democrats present, except one, voted for confirmation. Three republicans voted with them. The republicans were paired in favor of confirming the nomination. No debate preceded the vote.

By prior agreement the vote was to be taken at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and when the hour arrived the senate proceeded to the business of calling the roll to determine who was for and who was against the nominee whose case has aroused more comment and caused more controversy than that of any supreme court nomination.

The one democrat senator who voted against the majority of his party was Newlands of Nevada. The three republicans who voted in favor of confirming the nomination of Mr. Brandeis were La Follette of Wisconsin, Norris of Nebraska and Poinsett of Washington. All of the radical progressive faction, and the last named until recently a member of the progressive party.

The two republicans who were paired in favor of confirmation were Clapp of Minnesota and Gronna of North Dakota, both of the progressive element.

The vote in detail follows: For confirmation—Democrats: Ashurst of Arizona, Bankhead of Alabama, Beckham of Kentucky, Broussard of Louisiana, Chamberlain of Oregon, Chilton of West Virginia, Culberson of Texas, Fletcher of Florida, Gore of Oklahoma, Harwick of Georgia, Hitchcock of Nebraska, Hollis of New Hampshire, Hughes of New Jersey, Huston of Wisconsin, James of Kentucky, Kern of Indiana, Lane of Oregon, Lee of Tennessee, Lee of Maryland, Lewis of Illinois, Myers of Montana, O'Gorman of New York, Overman of North Carolina, Owens of Oklahoma, Phelan of California, Hittman of Nevada, Randall of Louisiana, Reed of Missouri, Walcott of Delaware, Shafroth of Colorado, Sheppard of Texas, Shields of Tennessee, Simons of North Carolina, Smith of Arizona, Smith of Georgia, Smith of Maryland, Smith of South Carolina, Stone of Missouri, Taggart of Indiana, Thomas of Colorado, Thompson of Kansas, Underwood of Alabama, Vandaman of Mississippi and Wada of Montana. Total democrats, 44.

Republicans: La Follette of Wisconsin, Norris of Nebraska, Poinsett of Washington. Total republicans, 3.

Against confirmation—Democrat: Newlands of Nevada. Democrat 1. Republicans: Brady of Idaho, Brandegee of Connecticut, Clark of Kansas, Cummings of Iowa, Curtis of Kansas, Dillingham of Vermont, Dupont of Delaware, Fall of New Mexico, Gallinger of New Hampshire, Harding of Ohio, Lippitt of Rhode Island, Lodge of Massachusetts, Nelson of Minnesota, Oliver of Pennsylvania, Page of Vermont, Smith of Michigan, Sterling of South Dakota, Sutherland of Utah, Townsend of Michigan, Warren of Wyoming and Weeks of California. Total republicans, 21.

Paired for confirmation—Democrats: Martine of New Jersey, Johnson of Maine, Swanson of Virginia, Bryan of Florida, Pomeroy of Ohio, Johnson of South Dakota, Martin of Virginia, Williams of Mississippi, Tillman of Arkansas, Republicans: Clark of Minnesota and Gronna of North Carolina.

Paired against confirmation—Republicans: Smoot of Utah, Wadsworth of New York, Kenyon of Iowa, Jones of Washington, Borah of Idaho, Catron of New Mexico, Weeks of Massachusetts, Colt of Rhode Island, McCumber of North Dakota, Penrose of Pennsylvania, Goff of West Virginia and Burleigh of Maine. Democrats: None.

Absent and not paired—Democrat: Clarke of Arkansas. Republicans: McLean of Connecticut and Sherman of Illinois.

Majority reports favoring the confirmation of Mr. Brandeis's nomination, and minority reports opposing it, were submitted to the senate by the democratic and the republican members respectively of the committee on the judiciary, and these were made public when the senate acted this afternoon. Some of the individual members of the committee submitted separate reports, agreeing in general, however, with the view of the larger number of their party associates.

Chilton on Temperament Senator Chilton, who submitted the principal report, advocating confirmation, had this to say in regard to the charge that Mr. Brandeis did not possess the judicial temperament: "Judicial temperament is a thing which it is not for a man to judge except by actual experience on the bench. No one can tell whether a great lawyer will be a great judge until he has been tried. It seems to me that there is more in the life of Mr. Brandeis as shown by this record to incline one to the belief that he has the qualities of a good judge than there is to the contrary. It is remarkable that friend and foe alike speak of his ability as a lawyer. The late Chief Justice, Fuller, advised one seeking a lawyer in the east as follows: 'Go to Boston and see Mr. Louis D. Brandeis. As I consider him the ablest man who has ever appeared before the supreme court of the United States. He is also absolutely fearless in the discharge of his duties.'"

The minority report, signed by the eight republican members of the judiciary committee, concludes as follows: "Never before in the history of the country has a man been appointed a justice of the supreme court of the United States whose honesty and integrity were seriously brought in question. It must be evident to any thinking and unbiased mind that this appointment has resulted from something other than the qualifications and fitness of the appointee for the office."

"We regard it as a great misfortune and a distinct lowering of the standard heretofore maintained in making appointments to this high office that one should be selected for the place whose reputation for honesty and integrity among his associates at the bar has been proved to be bad, which reputation has been justified by his own course of conduct. We cannot conscientiously give our consent to the confirmation of such an appointment."

The new justice was born 69 years ago in Louisville, Ky.; graduated from Harvard university in 1877, and began the practice of law in Boston, after admission to the bar, in 1878. He probably will take the oath of office June 12, a week from Monday, just before the court adjourns for the summer recess.

Mr. Brandeis is the first Jew to be elevated to the highest tribunal in the land. He succeeds the late Associate Justice Lamar of Georgia. The fight over his confirmation was one of the bitterest in the senate's history.

"WASH YOUR HANDS"

STATE APPEALS TO WORKERS—INDUSTRIES BOARD HAS PAMPHLETS PUT IN PAY ENVELOPES

BOSTON, June 2.—"Wash your hands!" one of the familiar lessons of childhood is about to be taught to grown-ups in this state by a new teacher. Under the seal of the commonwealth of Massachusetts a little person in washing hands and banishing dirt and dust is to be quietly slipped into the pay envelopes of workers in factories and shops throughout the state.

The teacher is the state board of labor and industries, and the employers of large numbers of men and women in occupations which have their risks, large or small, are furnishing the classes.

The state board hopes, by a relentless campaign of education, with simple lessons, almost in monosyllables, to make of workers sworn enemies of dirt and dust and thereby to save them money and health.

The idea of slipping these little lessons into the pay envelopes struck Commissioner of Labor Edwin Mulready as an effective way of bringing the message home and with Dr. Thos. F. Harrington, medical deputy of the board, they are being put out in pamphlet form.

Here is part of one lesson, entitled "Some Facts About Dust and Your Pay Envelope."

"To the wage-earner—The state board of labor and industries asks your co-operation in fighting dust and its diseases because

"Dust is one of the great enemies of industrial workers. It destroys the power of the body to fight disease by clogging up the human machinery. This means a small pay envelope. It often means the loss of your job."

"The amount of sickness each year among industrial workers is appalling. The investigation of the Massachusetts commission showed that sickness causes a loss of $5,000,000 in this state each year that is preventable."

"All authorities agree that this great loss can be prevented."

"Do you realize what this means to you?"

"In dollars and cents it means that at least $27 now spent by each of the 600,000 families in this state for illness each year can be saved; it means that a loss in wages each year averaging two weeks for each wage-earner of the state can be stopped; it means that this money can be added to your income."

"Sickness lowers the power to work steadily. Sooner or later it makes the worker unfit for his job. This means loss of job. Then comes poverty, sickness, dependency—a living death."

Wash Your Hands Rules.

Wash your hands before eating. Do not eat your lunch in a dusty workroom and do not spend the noon hour there. Make cleanliness the habit of your life; it will pay you in a better health.

Drink four or five glasses of water each day.

Do not defy Nature in your daily life.

Be temperate in all things. Take full advantage of God's free gifts—fresh air and sunshine.

Balance work and rest in a right proportion to fit your age, sex and health.

Help the board of labor and industries to enforce in your place of work the laws for better health.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL

The regular meeting of the Trades and Labor council was held last night in the hall at 32 Middle street. There was a large attendance of delegates and considerable business was transacted during the evening.

Charles Morris, representing the United Hatters, told of the results of the subscription fund recently raised by organized labor for the relief of the hatters at Danbury, Conn. The amount realized by the donation of one hour's pay on Jan. 27 by organized labor was $132,135.55.

A communication was received from the International Bakery and Confectionery Workers, asking the local secretary to write the congressman from this district asking his support of the pending workmen's compensation act for the District of Columbia.

Another communication was read from the Central Labor council of Mahoning county, Ohio, advising the local of a number of strikes in that territory. The workers seek an eight-hour day, which has been refused, after several conferences.

The credentials of John Carroll, who succeeds Louis Ingraham as a delegate from the Woollen Spinners, were received, and the following additional delegates to the Labor day committee were announced:

Brotherhood of Railway Carmen: E. L. Griffin, W. E. Dornegan and W. E. Oakes.

Painters and Decorators: Joseph Panton, William Hollinsworth and Thomas Morrison.

Blacksmiths and Helpers: J. J. Becker, Paul Hauha and Terrance Gilligan.

The organization of one or two new unions, which will affiliate with the Central council, is under way, it was announced.

AGAINST PENSION CLAIMS

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Steps were taken by army officers today to guard against future pension claims for disabilities not incident to military service. Army medical officers were instructed through a bulletin issued by the chief of staff to examine recruits with special care, even though they are enlisted from state militia organizations whose medical standards are equal to those of the United States army.

The circular cites the fact that thousands of claims for pensions based on physical defects possessed at the time of enlistment have been filed in past years, because careful physical reports on recruits were not kept.

THE KINBALL SYSTEM GAME

The game between the Kinball System nine and Major John J. Hurley's aggregation from Lawrence will be played on the South Common instead of Spalding park, it was decided today.

VICTORY FOR DEMOCRATS

Sec. Baker Predicts Re-election of Wilson—Calls G. O. P. an Aggregation of Factions

COLUMBUS, O., June 2.—Secretary of War Baker, in an address as chairman of the Ohio democratic convention here yesterday, declared the republican party is "an aggregation of factions agreeing upon no set of principles," and compared it with the democratic party which he said had carried out a wise and definite program in economic measures, national preparedness and foreign policy. The party will be continued in power to mature its program, he predicted.

Referring briefly to politics in Ohio, his home state, the secretary expressed the hope that the present republican administration "characterized by feebleness and uncertainty" would be replaced by the democrats next year and that special attention would be given to relieving the financial stringency of Ohio cities.

Secretary Baker praised President Wilson for pressing enactment of the federal reserve and rural credits systems, tariff reduction, for unholding American ideals in dealing with Mexico, and for steering the United States away from participation in the European war. He expressed satisfaction that the preparedness program had been moderate.

Attacking the republican party, Secretary Baker said:

"To speak of a man as a republican today identifies him with no cause, ascribes to him no opinion; and whether it affiliates him with progressives or reactionaries or both cannot be told until after the national convention in Chicago next week."

He declared that Senator Harding of Ohio, who will preside at the republican convention, represents one faction which believes the tariff should be the issue in the coming campaign, while other republicans favor an attack on the foreign policy of the present administration. Opposition camps are divided into those who believe the administration has been too bellicose and those who fear it has been too peace-loving, he said.

"Then there is a third group," the secretary continued, "headed by the Great Detractor, who, shifting from position to position on the nation's foreign policy, selects at each time apparently whatever vantage point seems to offer an opportunity for making difficult the position of the president and congress.

"In other words, what used to be the strong, coherent, logical organization known as the republican party, is now, so far as its leaders are concerned, an aggregation of factions, agreeing on no set of principles, advocating no national policy, the only common bond of union being a willingness to pool issues to win. And this party is about to meet in convention at Chicago to select whatever candidate looks best at the last moment, and whatever principles promise to weather the storm until November."

In contrast to this, the democratic party, having lived through years of doubt and hesitation, with a central philosophy sometimes more a yearning than a program, now presents a matured policy, evolved by a great leader, welcomed by his party associates as the real expression of their political ideals.

Secretary Baker declared the federal reserve act, by steadying business and commerce during the trying period of the European war, alone "would afford a record for courage and wisdom upon which the party could confidently appeal to the country." It has eliminated the power of a few financiers to cause a panic, he stated. The rural credits legislation "is the first comprehensive recognition by the nation of the needs and rights of those who till the soil as the foundation of our entire economic structure," said the secretary.

Commenting on the democratic reduction of tariff, Mr. Baker said: "To the amazement of the faithful, the duties have gone down but the dinner pail is not only not empty but full to overflowing. The high protective duty has passed to the hall of fame, where it is placed with Dr. Cook, and Caplostro, venerable only because of the length of time men rendered homage for virtue which it did not possess."

Mr. Baker declared that intervention in Mexico had been urged by some American owners of Mexican mines, some American proprietors of Mexican concessions, some American who looked with longing eyes on Mexico as Naboth's vineyard. Border disorders have been unfortunate, he explained, but the only alternative was "war upon these people, who have willed no act of aggression on us, to invade their country, and to spend years in the occupation of foreign soil, and in tolls effort, expensive of life and treasure, to impress an alien civilization on these people."

Included in Mr. Baker's comment on the European war, was this:

"It is better for the people of the United States not to be involved in that vast destruction if it can be honorably avoided; and, second, it is better for humanity for the United States not to be involved, in order that, when the end of the struggle comes, there will be one great and persuasive power in friendly relations with all of the belligerents, inspired only by high motives of humanity and friendship, to act as adviser and counselor in the terms of readjustment necessary."

"The course of the administration has been to regard itself as, in the nature of the case, a trustee, for the time being, of the rights of neutrals."

President Wilson was the subject of this praise from the secretary:

"When the history of this age comes to be written, the great fortune of the American people and of the world will appear to have been that our destinies were in the hands of a man, patient, wise and just, who saw past all the minor annoyances and through all the cross-currents of feeling, who resisted every impulse toward impetuous judgment and thereby accomplished these great things: First, that he saved the lives of countless Americans who by any other course would have been devoted to death in battle; second, that he preserved the civilization of the 20th century against the last great assault which would have been made had our country too been swept into the general catastrophe; third, that he vindicated and preserved unimpaired the rights of neutrals and restrained the zeal of belligerents from sacrificing international law to the supposed necessities of their military plans, and fourth, that he saved up the moral energies of a great and free people to place them at the disposal of mankind when they rested from their work of destruction and began to reconsider the possibilities of national life."

"His has been the sane and serene spirit which will redeem this age; and when the election comes it will be found that the people of America, whatever their sympathies in the European struggle, realize that the one indispensable exponent of the mind, the friendliness and the ideals of America in the remaking of the old order in the old world, is the finest type produced in this age by the new order in the new world—Woodrow Wilson."

GROUP OF PUPILS GAVE EXCELLENT PROGRAM LAST EVENING AT LINCOLN STREET STUDIO

A very delightful musicale was given last evening at the studio of Mr. William C. Heller, 211 Lincoln street, by a group of his pupils, and was attended by many of the parents and friends of the young musicians. The program was made up almost wholly of classical compositions, and the work of the pupils reflected great credit on Mr. Heller, whose reputation as pianist and teacher is established. All who attended spoke in the highest terms of the excellence of the music, especially as all selections were played from memory. Where all were so accomplished, praise is superfluous, but special mention might be made of the playing of two of the youngest pupils—William Hoyte, who is only 9 years old, but who promises to be a veritable Paderewski, and Mary Ellen Mooney, whose fast in transposing a waltz into any major or minor key called by Mr. Heller was notable. After the formal program, refreshments were served and a delightful informal reception was held. Following is the program:

Consideration of Claims of Contesting Delegates Resumed Today—Other Business

CHICAGO, June 2.—Consideration of claims of contesting delegates to the national convention was resumed today by the republican national committee, which opened its deliberations yesterday with continuous sessions lasting more than nine hours.

The result of yesterday's work was a decision in the cases of sixteen delegates, nine from Georgia and seven from Alabama.

The Henry S. Jackson delegates from Georgia were awarded seats and the seven protests in Alabama were settled by the seating of six regular delegates at large and a protesting delegate from the ninth congressional district. The committee also voted to place the delegates from Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines on the temporary roll with the recommendation that they be given votes.

age for virtue which it did not possess."

Mr. Baker declared that intervention in Mexico had been urged by some American owners of Mexican mines, some American proprietors of Mexican concessions, some American who looked with longing eyes on Mexico as Naboth's vineyard. Border disorders have been unfortunate, he explained, but the only alternative was "war upon these people, who have willed no act of aggression on us, to invade their country, and to spend years in the occupation of foreign soil, and in tolls effort, expensive of life and treasure, to impress an alien civilization on these people."

SHE'S THERE BECAUSE SHE PERFORMS—THE 8400 r. p. m. CHALMERS

Most cars start alike. But very few finish alike. Therein comes a mighty difference.

Step on the little button 10 months after date and you'll readily note the inequality.

One is sluggish, "dead", without emotion, and responds to the touch with the speed of old-time oxen responding to the lash.

The other is alive, alert, ready; radiates desire to plunge ahead.

This is the 8400 r. p. m. Chalmers kind. The other kind is the species known to the trade as "one-year" cars.

Chalmers makes a five-year car. There's many an old 1909 Chalmers 80 Blue Bird giving a good account of itself today. You'll find the everlasting pep there five years from the day you take your first turn at the wheel.

Largely because of the 8400 r. p. m. engine. Which delivers mighty power with easy effort.

It's mostly in the design. The pistons are aluminum, about two pounds lighter per piston; the reciprocating parts lighter, which eases up the thrust on the bearings.

Then the crank-shaft, which is very heavy, and balanced to the weight of a hair in a special Chalmers device, spins at the rate of 8400 revolutions per minute.

It means excellent reserve power. For at 10 miles an hour the engine is turning up only 500 r. p. m. while at 20 she is doing about 1000 r. p. m. So that at excessive road speed she has the punch to deliver when called upon.

16% of her power is used at 10 miles an hour. So that she has 80% to 84%—when a twisting, hilly road looms ahead, when a sharp corner with a rugged grade hoves in sight; when the man ahead is showing you too much dust.

You'll like the 8400 r. p. m. Chalmers for one single little reason. She sure can perform.

Ask your dealer about Chalmers service inspection coupons, negotiable at all Chalmers dealers everywhere. This system is a most important consideration in buying your car.

THE MEXICAN SITUATION

Reply to Carranza Delayed—The Troops to Stay—No Cabinet Meeting Today

WASHINGTON, June 2.—A week or more will be taken by administration officials to frame a reply to Gen. Carranza's last note threatening war. It was said today. President Wilson was out of the city and no active preparations were being made to draw up an answer. The usual cabinet meeting was cancelled, since the president was not to return until late today from Annapolis, where he went to attend the commencement exercises at the Naval academy.

Army officers today looked for a report from Gen. Pershing on his conference yesterday at Colonia Dublan with Gen. Gaviro, Carranza's military commander in northern Chihuahua. The meeting was brief and it is assumed only questions of co-operation in troop movements were discussed. Gen. Pershing described the conference as "very satisfactory," according to unofficial reports.

The war department's plans for maintaining Pershing's column in Mexico were unchanged.

151 day pupils and 789 evening pupils, or 943 in all.

Hibbard's orchestra opened the exercises this afternoon with "Dreamy Moments," and then followed the address by A. G. Cumcock, president of the board of trustees. After another selection by the orchestra, the speaker of the afternoon, the lieutenant governor, was heard. Messrs. Elison and Bagley then favored with "The Butterfly," a duo for flute and clarinet. The announcement of awards and presentation of diplomas and degrees was made by Principal Charles H. Eames, and the exit march by the orchestra, "Made in the U. S. A." completed the program.

Diplomas were conferred on eight four-year men and ten graduates were awarded diplomas. The theses covered spized but now ennobled, became the possession of the upper classes. Scholarship became respected and ignorance a mark of disgrace.

At the time of the settlement of New England the commercial and political activities of the middle classes in England had brought them into touch with learning. But still the tradition which was brought here was that the higher education was for the clergy and the professions. It was not for the common people and it was not for women. The English built their meeting house and then turned to found their college, but learning was for the classes, not for the masses. It was a privilege and such it remained until long after the Revolution.

The public school is a distinctly modern development, and may now living can recall when there was no law for compulsory attendance. But all the while our system of education bore the ancient theory that it was instituted to train men, not so much for life here, as for life hereafter. While this and some other textile and industrial schools are older, it is only within ten years that Massachusetts has adopted a provision for vocational training in its public schools.

We are just beginning to apply the realization that training the hand and the eye is training the mind, that our industrial development depends upon making artists of our artisans, and that the best preparation that we know of for the life hereafter is the skill and training and power to live useful and successful lives here.

Such, in rough outline, has been the progress of education and its application to the practical affairs of this world. I believe it is fraught with a deep and significant meaning of hope for humanity. You have seen how learning has always led the race on, and up, though it was once despised as fit only for slaves and hirelings, how it became ennobled and reserved for the fortunate few, how American institutions have made the privilege of the few, the privilege and finally the duty of all. Such has been the establishment of the democracy of education.

The Lowell Textile school marks a step even in advance of this. As the public school meant the realization of the worth and dignity of man, so vocational training means a realization of the worth and dignity of industrial life, choice, and equal honor falls to equal endeavor.

Accidents in Textile Mills

The thesis of John Gregory Echmalian, the first Armenian to graduate from the school, will interest all mill workers, as it deals with the subject of accidents. It was as follows:

The textile industry has always been the foremost in replacing slow, hand processes by automatic machinery. No industry has such a variety of mechanical appliances, thus the risks attending the operation of certain of these machines are of a serious nature.

In this thesis I have made it my purpose to ascertain definite facts relating to accidents, their causes and consequences, such as the mechanical elements involved, that is for the machine causing the accident the mechanical element involved, such as gears, rolls, etc., are shown and the number of accidents with their nature, whether slight or serious indicated.

An examination of these tables will disclose the fact that more accidents are due to general causes than to any special cause.

Tables 2c and 2w show the number of days lost by accidents due to different machines of the textile industry. These tables disclose the fact that more time is lost by general or miscellaneous accidents than by actual machines.

Tables 3c and 3w show the hours of accidents. In the analysis of this table it would be best to refer to plots 3c and 3w. From the general shape of the curves they are about the same. Most of the accidents occur between 10.30 and 11.30 o'clock in the morning and between 2.30 and 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Tables 4c and 4w show the parts of the body affected by the accidents and also show whether the injuries sustained were temporary or compensable. From the examination of the tables, and also plots 4c and 4w, it is evident that the most affected parts of a man are what are known as the upper limbs, that is the shoulders, arms, wrists and hands.

From my investigations and study of accidents I derive the following conclusions:

1—Relative hazards from machines in the cotton and woolen industry are practically the same.

2—More accidents are due to general causes than the combinations of all machines either in cotton or woolen.

3—The greatest number of accidents occur between 10.30 and 11.30 o'clock in the morning, and between 2.30 and 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

4—The parts of body most often affected by accidents are the upper limbs.

TRIAL OF ORPET

Only 8 Jurors Selected in 16 Days—400 Men Examined

WAUKEGAN, Ill., June 2.—The opening of court today found the jury in the trial of W. H. Orpet for murder no nearer completion than it was at the end of last week when eight jurors had been sworn for service. The trial has been in progress for sixteen days during which time more than 300 veniremen have been examined. A further panel of 50 men has been summoned for today as yesterday's examination exhausted the last summoned without resulting in the acceptance of a single juror.

BURNS AMERICAN FLAG

Pastor Sentenced to 30 Days and Fined $100 for Desecrating the Stars and Stripes

NEW YORK, June 2.—Bouck White, pastor of the Church of the Social Revolution, who last night participated in the burning of the American flag and other national emblems in the rear of his church, was today found guilty by the court of special sessions of desecrating the American emblem and was sentenced to 30 days in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $100. The offense of which he was convicted today was the desecration of the American flag in circulars he caused to be distributed some weeks ago.

Police Commissioner Woods today ordered an investigation of the burning last night of the flags which were placed in a "melting pot."

The affair was described by White as the "birth of internationalism." It is alleged that the American flag was thrown to the flames by Albert Henkel, described as an artist, who afterward unfurled a banner of "international industrialism."

The police commissioner said today that if the facts were as reported it was an "outrage that should not be tolerated." He directed a deputy to confer with the district attorney and said that if that official believed the participants in the "melting pot" episode should be punished, the detectives would obtain the evidence.

INVESTIGATING MURDER

State and City Police Searching for Murderer of Seven Year Old Melrose Girl

MELROSE, June 2.—State and city police under the active direction of Mayor Charles H. Adams today continued their investigation of the assault and murder of 7-year-old Loretta Winifred Wakelin, whose body was found yesterday in the woods near her home in the Swan's pond section of the city.

Mayor Adams and Alderman Albert M. Tibbotts in visit to the scene of the crime found a school book which the child carried when she was attacked while on her way to school. It was in the underbrush a short distance from the spot where the body was found. The police today were endeavoring to locate and question every man known to have been in the vicinity yesterday. Several suspects already have been eliminated.

Mayor Adams had under consideration the question of offering a reward, but no action along this line has been taken, as the mayor said today he believed no added stimulus was necessary to urge the police and citizens in their investigations. Such a step, he added, might be taken at a meeting of the board of aldermen Monday.

"The police are doing their utmost to locate the perpetrator of the atrocious crime," said the mayor, "and while we have no very promising clue we hope for developments which will lead to the arrest of the assailant. State Police Officers Thomas Eustace and Silas P. Smith are working with Chief of Police Kerr, and members of the Melrose department to this end."

Mayor Adams said that the officials attached no importance to the finding of a pile of male clothing on a bluff near the place where the child's body was found. This clue, like all others, however, was being given the closest attention, he said.

WELCOMED INTO THE NAVY

Annapolis Graduates, Coming Into Service at Period of Its Largest Expansion, Says Daniels

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 2.—Secretary Daniels today welcomed the graduating class at the naval academy into actual naval service with an address counselling a steady continuance on their part of the training and studies begun at Annapolis in order that the navy, dependent upon their knowledge for efficient expansion and keeping, might remain equipped and prepared always for any emergency. The secretary told the graduates they were coming into the navy at the period of its largest expansion and its highest efficiency and when lessons from Europe point directly to the need of trained men in war if human life is to be spared from the killing of men unprepared and unskilled in the science of militarism.

"We have learned as never before during the present world war," the secretary said, "that courage on the field of battle is the commonest, as well as the most glorious attribute of our humanity. The man who, in patriotic outbursts, hurries to volunteer on land or sea often fails to appreciate the fact that his service lacks the highest value unless he is trained in arms. The pathos of human lives sacrificed in war because of unreadiness is the saddest lesson taught by the European war. It is a lesson which has served to awaken America to the need of training men."

The training that produces skill and efficiency, said the secretary, should be encouraged among naval officers after they are graduated if the navy is to profit by their services.

"Another lesson of the war and one needed in America," he continued, "is that industrial preparedness must go hand in hand with building battle cruisers and other naval craft, and securing more trained officers and men. Most of the great nations had but dimly understood that ability to quickly mobilize the resources and convert industrial plants into munition factories as important as to mobilize men."

"I counsel you," he continued, "to early marry yourself to a special branch of the service, for an ounce of expert knowledge in the days that are before you will be worth a pound of general information. The man who is to win the highest place in the navy of the future will be looked up to because he has made himself a master of his specialty. The time will come when expert knowledge will be the chief demand upon you."

The graduates also were reminded that "the old things are passing away and new ones must be devised." The responsibility of providing weapons and strategy to meet the untried possibilities of certain instruments of war, he said, in conclusion, would devolve upon them.

GOING TO CHICAGO

House Members Ready for Final Vote on Naval Appropriation Bill

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Final vote on the naval appropriation bill was the only business before the house today at its last session with a general attendance before the republican convention. Many minority members were ready to leave the house chamber immediately after the balloting this afternoon and catch trains for Chicago.

The house yesterday retained that section of the bill authorizing the United States government to participate in establishment of an international court for maintenance of peace. It also voted an amendment providing not more than $5,000,000 for enlarging navy yards at Boston, Portsmouth, N. H., Charleston, Philadelphia, Norfolk, New Orleans and Puget Sound.

TO BOX FOR $40,000

FRANK MORAN AND JACK DILLON
MATCHED FOR 10 ROUND BOUT FOR NIGHT OF JUNE 20

NEW YORK, June 2.—Frank Moran of Pittsburgh and Jack Dillon of Indianapolis, heavyweight championship contenders, will meet in a 10-round bout at Washington park, Brooklyn, on Thursday night, June 23. The bout was clinched today after many weeks of negotiations, and will be definitely arranged tonight when Ike Dorgan, manager of Moran, and Sam Marburger, director of Dillon's pugilistic affairs, will sign the articles.

Harry Pollok, Dan McKetrick and Jack Curley are the promoters of the bout, and they will give Moran $25,000 for his end of the purse, and Dillon will receive $15,000. Moran will have his choice of 40 per cent. of the gross receipts and Dillon can have 25 for his share, if the amount goes above his guarantee. Five thousand dollars will be posted by the promoters tonight with George Considine to bind the match, and the remainder of the purse will have to be hung up a day or two before the bout takes place.

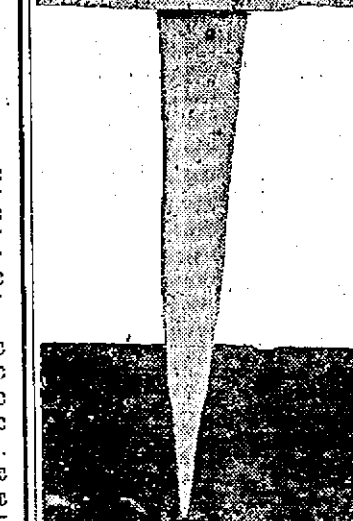

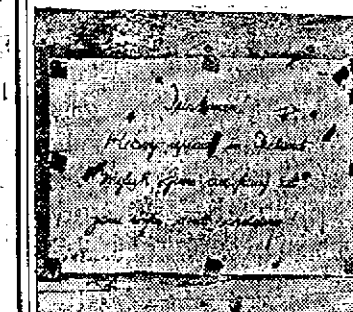

"This is the biggest bout that New York has had since the Moran-Willard go in Madison Square Garden and the promoters are counting on drawing a gate of nearly $100,000, provided the weather is favorable. There are enough seats in Washington park, former home of the Brooklyn Feds, to accommodate 25,000 persons, and extra seats will be built before the bout."

Moran, with his trainer, Willie Lewis, left last night for Saratoga Springs to get into condition. It was there that he prepared himself for his bout with Willard and when he entered the ring he was as perfect physically as he could have been. Dillon has not yet selected his training camp.

The "Man-Killer" from Indianapolis will concede about 40 pounds to Moran, and will weigh probably between 165 and 170, against 205 for the Pittsburgh blonde.

POSTED NOTICE IN BATTLEFIELD GIVING NEWS OF REVOLT IN DUBLIN

NOTICE TO IRISH IN BRITISH ARMY

When the news of the Irish uprising reached the German firing line in France some of the zealous Teutons thought they saw an opportunity to weaken some Irishmen from the British cause. So they erected a placard, which is reproduced herewith, for the Irish to read. The wording runs: "Irishmen! Heavy Up! In Ireland! English guns are firing at your wives and children! The English account of the incident says that the Munsters greeted its appearance with a volley of bullets and the same night made a raid and carried off the placard in triumph. Note the bullet holes in the placard."

A QUARTER CENTURY AGO

The year 1890 was a year of no-licensing in Lowell, and as a result drug stores sprang up in every kind of vacant store and they appeared to thrive, though semi-occasionally some of them would come to grief as the result of an unannounced visit by the liquor officers. When the city went "wet" in the municipal election that year, and license was restored in May, 1891, it was at first believed that the return of the licensed saloon would cause the elimination of the bogus drug stores. Such, however, was not the case, and a quarter of a century ago at this time of year, with the saloons in full blast, there were more drug stores in Lowell than there have been at any time since. In those days there was no sandwich law that made it easy to get a drink on the Sabbath, and the hotels in selling liquor had to take the same chances as were taken by any other no-licensed places, and hence they were inclined to be careful on account of the money invested in their places. Thus, the drug stores, which paid only one dollar license, did a land office business on the Sabbath. The situation relative to the drug store evil in Lowell, quarter of a century ago, was sized up by "Monte Christo," the old Sun's special writer, as follows: "Unless the real estate men get a move on and finish up the buildings already under construction there will not be stores enough to accommodate the local druggists. There is a new drug store opening in Lowell every half hour. We have had a reputation in the past as great manufacturers of patent medicines, but Lowell will soon be known throughout the country as the city where all the people live on drugs and chemicals and buy and sell nothing else. The future bill of fare in Lowell will most likely include, in soup, sarsaparilla chowder, fried porous places."

ters with cool liver dressing, linseed mush with cough syrup, and all that sort of thing. We will soon have a line of drug stores on both sides of Merrimack street, from Bridge street to Pawtucket falls, and an unbroken line from the postoffice to the burying ground. We need them all, we are a very sick crowd, and our city fathers are the cause of it all. Any kind of a character can open a drug store and get a license from the Lowell board of aldermen if he only knows the difference between a porous plaster and a coal dealer.

But the day of the "boozie" drug store has long since passed away and comparatively few of them are complained of in these enlightened times. The state board of pharmacy assisted in cleaning them up. Simon B. Harris, who quarter of a century ago was busily engaged in the good work of cleaning up the roadhouses along the road to Lawrence, subsequently entered the employ of the state board of pharmacy and while on the job was the terror of all liquor selling druggists. It will be recalled that it was over a sale of liquor made in a local drug store, quarter of a century ago, that the supreme court rendered its famous decision absolving the proprietor from responsibility in the event of a clerk disobeying his orders in his absence.

A Quarter Century Novelty
Says The Sun of quarter of a century ago:
"The Channing fraternity connected with the Unitarian church has outlined a plan for a temperance saloon to be opened in this city, and to offer attractions equal to those of the liquor saloons. In the shape of temperance drinks of all kinds, facilities for harmless games, with nourishing soups for the sick and poor. This undoubtedly would do good, if properly conducted, and it is well at least to make the experiment in order to ascertain how far such a saloon would be patronized and whether it will draw any of those who frequent the liquor saloons."

Well-meaning, enthusiastic, but unsophisticated were those good people of the Channing fraternity, of quarter of a century ago, when they attempted to furnish a rival for liquor without a kick in it. They might have installed a cabaret, or have brought Mary Pickford or Charlie Chaplin here, in person, but unless they put a stick in the flowing bowl they didn't have a burlgar's chance to beat out old John Barleycorn in a race for popularity. But there's no denying the fact that conditions relative to the sale of liquor have improved remarkably in quarter of a century, and there has been an additional improvement since the beginning of the present year.

My fingers were drawn toward the palm of my hands, the knuckles enlarged and it was impossible to straighten them. My shoulders were stiff and painful, as well as the muscles from my head to my shoulder. My knees gave me a great deal of trouble on account of stiffness and pain. It was impossible to go up or down stairs without great effort. After remaining quiet I could hardly move because of the stiffness. I had to use crutches to get about.

THE WALKER MEMORIAL

BUILDING WILL OCCUPY THE MIDDLE OF THE CHARLES RIVER BASIN FRONT

Ground has been broken for the Walker Memorial of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the corner stone will be laid on Monday, June 12 at 2 p. m. In the presence of some thousands of alumni from all parts of the country in the fulfillment of a plan which has been next the hearts of the alumni for a number of years.

The building is to occupy the middle of the Charles river basin front of the Technology and carries out the same ideas and the same classic style and in the same warm-tinted limestone, will be restful to the eye and at the same time will be convenient for the social uses which the club of all-Technology requires. There will be a great dining hall, the largest in Greater Boston, which will readily seat eight or nine hundred, smaller refectories scattered about in other parts of the building, a vast gymnasium in which the cadet corps could perform its evolutions in a satisfactory and grand way for mass meetings, so arranged as to afford a great series of living rooms for the students, who, under the new conditions, will have supplied to them the one feature that Technology life has lacked to a considerable extent, the opportunity for the students to get together under favorable conditions for personal intercourse.

The Walker Memorial will have rooms galore for the accommodations of the student activities of which there are more than thirty, a library, some space reserved for the instructing staff, rooms and courts for indoor sports, and will be in fact the great building ground for the twenty-five hundred individuals who will form the Technology family when it gets moved to its new home.

The beginnings of the construction have of necessity been delayed till now, and it will obviously be impossible to have the Memorial complete by the time of the dedication exercises on June 12, 13 and 14 next, but the preliminary building of the structure will be ready for the students when they assemble in the fall, and these will include the dining hall and gymnasium. Two or three months later the whole building will be at the service of the students.

The Walker Memorial was suggested shortly after the death of President Walker, and a fund was subscribed which touched about $100,000. It was to be a memorial that was peculiarly appropriate since in his life and while he was president he realized the fundamental need of the Institute for what may be termed a social side. Without dormitories, with the students scattered through homes and lodging houses in every part of greater Boston, there could be no student life distinctive of the college. It was an idea of his to correct the need, but at the time it was the existence of Technology that was General Walker's chief care, so that the luxury of student accommodations could not come during his day.

There were associated with the original idea some plans with reference to gymnasium, student restaurant and the like. This was in the days of a Technology of much smaller proportions than now. Presently there was developed a plan for providing meals. This has become a permanent feature of Institute administration, and contrary to the experience of some other colleges has proved a financial success, and moreover has furnished a number of students with the wherewithal to get through the school. In providing a building for the restaurant it was easy to make a great living room and here the students have fared fairly well in expectation of greater things. Meanwhile there came the unrest due to the fact that the Institute, on account of its rapid growth, must presently seek another home for itself. Thus it is that although plans were once actually drawn for a memorial building to be located on Trinity Place it was deemed best to defer the construction of the memorial till the future home of Technology should be decided.

This has been done and the educational structures are complete in outward form so that the Walker Memorial is next in order, and the plans of the proposed building have been approved informally by the authorities. It is the presentation of the Walker Memorial according to the original idea of a students' club house. The memorial is to be a noble building of three stories the cost of which will be above half a million dollars. A portion of the fund is in hand and the alumni will be asked to see that the construction does not lag, and from their past records it is evident from the beginning that their subscriptions will be all sufficient for the purpose.

The Esplanade front of the memorial will be simple and in keeping with the educational buildings in architecture, with a great engaged porch of half-a-dozen massive columns. Entering the visitor will find himself in a spacious tripartite lobby, with a great lounge or sitting room, and the equally large library and reading room on the other. Straight ahead will be the dining hall with its 9,000 square feet of floor room, back of which are the kitchen and service rooms. The building is U-shaped in form, the dining room being in the bridge. Engineers will describe it as an I-beam in section with an exaggerated web. The dining hall goes on through two stories, the second forming a balcony, useful in general as affording consultation niches and on social occasions for the great hall will be used for mass meetings, dances and other great student functions—will afford a splendid vantage ground from which to see what is going on.

Overhead there will be the gymnasium and dozens of little rooms for societies or special purposes. There will be a basement with alleys, rifle range, big kitchen and bakery, storage rooms and the check rooms, utility offices, administration, etc.

With the athletic field so close at hand, it will be later constitutions and showers and a field house, so that the big gymnasium in Walker Memorial will presently be relieved of its outdoor athletic company which it will

SLEEPYTIME TALES

THE MAYFLOWER OUTING

Once upon a time the "Three E" children's father said at breakfast-time: "Children if you can be ready in half an hour I will take you with me today into the country. I have to go on business and the trip will take me very near the woods where you children can hunt for Mayflowers."

The children were very pleased that they could go for they always enjoyed the trips they took with their father and in a short time they were tucked away in the bottom of the wagon which their father had covered with straw. Their mother had given them a big box of lunch and Eric was watching it as though he knew he was going to get some of it instead of the dog biscuit he always ate at home.

Edna told them a story as they rode along and before they knew it they were at the edge of the wood and father was out tying the horse to a tree near by. How good the woods smelled! They found plenty of flowers, but they didn't pick any of them but ran off to look for Mayflowers. They had to hunt hard for them and push back the soft earth and find which had covered them all winter. Some were pale pink, almost white, and when they were put in a bunch together they looked very pretty and the children agreed to take them home to their mother.

Edna had brought a basket and after they had gathered the bunch for their mother they put the rest into a basket to take home to their other friends.

Edward heard his father call and ran to meet him while Edna and little Ethel spread out the lunch on a mossy rock near a cool spring. What a lunch it was and how the children did eat. Eric was given a chicken bone as a special treat which he took with a wag of his tail and then ran off to eat it all by himself under a tree. When they had finished they washed their hands in the brook and soon they were ready to play in the woods until father was ready to go home.

All at once they heard Eric bark and they ran to see what he was barking at. They found the dog watching a hole and barking as hard as he could and digging with his paws at the same time. Their father said he thought it was a woodchuck's hole but it was Mr. Woodchuck's hole enough to stay away in it while Eric was around.

THE OBJECT OF POPE BENEDICT IN HIS EFFORTS TO END WAR, SAYS PAPAL SECRETARY

ROME, via Paris, June 2.—Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, in an interview today with a representative of the Associated Press, declared that the pope was influenced in his peace efforts solely by a desire to stop the "suicide of Europe."

"The holy father," said the cardinal, "in his most ardent desire for peace has no particular interest in view, despite what newspapers that are enemies of peace are endeavoring to say. If peace is concluded through the friendly intervention of the president of the great American republic or through his Catholic majesty, the king of Spain, his holiness will equally thank the Almighty that an end should at last have been put to the butchery which is the suicide of Europe."

THE PHAROAHS

War Revives Historical Associations in Forgotten Town

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 2.—El Arish, one of the world's forgotten places until the English bombarded it a few years ago, is the subject of a war geography bulletin, issued today by the National Geographic society from its Washington headquarters, which says:

"With its large square fort and battlement walls, El Arish presents a much more formidable and imposing appearance, viewed from the Mediterranean to the north and from the Desert et-Tih to the south, than its importance has warranted in recent years. Formerly a populous halting place for the numerous caravans following the 'short desert route' from Egypt to Syria, its trade has waned materially since the completion of modern railway connections with Jaffa, Port Said and Alexandria. The town clings to the banks of the Wadi-el-Arish, a stream which becomes a small torrent after every rain. It is more than a hundred miles south-west of Jerusalem and a slightly shorter distance from the Suez canal, which lies to the west.

"The recent hostilities in this area revive a host of historical associations dating as far back as the time of the Pharaohs when this town was a place of exile for political prisoners, its ancient name being Rhinokouria. Its present name is supposed to be derived from the custom which obtained here of 'cutting off the noses' of malefactors whose death sentences had been commuted.

"Some 30 miles to the east of El

Arish, on the Egyptian-Syrian boundary, lies ancient Raphia, now called Er-Rafa, where Josephus tells us that the Roman conqueror Titus made his first stop on his march against Jerusalem. Here also Sargon overwhelmed the Egyptians in the eighth century before the Christian era, and 500 years later there was fought on the same sands the famous battle between Ptolemy, Philopator and Antiochus, when the charging elephants of both armies of these great beasts, which had been introduced into Syrian and Greek warfare after Alexander's conquests in India, much was expected. The battle opened with a trumpeting dash of the opposing armoured mountains of flesh, Ptolemy's forces commanding 13 of the terror-inspiring chargers while Antiochus sent into the fray 102. With the first onslaught practically all of Ptolemy's elephants were captured, yet he won the day.

"El Arish fell before Napoleon's Egyptian army in September, 1798, the credit for the city's fall being given to France's great general, Kleber, commander of the vanguard which also seized Jaffa and Gaza. It was during this campaign that Napoleon committed the great atrocity at Jaffa, shooting those prisoners whom he could neither guard nor feed, yet whom he feared to release. After Napoleon's departure Kleber concluded a convention at El Arish with the English admiral Sir William Sidney Smith, whereby the French were to be allowed to capitulate and were to receive safe transport back to France. This agreement was revoked by Lord Keith, however. Whereupon Kleber with 10,000 men marched to Heliopolis and administered a crushing defeat to the Turks who outnumbered him 6 to 1. Had not a fanatic assassinated the great French scientist on the day that Napoleon won the battle of Marengo, the fate of French arms in Egypt might have been different.

"The admiral Smith whose agreement with Kleber was disallowed was the same British officer who had caused the signal defeat of Napoleon before the walls of Acre, a relief work for which a grateful parliament voted him an annuity of 2 thousand pounds.

"In the center of the town of El Arish is a granite wall with an inscription in hieroglyphics, perpetuating a curious legend about the Egyptian god Shu. A short distance beyond the walls the traveler is shown the ruins of the building in which Balawia I., one of the Crusader kings of Jerusalem, died in 1113, after an unsuccessful attack on Egypt."

BRAVE DEFENSE

150 British Soldiers Held Positions Against Great Odds

LONDON, June 2.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—The defense by the British at the Egyptian desert post at El-Dueidai during the Turkish raid of April 23 deserves to be chronicled as among the memorable incidents of the war, according to Reuters' special correspondent at the general headquarters of the Egyptian expeditionary force. On that Sunday 150 British soldiers held a position far too extended for such a small garrison, against a force of Turks and Arabs six times their own number, says the correspondent.

The location of defense is a small oasis in a depression in the sandy waste about 13 miles east of the Suez canal. The British had erected two redoubts and several small isolated posts in the vicinity of a grove of date palms. These defenses were not completed at the time of the raid.

In a mist so thick that the defenders were barely able to discern the burly, white-faceted heads of their redoubts, the attack began at 8 o'clock in the morning. Rifle fire beat back the first assault very quickly, according to the correspondent, the Turks retreating to reform.

Capt. Roberts of the Royal Scots Fusiliers was in command. In the absence of communication trenches, he was unable, after the mist lifted at 9 o'clock to send reinforcements, ammunition and messages to the isolated posts, as the attackers' rifle and machine gun fire swept the intervening spaces. One post was held by eight men, three of whom were wounded early in the engagement. To the extreme right, some of the British lay out in the open and fought off enemy attempts to reach the rear of the defenses.

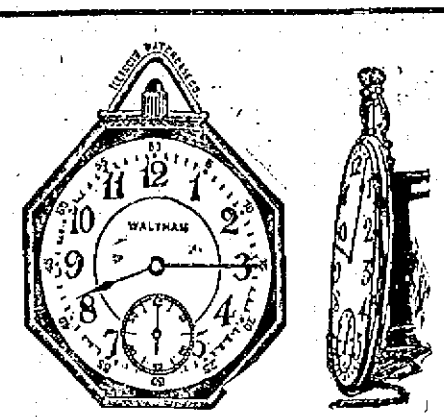

Returning to the attack, the enemy brought up a mountain gun and with it mercilessly shelled the oasis, but, according to the correspondent, the aim was wretched and little damage was done. From a ridge to the left a machine gun raked the eastern range of the oasis.

The attacking force numbered 120 Turkish camel corps and about 150 Arabs, together with two machine guns and 60 artillerymen. The British, after holding their positions throughout the day, resisted the final and most desperate attack which began at 7 o'clock at night, this assault consisting of three rushes. When it had been beaten off, most of the enemy dead were found within fifty yards of the British trench, one Turk being found within twenty yards. The defenders had suffered a great many casualties.

Meanwhile news of the attack had reached brigade headquarters, seven miles away, and two companies of infantry had been sent to the garrison, which they reached about 9 o'clock after a trying march through deep sand. The officer commanding these fresh troops had orders to make the offensive at the first opportunity and drive off the enemy but found that the latter was too strong, and further infantry reinforcements were despatched from brigade headquarters, while two squadrons of Australian Light Horse hurried up from a place eighteen miles away.

Before the arrival of these last reinforcements, however, the Turks and Arabs began to fall back, and a British counter-attack drove off the rear-guard, twelve of the enemy being captured. The Australian Light Horse assisted in the full retreat but were unable to overtake the camels on which the enemy was mounted.

The Turks and Arabs lost 70 dead, one wounded and 31 prisoners, according to the correspondent who does not state the British casualties. The latter included Capt. A. C. A. Brace, of the Army Service Corps, the only officer of the original garrison killed, and Lieut. Crawford, of the Royal Scots Fusiliers, wounded. Capt. Brace met death while trying to rescue Lieut. Crawford, who was lying on the sand, exposed to a deadly fire.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Nursing bottles should be so constructed that the inner surface should contain no corners to collect milk. After each feeding the bottle should be scrubbed with a bottle brush with soapy water and filled with water containing bleaching powder until time to boil them before re-filling with the next day's supply. They should all be put on the table before putting in a kettle and covered with cold water, and allowed to boil.

The best remedy for baby's cold is to give a dose of castor oil. Then apply camphorated oil under the nose, across the bridge of the nose and across the forehead. This often relieves the difficulty breathing. Another method of giving relief is to wrap absorbent cotton saturated with melted white vaseline around a small stick, insert grease well each nostril. Keep a small orange wood stick for this purpose only.

The first bath to be put on the baby in the summer should contain some wool, and the shirt should certainly be of a medium weight. The child should be kept as cool as possible, although you should keep the band containing some wool over the abdomen during the extreme weather. It is wise to sponge the entire surface of the body several times a day during the extreme weather.

Nowadays the fond mother begins from almost the day of her baby's birth to keep a card book for its future inspection. This needs must be a large volume, for into it go all of the correspondence cards, of congratulations to the parents, the birth announcements of contemporary infants, the visiting cards attached to flowers and gifts, and all holiday and simple exercises. Mothers must learn to refrain from meddling and let the little ones learn to do their own lessons. When a child has already learned, unfortunately, to ask for help, one must try at once to undo this evil tendency by providing simpler and simpler exercises. Mothers through making a very slight effort "all himself" the child learns the joy of self-conquering and re-acquires his natural taste for independence. Healthy, normal children give no trouble of this kind. The average child always says: "Let me do it." Mothers must learn to be patient enough to let him do it. This is not to be considered "unbridled child liberty," but simply heading him in the right direction.

The clothing of the boy is the problem that confronts most home dress makers. From the time the wee baby starts to creep mother begins to think: "What shall I do to make his clothes look different from sister's?" There are several ways of changing the first short dresses and here, too, might be mentioned, it is the wise mother who makes the very first dresses with armholes sufficiently large to fit a year-old baby and the neckbands in like proportion, for these dresses may be shortened with the addition of cuffs and a turn-down collar, these dresses are not only fit for several months' wear, but have quite a boyish air. Make the cuffs very long and turn them up; the little arms will all too soon outgrow them.

No more bumped baby heads from falling against unrelenting crib sides. The new padded adjustable cushions have banished that sorrow forever, so that one burden is lifted from the anxious mother's heart. The pads come in sets already made, are of quilted muslin with crocheted edges, and have tape to hold them in place. They launder splendidly.

A child's skull is but little more than putty in substance and it is up to the mother to make it shapely. There is not the least excuse for any child having an ugly nose. The tiny bodies are so plastic that it is only necessary to force the will and determination to make them anything one wishes them to be. Home massage under the instruction of a nurse or doctor is the foundation for your little girl's future beauty and your son's straight shoulders and strong body.

A beauty specialist declares that any mother can make her baby have curly hair by always brushing the hair backward when it is damp and washing it from the forehead instead of the way the hair grows. She says ringlets and waves are trained.

When a child likes or craves sweets it is the usual excuse of an indulgent parent. Every child likes his own way, but that is no reason why he should not be trained to obedience and self control. A child's fondness for sweets can hardly be considered a normal instinct. As a matter of fact, supported by every day experience, no causes are productive of more disorders of digestion than the free indulgence in desserts and sweets by young children. It is a constantly increasing tendency, not easily controlled, as a child grows older and in early childhood, the only safe rule is to give none at all.

A nursing mother should lead a simple, natural life, should have regular out-of-door exercise, preferably walking or driving; as soon after her confinement as her condition will permit. She should be as free as possible from unnecessary cares and worry. Her rest at night should be disturbed as little as possible, she should go to bed early and lie down for at least one hour in the middle of the day. A nursing mother has the child's health in her own hands, and should use every precaution to live correctly.

If a child is two or more years old, the only effective means of weaning from the bottle is through hunger. The bottle should be taken away at once and entirely, and nothing allowed except milk from a cup until the child takes this willingly. Sometimes a child will go a entire day without food, occasionally as long as two days, but one should not be alarmed on this account and yield. This is a matter of the child's will and not of his digestion, and when once he has been conquered it is seldom that any further trouble is experienced.

Few mothers realize how to properly lift their children. When a young baby is to be lifted from its bed, the right hand should grasp the clothing below the feet, and the left hand should be slipped beneath the infant's body to its head. It is then raised upon the left arm. This method is the best because the entire spine is supported, and no undue pressure is made upon the chest or abdomen, as often happens if the baby is grasped around the body or under the arms.

IN MILADY'S BOUDOIR

HOW TO WASH YOUR FACE

If you wash your face in the wrong way every day for a year you won't be as pretty a girl at the end of that time as you were at the beginning. Your skin will be coarsened and your color spoiled, and if you look at yourself in a good light you will see many little wrinkles.

This is the right way of washing your face:

Start by bathing it in clear hot water.

Apply a little good, pure soap to a soft flannel or your fingers, and go thoroughly well over your face with this:

Rinse the soap off again with hot water.

Sponge your face lightly with cool—not cold—water.

Dry your face downward. Perhaps you don't know that by careless rubbing upward you can very soon spoil the shape of your nose.

Brush or comb your eyebrows, which will have become a little rumpled with the drying of your face. If you leave them as they are they will grow into bad lines.

It is not necessary to use soap on your face more than once a day. If you come home at night with a thoroughly grubby face and neck, you can cleanse them best by rubbing a little pure toilet cream all over them and then taking this off again with a bit of soft rag. The grease will bring the dirt away wonderfully. After you have wiped it all off, bathe your face in warm water.

If you are very pale it is a good thing to splash cold water up into your face when you have finished washing. Throw it up briskly with both hands from the basin.

HELP FOR WORKING WOMEN

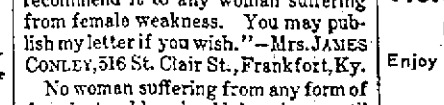

Some Have to Keep on Until They Almost Drop. How Mrs. Conley Got Help.

Here is a letter from a woman who had to work, but was too weak and suffered too much to continue. How she regained health:—

Frankfort, Ky.—"I suffered so much with female weakness that I could not do my own work. I had to hire it done. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I tried it. I took three bottles and I found it to be all my claim. Now I feel as well as ever I did and am able to do all my own work again. I recommend it to any woman suffering from female weakness. You may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. JAMES CONLEY, 316 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. All women are invited to inspect the laboratory of the Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass. It is interesting and instructive.

LOWELL SHUT OUT AGAIN

Planters Play Superior Baseball and Inflict Second Whitewash in Two Days

A repetition of Wednesday's matinee performance at Spalding park was presented to nearly 1000 fans yesterday afternoon when Lowell was gooseegged for the second time in succession by the New London team. As on the previous day, the score was 6 to 0.

With Martin, a youngster with a southpaw delivery, on the mound for the Planters, Lowell didn't have a chance. Not a Lowell man reached third base during the nine long innings of play and but two of the home team reached second. Two clean hits and three scratches were all that Lord's sluggers could register while the hard hitting visiting aggregation found Matty Zieser for 13 safeties.

A change was made in the Lowell lineup and this did not prove of any benefit toward checking the speed of the league leaders. Torphy went back to shortstop with a sore finger and Downey went over to first while Greenhalge remained on the pivot sack. Munn, who has been making a strikeout record against left handers of late, was given a day off. Two of the runs came following misplays by the Lowell team. Better all round work won for the visitors, however, Lowell being outplayed in every department.

First Inning
Gloom came over the Lowell fans in the first inning when the visitors sent a man over the plate while Lord's aggregation had to be satisfied with a big cipher. Kane's poor judgment of Welser's high fly in right field gave the New London left fielder a triple on which Dowd scored. The local players went out in the one, two, three order.

Marhefka hit one too hot for Lord to handle and he reached first but was forced at second on Dowd's grounder to Lord. Welser sent a high fly to right garden but Kane misjudged it and Welser traveled to third, Dowd scoring. Welser was forced at the plate on Whitehouse's grounder to Zieser. Whitehouse tried to steal second and was thrown out. Kuhlmann to Torphy.

One run, two hits, no errors.
In Lowell's half Lord fled to Becker and Stimpson went out on strikes. Greenhalge sent a grounder to O'Connell and never had a look at first.
No runs, no hits, no errors.
Score: Lowell 0, New London 1.

Second Inning
There was nothing doing on either side in the second inning. Rodriguez opened with a drive to Zieser who threw the runner out at first. Becker singled to left and stole second. Zieser after two unsuccessful attempts to get Becker at second nailed him on the third try. Torphy tagging the speedy visitor off the bag. O'Connell was third out on strikes.

No runs, one hit, no errors.
In the latter half of the inning Barrows sent a grounder to Rodriguez and was out at first, Martin covering the bag. Downey reached first on a pretty single to the left field fence. Kane drew a free pass and Downey went to second. Kuhlmann hit a long fly out to centre which Whitehouse nabbed. Torphy struck out.

No runs, one hit, no errors.
Score: New London 1, Lowell 0.

Third Inning
The visitors scored another run in the third, while a goose egg was registered for the home team. Rodriguez, first baseman for the New London team, injured his hand when he ran against the fence near the first base bleachers while trying to gather in a foul fly off Lord's bat, but he returned to his position at first after a few minutes' delay.

Russell opened the third with a single to left field. Martin attempted to race him with the result that Russell was forced at second, Zieser getting the ball and sending it to Torphy in time to get the runner. Marhefka struck out and Dowd reached first on four balls. Welser singled to right centre field and Martin came home. Whitehouse opened the third with a single to left field. DIAMOND GOSSIP

The Braves showed signs of life and beat the Brooklyn leaders in a double header. Both Ragan and Rudolph were too much for the Dodgers.

New York passed up a chance to tie Brooklyn for first place by dropping a game to Philadelphia.

"Babe" Ruth and Walter Johnson fought a great pitching duel in Boston yesterday, the only run of the game being made by the Red Sox in the eighth as a result of misplays. The duel was something similar to the one between Johnson and "Doc" Ward about three seasons ago.

Joe Jackson of the White Sox is making a record. Yesterday he got a triple, two singles and a base on balls in four time up, making a total of nine safeties registered by him in as many consecutive times at the bat.

Clyde Engel, who for a time considered coming to Lowell with Manager Lord, substituted in right field for Cleveland in the second game of a double header.

If Boston continues to win as it has the past week the team will soon be in the race for first place. With Cleveland, Washington, New York and Boston hunched at the top, there would surely be something doing.

O'Neill, the Indians' regular catcher, will be remembered as a member of the Worcester team in the old New England league three or four seasons back. O'Neill was only a youngster then but he was picked up by Cleveland and is now the first string catcher.

Strunk, McNuls and Oldring are the only names in Connie Mack's lineup that can be connected with the last world's series in which the Athletics participated.

Mike McNally, who is taking the place of Barry at second for the Red Sox, continued his fine work yesterday and scored the only run of the game by a wonderful sprint from second. McNally was discovered by Patsy Donovan in 1913. Donovan saw him at Africa and then Mike was purchased. He was with St. Paul under an optional agreement in 1914 and last year he was with Providence. He bails from Minooka, Pa.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM OFF

The members of the Lowell high school team left today for Derry, N. H., where a game will be played with the Pinkerton academy nine this afternoon. The team will remain in Derry over night and journey to Manchester tomorrow to play the high school team of that city. The following players went: Capt. Lynch, Liston, A. Goodall, Fatis, Muino, Switzer, Desmond, Condon, Hayward, Callahan and Mansur.

Ross, a young twirler from the Springfield City league.

Manager Louis Pieper has protested the Lynn-Worcester game Monday afternoon on account of Umpire Jack Stafford allowing Pitcher Herring to go into the game when he had been taken out. It is claimed that Herring was called to the bench and was to be replaced by "Lefty" Smith. The latter had previously been ordered from the coaching lines and had been called to the bench and was to be replaced by "Lefty" Smith. Walter Loneragan is making good at shortstop for Portland. He is covering a lot of ground and is helping out Tamm at third, who is considered a little slow.

Jake Boules, who failed to obtain a hit for Hartford in two games, has been released by Manager Wagner. Hartford has secured two new men, Holmes and Nye, from the International league and both look like the goods.

Courtney, the outfielder recently released by Worcester, has caught on with New Haven and is taking the place of Corcoran.

Manager Ball of Bridgeport continues to shift around his team in an effort to land a winner. He has just signed Werre, a promising left-handed youngster, to cover the first sack.

outfielder and pinch hitter. He was born in Harrisburg 23 years ago. He obtained his early training at Charlotte, in the North Carolina league, where he led in batting in 1914. He besides, Hartford, was the only recruit kept by Moran last year.

"Cuke" Barrows is not hitting the ball in his old time form as yet. He experienced the same trouble early in the season last year and it was thought that the burden of the managerial duties affected him. Barrows has not struck out in a home game yet this year, but he hits the ball straight at someone, usually an outfielder. With "Cuke" batting better, opposing pitchers would not find Lowell so easy.

BOSTON, June 1.—The British consul-general, Frederick P. Leay, today issued the following statement: "A telegram has been received at the foreign office, London, from Lebanon and Syrians, Fall River, stating there is famine in Lebanon and asking why England is delaying help. As no address is given his majesty's consul-general at Boston has been instructed to make public through the press the following reply: 'Sir Edward Grey only received reports of conditions referred to on May 27. It appears that famine is due to a drought of Turkish troops drawn across country with the deliberate object of preventing the introduction of food. ADVANCES AT OUTSET

HALF HOUR BEFORE END OF FIRST

HALF HOUR—MEXICAN SITUATION AFFECTS MARKET

NEW YORK, June 1.—The Mexican situation was again the overshadowing feature at the resumption of trading today, Mexican petroleum soon yielding 2 1/2 points, with heaviness in other speculative issues. There were nominal advances in Readings, Leitch Valley, Great Northern pf, United States and Crumple steels as well as Mercantile machine pf, while Beet Sugar rose a full point with Chandler motors. All of these gains were lost before the end of the first half hour, the list in general becoming more reactionary on increased activity.

On the reversal Reading lost a point with two, Leitch Valley, Leitch Valley, Nashville, and "Soa" while Butte & Superior, American zinc, Tennessee copper and Continental Can were down 1 to 2 points, with 4 1/2 for Bethlehem steel. Pressure relaxed later and prices rallied quite generally with a continuance of activity in Beet Sugar and Leitch Valley. Steel issues which fell on Gulf States steel issues which rose 2 to 5 points. Marine pf, also improved on publication of a statement outlining the company's large cash resources and United Fruit rose substantially. Trading halted on the recovery, which was well maintained. Bonds were steady.

Little change occurred during the full mid-session, aside from further gains in minor specialties. Trading was restrained by advices from Washington, which indicated increasing tension respecting Mexican affairs.

The market was at its best in the final hour, rails being the chief features under the lead of Norfolk & Western, which advanced 5 points. The closing was strong.

BIG DOWEY MEETING HELD

About 700 Men Promise to Assist Billy Sunday Campaign—Parade Before Lecture

About 700 men stood up in the First Congregational church last night to be counted as active workers in the campaign to put 50,000 men in New England into Men's Bible classes before Billy Sunday comes to Boston. The men who stood up to be counted answered the call of Rev. George G. Dowe, of Philadelphia, the man at the head of the Men's Bible class campaign. Last night's meeting aimed at constructing a mechanism of men who shall personally work to increase the number of active participants in Bible class work. It was decided to begin at once a four weeks' campaign to mobilize for Bible class work.

Prior to the meeting about 400 men marched through the main streets of the city, led by the drum corps of the Pawtucketville Boy Scouts. The meeting opened at 8 o'clock and a chorus of 35 voices sang the Sunday songs.

SOCRATES

make sure, it gets results. Hundreds and thousands are pricked in their consciences, brought to confession of their sins and there follows a presentation of themselves in the churches. Day laborers, high brows, school teachers, saloon keepers, policemen, all of them get the feeling that Sunday campaigning means something to them and it does. You couldn't bamboozle and hypnotize a crew like that into following the trail. You can't strike so many different kinds with just hot air. No, it isn't hot air. It's a real message that strikes every kind of a man and woman in this world.

Bible Class Movement

"Now a word about this Bible class movement. A little over a year ago we had 12,000 men in the Bible classes of Philadelphia. Today we have 55,000, and the number is still growing. I am a Reformed Episcopalian, a member of a church which has but 10 congregations. It's a very conservative church, and it looks at things from all angles before a move is made. But, let me tell you, that church went into the Sunday campaign with both feet. When the Bible class campaign ended, a year ago last April, we had 542 members in our Men's Bible classes. Were they genuine, sincere, did they know what they were doing when they went in? Barring those who died, or moved away, or slipped back, they all have stayed, and 200 more have come in since that time. Let me tell you that they constitute over 600 assistant pastors in that church.

"Have you the qualities in your church that will make them stick? It won't do you or Lowell any good unless you get fired up with true zeal. We show them how to do good—simply trying to be good. In Philadelphia thousands of men are not wasting time being good, they are doing good.

The Booze Dealers

"Booze dealers and distillers are going around to their conventions now, throwing out their chests and saying that Philadelphia is getting normal again. They hope it is, but it isn't. They are liars, and liars by the reports of Uncle Sam, and he isn't putting out the reports from any high moral purpose. Those reports show that 70,000 barrels of beer fewer than were delivered a year ago are being sold in Philadelphia today. When you put such a dent into the booze business that it sells 70,000 fewer barrels of booze in a year than it did a year ago, then the campaign means something vital. I don't know what you up here will call it, but I call it a revival of religion.

"There will be three things with relation to this revival which must be very marked. They are preparation, production and conservation.

"The program for the Boston campaign is 50 Bible classes with 1000 men in each class, or 50,000 men in Bible classes altogether. They told me that New England would be stiff and cold. Well, I told them that folks are folks, all over the world, and that I didn't believe it, and I don't. I can get men into my Bible classes who have never heard Mr. Sunday. This Bible

"ATTENDANCE AT MASS" PLANS FOR CONVENTION

Instructive and Eloquent Sermon By Rev. Fr. Mackin, O. P., at St. Michael's

Since the opening of the mission for women at St. Michael's church, the congregation both at the morning and evening services has taxed the church to its capacity. This great interest is partly due to the fame of the Dominican fathers as missionaries and thus far they have surpassed all expectations. Many women from the other parishes of the city attend the services. The sermon last evening was on "Attendance at Mass On Sunday" and was preached by Rev. Fr. Mackin, O. P., who said, in part, as follows:

"I will give you a clean oblation that shall be offered up from the rising of the sun to the going down of the sun. The sacrifice of the mass is the greatest act of worship a human being can offer to God. It is the highest form of sacrifice and sacrifice is the culmination of religion. The ground of every religion, Pagan, Jewish or Christian is sacrifice. The more perfect the religion, the more perfect is its sacrifice. Because our religion is from Christ, it is the most perfect of all religions, hence its sacrifice is the most perfect—the clean oblation 'that is offered from the rising of the sun to the going down of the sun.'

In childhood you were taught in Sunday school the meaning of a sacrifice. It is the offering up of a living being to God by a priest, and the consuming of it to acknowledge God's dominion over it and all creatures. Holy mass is all that. Here we have the altar, the priest, the victim—the consecrated host, the living, throbbing body and blood, soul and divinity of Christ Himself. At the consecration Christ offers himself to the Eternal Father for your sins. At the communion His sacred body is consumed, annihilated, sacrificed for the sins of the world. Does this give you any idea of the greatness of the mass?

Every human being who has reached the use of reason owes certain duties to God. To love God, to worship God, to thank God for favors received and to atone for past offenses or negligences. The sacrifice of the mass is a sacrifice of love, thanksgiving, prayer and atonement. When you hear mass you are fulfilling at once these four duties. How often do you hear mass?

In six days God made the world. He rested on the seventh. By His law we also are commanded to rest and keep holy each seventh day. We are commanded by the church to offer each seventh day the adorable sacrifice of the mass in love and thanksgiving, in adoration and atonement for the sins of the week. Instead of obeying God's law and the law of the church, too many men and women spend the day riotously, spend it in pleasure seeking, in vain amusements. How will these plead their cause on judgment day? Remember it is not a human, but a divine law that is broken when we neglect to hear mass on Sunday.

The love of God is implanted in every human heart that has not been put to sleep by sin or by indifference. We naturally love those who are kind to us and who is kinder to us than God?

If we were to ascend a lofty mountain peak and standing on its summit look afar off, beholding other noble heights, if we gazed from the mountain top into the vaults of heaven where the stars, God's lamps, blazed forth one after the other, if we stop to think of the grandeur and majesty of it all, surely we are filled with wonder and admiration and if we can find words to express our sentiments, we will exclaim, 'My God, I love and adore Thee!' It is a natural feeling to adore God who made all things great and small.

Suppose a woman is in danger at sea. Tossing about on the mighty waves, she fears every moment she will be thrown into the angry deep. With trembling heart she prays that God will save her. Why? It is a natural duty to pray, a natural prompting of the heart. The storm ceases. The mother is saved. Once more she enters the family circle, she embraces her little ones. She is safe at home. What does she do? What would you do? If there is a spark of gratitude in her heart she will thank God for her rescue. It is a natural duty to be grateful to those who have benefited us.

Now, what does this same woman do when a voice within tells her that she has broken God's law and is bound to make amends?

Women's Meeting There was a large attendance at the meeting for women conducted by Rev. George G. Dowe at the First Congregational church yesterday afternoon. His address was devoted entirely to the results of the Sunday revival in Philadelphia and the movement of organized Bible study which followed and is still in progress. He said that following the Sunday campaign the additions to the churches of the city were tremendous. Taking 100 of the average churches as an example, he said that 12,000 people joined those 100 churches as a result of the Sunday meetings.

PLANS FOR CONVENTION

Democrats at St. Louis to Elect Temporary Chairman—Glynn and Stone Mentioned

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 2.—The sub-committee on arrangements of the democratic national committee met here today to elect a temporary chairman for the convention and to consider the apportionment of tickets and the assignment of seats to the various delegations. Martin H. Glynn, former governor of New York and William J. Stone, United States senator from Missouri, were among those being considered for temporary chairman, it was said.

The reports of the committees on tickets, decorations, entertainment and various other details also will be submitted to the committee which will be in almost continuous session until the opening of the convention.

They should see to it that their children never neglect the mass, the greatest act of worship man can offer to God.

Is there a thought more sublime than that which brings to our minds the picture of three millions of Catholics in different churches all over the world kneeling with bowed heads as priests everywhere hold aloft the Sacred Heart, three million souls beholding with the eyes of faith the 'Son of God'? Can you imagine anything more sublime?

Cast your eyes on the big pit of Purgatory. At the moment of consecration, the eyes of these suffering souls are riveted on the living victim, on the body of Christ, hoping that through the merits of His suffering their own may be shortened. Can you imagine anything bigger than that? Look into the vault of heaven and behold the angels about the throne of God. Their eyes also are fixed upon the living victim about to spill His blood for the salvation of souls. You behold the Christ in heaven, the church in purgatory, the church on earth, the threefold church of Christ turned to our Blessed Lord dying for us all. Is there anything greater or more sublime?

At the consecration the Eternal Father looks down from heaven. 'This is my beloved Son,' he exclaims, 'in whom I am well pleased.' Of His fullness we have all received. With all His goodness God could give us nothing greater than the mass.

Dear women! From the depths of your heart promise that from this day until you pass into Eternity—you will never through your own fault miss mass on Sundays. Some have always lived up to this obligation. Those who have not should heed now this invitation to be faithful.

At the close of the sermon every woman, standing, promised never to miss mass, through her own fault, on Sunday.

SCOUT DAY TOMORROW Tomorrow will be Scout day for Lowell and about 500 Boy Scouts will carry out a special program at Spalding park. The boys will assemble at city hall at 12:30 o'clock and, headed by the Sixth Regiment band will march to the park through the following streets: Merrimack, Central, Church, High and Rogers.

The exercises at the park will consist of first aid to the injured, fire without matches, antelope race, striking the pan, waterbolting contest, rescue race, pillow fight, fire drill, staff race, tent raising competition and tug-of-war. Mayor O'Donnell, Commissioner Faulkner, Commissioner Leavitt of Boston and Commissioner Shaffer of Worcester will address the boys. The exercises will start promptly at 2 o'clock.

Structure Over Creek Collapsed Under Weight of Train—Many Persons Injured

MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa, June 2.—A despatch to a local newspaper from the scene of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific wreck at Packard, Iowa, states that possibly a score of passengers lost their lives when the passenger train plunged through the bridge. It was stated that the dead will total at least 15.

PACKARD, Ia., June 2.—Two women were killed and ten persons were injured as the result of the collapse of the bridge over Goldwater creek near here, early today, under the weight of the north bound passenger train No. 19 on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad. In addition to the two dead, seven persons are missing and are believed to be dead, either by drowning or as the result of their injuries.

ROOSEVELT AND HUGHES DEATH OF CHILD

DELEGATES ADMIT FIGHT WILL BE BETWEEN THESE TWO CANDIDATES

CHICAGO, June 2.—Republican leaders from all parts of the country are arriving at Chicago on every train and the crowds of politicians in hotel lobbies are increasing proportionately as the time for the republican national convention approaches.

While the managers of the different "favorite son" presidential candidates insist that if they are able to keep their delegates in line no of their number may win, they are beginning to admit that the final contest may develop into a fight to a finish between Roosevelt and Hughes on the floor of the convention.

An informal poll of a number of the states which have candidates indicates that after the first few ballots have been taken and the "favorite sons" begin to drop out of the contest that many of the instructed delegates will go to Roosevelt or Hughes as their second choice.

TWO MEMBERS OF OBLATE ORDER BECOME PRIESTS—OTHER MEMBERS ADVANCED

Both will celebrate their first masses in home churches next Sunday and will return to the novitiate to wait orders from the provincial, Very Rev. Fr. T. Wade Smith, O.M.I.

DEATH OF CHILD

Probably Due to Something it Ate While Alone in the House

A very sad condition of affairs was brought to light this morning in the death of Josephine Pacewicz, 11 months old child of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Pacewicz of 17 Howe street. The deceased infant and her 11-year-old brother were left alone in the house all day Wednesday and whether or not the neglect of the child contributed to the cause of death is not known.

Pacewicz, who conducts a barber shop at 165 East Merrimack street, left his home Tuesday morning, informing his wife that he intended to go to Brockton, but would return about midnight. For some reason or other he did not reach home until Wednesday night.

Wednesday morning Mrs. Pacewicz, fearful that she might lose her position in one of the local mills, decided to go to work and left the 11-month-old infant daughter in the house. During the morning some of the children in the vicinity started to bother the boy and he locked the door and the two remained there without food or attention until the mother returned at night.

Yesterday the infant was taken ill and although two physicians were called in neither was able to save the little one's life, death resulting this morning. The little one died in convulsions, possibly from something it had eaten.

The matter was reported to the Lowell Humane society and also to the police. No evidence of foul play appears. The child was simply neglected.

GERMAN VICTORY IN NORTH SEA---HUNDREDS DROWNED

According to Berlin the British Lost One of Their Latest Dreadnoughts, Two Battle Cruisers, Two Armored Cruisers and Numerous Smaller Craft While a Large Number of British Battleships Were Damaged—Germans Admit Loss of One Battleship and Small Cruiser

German and British battle fleets have clashed in a great engagement. According to Berlin the sea fight resulted disastrously for the British who lost one of their latest dreadnoughts, two battle cruisers, two armored cruisers and numerous smaller craft while a large number of British battleships were damaged.

The Germans admit the loss of one battleship and a small cruiser, while the fate of one cruiser and of some torpedo boats is unknown.

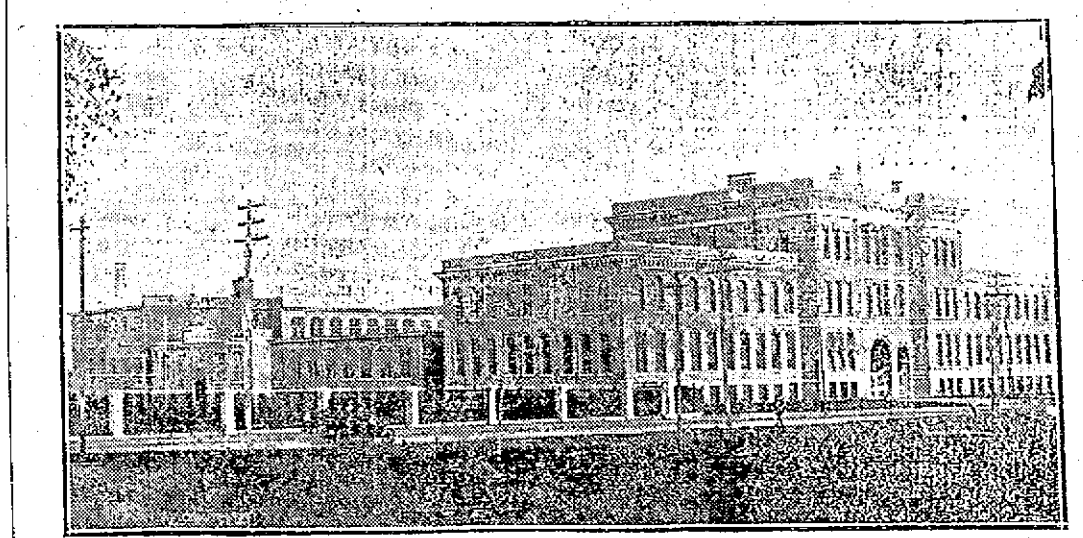

The British dreadnought sunk was the Warspite of the Queen Elizabeth class, a 27,000 ton vessel.

The battle cruisers were the Queen Mary and Indefatigable. The British battleship Marlborough is reported to have been hit by a torpedo.

Parts of Crews Rescued
German warships rescued parts of the crews of the sunken British sea fighters. It is declared that only two of the crew of the battle cruiser Indefatigable were saved.

The losses in the engagement must have been extremely heavy. The battle cruiser Indefatigable for instance,

THE LOWELL TEXTILE SCHOOL

School Confers Degrees on Eight Four Year Students—Lt. Gov. Coolidge's Address—Pres. Cumnock Speaks—The Theses of Students

The commencement exercises of the day class of the Lowell Textile School were held this afternoon in Southwick hall. The speaker of the occasion was Lieut. Gov. Calvin Coolidge. The usual inspection of the school was made in the early afternoon. The inspection included not only the school, but the various articles manufactured by the students and a great many Lowell people who never visited the school before were much interested. The exhibition of the work done by the school is a revelation to them. The school is steadily advancing in the standard and character of its work as well as the standard for admission to its day classes, and the state legislature has so appreciated this fact as to grant the school the power to confer degrees of bachelor of textile engineering (B.T.E.) and bachelor of textile dyeing (B.T.D.) upon those students who satisfactorily complete one of the prescribed four-year courses. The growth of the school has been constant. It opened in February, 1897, with 32 day and 110 evening pupils and January 1, 1916, showed 154 day pupils and 789 evening pupils, or 943 in all.

Hisbard's orchestra opened the exercises this afternoon with "Dramatic Moments," and then followed the address by A. G. Cumnock, president of the board of trustees. After another selection by the orchestra, the speaker of the afternoon, the lieutenant governor, was heard. Messrs. Blisson and Bagley then favored with "The Butterfly," a duo for flute and clarinet. The announcement of awards and presentation of diplomas and degrees was made by Principal Charles H. Eames, and the

Governor Halts Prorogation—
Message Blocks Legislators—
Trading Stamps Measure

BOSTON, June 2.—A special message from Gov. McCall to the state senate at 10.30 last night prevented the prorogation of the Massachusetts legislature, which shortly afterward adjourned at 11 o'clock this morning.

The governor was not satisfied with the action of the senate in referring to the next general court the so-called Davis bill to transfer to the industrial accident board certain powers regarding adequate rates of workmen's compensation insurance.

The result was that His Excellency would not allow the general court to make the "getaway" it had so carefully planned, mock session and all.

The special message was not alone the reason for the governor's decision not to allow prorogation. The "trading stamp" bill was a matter which caused him to devote several hours to hearing interested parties on both sides. Some of the most prominent attorneys in the state were included in the delegations that called upon him late in the afternoon and came back in the evening at his request. The governor had not acted on the bill when he left for his home.

Other bills not signed by the governor when the prorogation program was abandoned included the measure to provide that at least one member of the minimum wage commission shall be a woman and also the bill to change the distribution of the corporate franchise tax measure assessed on public service corporations.

Governor's Special Message

In his special message the governor said: "I have already called the attention of the members of the general court in two messages to what I consider an imperative demand for legislation at this session.

"I can add nothing to what I said in my message to the honorable senate and house of representatives on April 21 relative to the necessity of transferring to the board of labor and industries and the industrial accident board, acting as a joint board charged with the duty of bringing about a reduction in the number of injuries to workers and of occupational diseases.

"I again recommend that an act be passed transferring the powers and duties of this joint board to either the industrial accident board or the board of labor and industries in order to make less the fearful toll in human life and in the efficiency of workers.

"I also again recommend that any doubt as to the application to the workmen's compensation act of section 7 of chapter 807 of the acts of 1913, to which referred in my message of April 21 last, be removed by the passage of a suitable act.

"Further in view of the extreme importance as well as difficulty of the subject of rate making under the workmen's compensation insurance act and the failure of the legislature to pass any new law relating thereto, I recommend that a recess committee be created thoroughly to investigate and study the topic of proper rate making and report to the next general court suitable recommendations for legislation upon the subject.

"The message was referred to the joint committee on judiciary, which will meet prior to this morning's session.

Senate Has Much Work

When the senate came in yesterday morning, it had before it a large number of matters which the house had stayed up late Wednesday in order to clean up. This resulted in much free time for the lower branch and a lot of work in the upper.

By early evening, however, about everything had been disposed of one way or another in the passage back and forth.

The bill to appropriate $25,000 for the purchase of homes for citizens by the homestead commission has apparently been lost between the two branches. The senate refused to accept the report of its conference committee and no second conference committee was appointed.

The bill to increase the powers and jurisdiction of the civil service commission passed safely in the governor's office in the form in which it had left the house. There was a bitter fight in the senate, which tried to kill it, but finally allowed it to be enacted through the efforts of Pres. Wells, after accepting the report of the committee on conference.

The measure permits Gov. McCall to accomplish some of the improvements of the civil service which he outlined in his inaugural address.

The bill has been chopped and hacked, but there still remains the "efficiency" provision which provides that any official, except policemen and firemen, who is not doing his work satisfactorily may be the subject of an investigation by the civil service commission or by the mayor or selectmen on their own initiative or at the suggestion of the civil service commission.

The much discussed "Tour Workers" bill to provide three eight-hour shifts for tour workers in paper mills, on which Gov. McCall had urged action when the matter had lain on the table in the senate for weeks, was finally disposed of, but not exactly as the governor had suggested. Instead the general subject was included in a resolve for a recess commission to study social insurance by the state.

The bill for a street railway parallel to the Cape Cod canal was debated at length in the house and finally referred to the next legislature by a large majority on a voice vote.

Signs Many Bills

The governor signed the $5,000,000 state tax bill just before he left the state house.

Bills signed by the governor during the day included the following:

To authorize the Central Vermont Railway company to acquire any or all of the shares of the capital stock of the Southern New England railroad corporation.

To abolish the state board of insanity and establish the Massachusetts commission on mental diseases.

To abolish the commission on economy and efficiency and to establish the office of supervisor of administration.

To allow cities and towns to license "jitneys" so-called.

To abolish the board of harbor and land commissioners and the board of the port of Boston and to establish the Massachusetts commission on waterways and public lands.

To make more severe the penalties for the reckless driving of automobiles.

THE FRENCH MAID SAYS

AUNTIE'S NEW BLOUSE

"Where did Auntie get this beautiful blouse?" questioned Marjorie enthusiastically, as she lovingly fingered the folds of a black net creation Marie was shaking out preparatory to laying away.

"In Paris, of course," answered Marie. "Wherever else do you think you could find one like that? It is a very pretty novelty across the water," she continued, "to replace the linen blouse, which is worn less and less. This blouse is of black net without lining, creased in surplice fashion and with short sleeves. As you see, all the distinctness of lingerie and ribbon underneath is revealed by this transparent corsage, which is of an indelicate color filled with attraction.

"My," exclaimed Marjorie in a shocked voice. "However do they dare to wear them?"

"Well," rejoined Marie, "without wishing to displease conservative husbands, the transparent effects are becoming more and more daring. Here is an example," and Marie picked up a rone of breakfast, the skirt being draped very much toward the back. The lower part of the robe was in princess effect, standing up in a bib to the bust.

"It is here that the audacity of the gown is felt," she continued. "The shoulders and sleeves are of black tulle, kimono shaped and unlined. Here the lingerie effect is left out underneath, and Madame goes about in this unusual lingerie. Luckily, her short coat is worn, since no robe today is seen unaccompanied by its coat.

"I suppose I shall come to it sometime," sighed Marjorie, "but I am sure I should blush every moment I had it on," and she rushed away to ponder on the astonishing freaks of fashion.

PLAINS OF VICENZA

HARVESTING "GRAPES OF WRATH" INSTEAD OF THE PRODUCT OF THE ITALIAN VINE

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 2.—If the present offensive of the Austrian forces on the Italian front develops in accordance with the predictions of military critics, the fertile plains of Vicenza, 20 miles south of Piazza, where the Tyrolean border has been crossed, will soon be harvesting its "grapes of wrath" instead of the product of the Italian vine for which this section is famous. The National Geographic society's war geography bulletin, issued today from its Washington headquarters, "closely massed on both banks of the small Baschiolone river, Vicenza, with an urban population of 35,000, has been an important town of northern Italy since the early Roman days when it was known as Vicetia," says the bulletin. "It has not played a thrilling role in Italian history, however, but is noted rather for its architectural splendor than for its achievement in arms.

"The surrounding plain, whose luxuriant nutberry trees, with their armies of sick worms, so soon may be supplanted by the cypress trees of sorrow over countless soldiers' graves, extends to the north through Thiene

ROOSEVELT ON TARIFF

Says Protection Needed By Industries After War is Over in Address at Newark, N. J.

NEWARK, N. J., June 2.—Return- ing from his middle western trip, Colonel Roosevelt stopped here last night, on his way to his home at Oyster Bay, to deliver an address at the industrial exposition held in connection with the celebration of the 250th anniversary of the founding of New- ark.

Before he entered the Exposition building Colonel Roosevelt addressed briefly a company of New Jersey National Guardsmen.

"I do not believe," he said, "in weas- el words or weasel deeds. I don't be- lieve in 'letting George do it.' But I do believe in preparedness. I am glad to meet you men who represent pre- paredness."

"It does not believe in the kind of preparedness where the patriotic em- ployer tells his employees to do it. I believe the employer and the employee should sleep in the same dog tent if we are to have effective prepared- ness."

In his formal address in the armory Colonel Roosevelt spoke at some length upon the tariff question. He declared a protective tariff is the barrier behind which American industry can be developed in safety and as- serted that unless such a tariff is cre- ated the United States will face economic disaster after the close of the European war.

"After this war," the former pre- sident said, "we shall face a Euro- pe which has cast off the shackles of the past, and which industrially will be as aggressive as any military power has ever been in a military sense."

"It is time for this great country of ours to be unified in its Americanism. One phase of that Americanism must be the Americanism of our industries. With that end in view it is an abso- lute necessity that there shall be pro- tection; that we shall have a protec- tive tariff, as I have on other occa- sions described."

ROOSEVELT AT NEWARK

Declares Protective Tariff Is Barrier Behind Which American Industries Can Be Developed in Safety

NEWARK, N. J., June 2.—The pro- tective tariff is the barrier behind which American industries can be de- veloped in safety and unless such a tariff is created the United States will face the greatest economic disaster af- ter the close of the European war, time such appreciation of high ideals and such perseverance in following them that we shall avoid the twin gulfs of disaster. We must steer be- tween them toward the realization of the hope of those who when they made this republic made it with the expectation that its citizens should be prosperous men and women, who did justice to others and demanded jus- tice for themselves."

Welfare Rests on Workers

The whole structure of the national welfare, Colonel Roosevelt said, "rests on the men who do the work of industry, and the men who do the work of agriculture."

"Of recent years," he continued, "we have grown more and more to realize that, as a mere business proposition, while the welfare of each is primarily his own concern, yet it must also be to a large extent the concern of all of us."

"As regards farming, for instance, if the soil is exhausted, then the people who draw their living from the soil will become impoverished and then the whole social structure will topple. It is the business of the whole community to see that the soil that has been tilled for 50 years is more productive and not less productive at the end of that time. It is our busi- ness to help the men who dwell in the open country in such fashion that not only shall their work be more productive, but their lives, and espe- cially the lives of their women and children, be led in full and satisfac- tory fashion."

"The same thing applies here in industry. It is essential that industry shall be in the highest degree pro- ductive, that is, that there shall be great efficiency, and, as a necessary corollary, the ample rewards for great leadership without which such efficiency cannot be achieved. It is no less essential that justice shall go hand in hand with the efficiency; and that the great rewards paid to the captains shall be paid not at the expense of those who work under them, or of the public which they serve, but as a just recognition of the fact that their activities have been to the benefit of the public, and that the reward of these activities has been with a measurable approximation to justice, shared with and among the people who work for them."

Fair Play For All Sides

"Unfortunately there are many of our people who have refused to con- sider more than one side of this problem. It can never be rightly ap- proached or satisfactorily solved un- less full consideration is given both sides, unless there is a real attempt to combine common sense with a love of fair play."

"There are some men who talk and act as if all that is necessary is that kind of efficiency which produces an enormous immediate result and great prosperity for the few without regard to the fact that it creates among many others a rankling sense of injustice which is bound in the future to work harm. On the other hand there are many number of visionaries, and of demagogues who take advantage of visionaries; and both these classes of men talk and act as if men who did not receive their fair share of prosperity could somehow be benefited by having the prosperity destroyed, so that they would receive no share at all."

"Both types, the type of prosperous man who gains his prosperity by ex- ploiting his fellows, and the type of unprosperous man who seeks to gratify his anger by wrecking the prosper- ity of others, are equally undesirable from the standpoint of the republic as a whole. Moreover normally they are really the same type. Each de- nounces the views of the other, and yet his own view is merely that of others changed in form but identical in essence."

"The arrogance of the rich man who exploits and oppresses his fellow who is less well off, and the malig- nant envy and hatred with which a certain type of agitator regards the man who is better off, although in appearance opposite views, are funda- mentally merely diverse manifesta- tions of the same evil spirit. The ar- rogance felt by the unscrupulous man of means toward his less favored brother, and the envious hatred felt by the unscrupulous man of poverty toward his brother who is better off, are merely two sides of the same evil shield. Arrogance is painted on one side and envy on the other, but the shield itself is the shield of selfish dis- regard for a brother's welfare."

FULL PAY AND EXPENSES

UNITED FRUIT CO. OFFERS MEN WHO WISH TO ATTEND MILITARY CAMP PAY—$75 FOR EXPENSES

NEW YORK, June 2.—The United Fruit Co., its employees learned today, has offered to grant any man in its employ who wishes to attend a mili- tary training camp this summer not only four weeks' vacation with full pay but an expense allowance of $75.

More than 800 corporations have granted their employees four weeks' leave on full pay if they wish to attend the training camp but the United Fruit Co., so far as is known, is the first that has promised to pay expenses as well. The expenses of the recruits are esti- mated at about $60.

The Military Training Camps' as- sociation made public today a telegram sent to President Wilson asking his assistance in urging the passage of that section of the new army bill authorizing the appropriation of funds to meet the expenses of training camp recruits who will accept government assistance. The association said that it feared that congress may delay passage of the necessary appropriation for another six weeks.

The total enrollment for the Platt- burg camp today reached 10,727.

Terms of the agreement were not made public.

GOLDEN JUBILEE CELEBRATION OF THE MASS. STATE INSTI- TUTE OF TECHNOLOGY, JUNE 14

The telephone is going to contribute the most remarkable "stunt" of the times to the famous Golden Jubilee celebration of the Massachusetts In- stitute of Technology this month. And not only will it be the latest word in telephone marvels, but there will be gathered the most distinguished audi- ence that has ever been assembled in this or any other country. When President Macaulay speaks, or Bell or Edison or Watson, he will be address- ing, not only the company assembled in Boston, but Tech. men in thirty- five cities of the country, and gov- ernors, mayors and local officials from the local M.I.T. clubs will have for their guests.

At first sight the accomplishment seems as if it were much the same as some of the previous ones, but tele- phone history is being rapidly written and what is proposed is far ahead of anything that has been done. The day will mark an era in the story of the telephone. Transcontinental transmission of speech with the waves of the Pacific audible at Atlantic banquet tables was the surprising feat of three months ago and this was surpassed a month ago by a meeting by five city delegations separated by long dis- tances with one presiding officer who conducted affairs through the tele- phone. Each of these groups came to the telephone in a great city on the main trunk lines of the transconti- nental system.

For the Technology banquet it will be the telephone that goes to where the Tech. alumni are and hunts them in their home cities no matter where these may be located. The lines will run north, south and west and thirty- four places in a score of states will be linked up with the diners in Boston. Every M.I.T. association west of the Hudson—a very many east of this great river will be in Boston—will be gathered for its own celebration with in- vited guests from its own city and state, and in these places there will be happenings of local interest. It will be an event coming home to every section of the country.

On the platform of Symphony hall in Boston that eventful evening of June 14 will be a group of inventors such as the country has not before seen together, Bell, Edison and Orville Wright, and besides them will be an assemblage of the men who have de- veloped the telephone. Vail, president of the great American company, Vice- Presidents Bethel and Kingsbury, Spaulding of the New England com- pany, Watson, Carty and Professors Cross and Pupin representing the sci- entific end, together with the edu- cational dignitaries who will have as- signed to do honor to the dedication of the great new educational plant of Technology. In the early days of the telephone there was so much in the way of experimentation done at the Tech. laboratories by Cross and his associates, that it is particularly fitting that the great event of the Tech. celebration should be the demonstra- tion with the telephone. Every place at the Symphony hall banquet will have its watch-case receiver and with one for every one of the auditors in the spacious galleries. In all some three thousand receivers in Boston, and in other places provisions are made for installing the receivers by the hundred. Everybody will be on the line and there will be no oratory with a man on the platform empha- sizing his remarks with gestures. Every speaker will deliver his address into the telephone and to a magnificent audience whose distribution will be country wide. This means so far as the telephone company is concerned devoting main lines for two solid hours to the Boston Tech. celebration to- gether with the enormous work of preparation for which thousands of the watch-case receivers have been specially made.

The list of places in which the lo- cal M.I.T. club members will be as- sembled to hear the voice of their president and his guest is quite for- midable and includes in New York state, New York, Albany, Schenectady, Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo; in Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, Harris- burg and Pittsburgh; with Washington, Atlanta, Birmingham, Louisville and New Orleans in the south. West- New York there are Akron, Cin- cinnati, Cleveland and Dayton, Indianan- olis, Detroit, Milwaukee and Chicago and Urbana. Ill. West of the Mis- sissippi there will be auditors at Min- neapolis, Duluth, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver and Butte, Montana, with the west coast represented by San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Se- attle and Spokane.

OREGON LAND BILL PASSED

Senate Adopts House Measure, But Changes Division of Proceeds From Sale of $30,000,000 Tract

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The house bill providing for reclamation by the government of 2,300,000 acres of Ore- gon land granted the Oregon & Cal- ifornia railroad was passed yesterday by the senate.

The lands, valued at about $30,000,- 000, are alleged to have been forfeit- ed by violations of the terms of the grant, which required their sale to settlers at $2.50 an acre.

Amendments were adopted to pro- vide that 80 per cent of the proceeds of re-sale shall go to the state of Oregon, 10 per cent to the reclama- tion fund for use in Oregon, and 10 per cent to the federal government. The house bill provided that 50 per cent should go to Oregon for the use of the road and schools, 10 per cent to the federal government and 40 per cent to the general reclamation fund. Another amendment provides that sales of land shall be made for cash.

HOW TO BE SLIM

If you are too fat and want to reduce your weight 15 or 20 pounds, don't starve and weak- en your system. Think you must always be laughed at on account of your fat, but go to A. W. Dows & Co., or any good druggist, and get a box of Oil of Koren capsules, take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week and note what a pleasant and reliable method this is for re- moving superfluous fat from any part of the body.

It costs little, is absolutely harmless and a week's trial should convince anyone that it is unnecessary to be burdened with even a single pound of unsightly fat.

IN BASEBALL POOL CASE

Officer O'Sullivan in Disguise Buys a Ticket—Several Auto Cases Before the Court

William N. Fadden, who has been conducting a baseball pool in which there were daily prizes, appeared in court this morning and entered a plea of guilty to a complaint charging him with the unlawful possession of lottery tickets for money. At the request of Supt. Welch, who stated that the defendant had made a frank confession to him he suggested the imposing of the minimum fine and Fadden was ordered to pay a fine of $75.

Fadden's appearance in court came about as a result of the arrest of John H. Stanley on Wednesday by Patrolman Thos. P. O'Sullivan, who disarmed as a mill hand, purchased a ticket in the baseball pool from Stanley in Merrimack street about 6:30 o'clock in the morning.

Stanley, when catechized by the police, gave Fadden's name as the promoter and admitted that he had been selling tickets but that the profit was very low and that if he could assist the police he would do so.

When Stanley's case was called this morning, charged with the unlawful sale of lottery tickets, Supt. Welch recommended placing it on file and the court did so.

Unlawful Use of Automobile

Ernest Baehand, through his counsel A. S. Goldman, entered a plea of not guilty to a complaint charging him with the unlawful use of an automobile, the property of William J. Barry, shoe manufacturer in Stackpole street. The court after considering the evidence offered by the government accepted a plea of not guilty by the defendant and the case was placed on file.

The first witness called was Mr. Barry who testified that the night before last the defendant called him on the telephone and asked him if he would like to sell his automobile. Mr. Barry replied that if the price was satisfactory he would sell it but the price named by the defendant was lower than Mr. Barry was willing to take.

Baehand called at the shoe shop yesterday morning about 9:30 o'clock and said he would like to show the car to the proposed purchaser, a Mr. Nelson, saying that he would go no farther than Merrimack square. Mr. Barry said he and his wife had to go to Haverhill on business and told the defendant to be sure and be back with the machine at 11 o'clock.

Neither the defendant nor the machine appeared at 11 o'clock and Mr. Barry waited until about 1 o'clock when he notified the police and asked them to assist him in locating the car.

Sergeant David Petrie was assigned to the case and he learned that Mr. Nelson, who Baehand intended to sell the car to, had gone to Manchester. Sergeant Petrie and Mr. Barry in another automobile belonging to the latter, then started over the road for Manchester. When about three or four miles this side of Manchester they met Baehand and two other men in the Barry machine and trailed the car to the Pawtucket boulevard, where Sergeant Petrie placed Baehand under arrest.

Baehand explained to the officer that he had given Mr. Nelson a demonstration and inasmuch as the latter had missed a train for Manchester he took him to Nashua in order to get a train for Manchester, but upon arriving in Manchester found that the train had departed and then Baehand started for Manchester.

Lawyer Goldman informed the court that the defendant had no intention of going to Manchester when he was given the machine, but that owing to a leaky valve and short-circuiting of gasoline he had to stop and have the machine repaired and when Mr. Nelson had missed the train he felt that he should carry him to Manchester as Mr. Nelson had an important engagement there.

The court after considering the testimony offered by the government witnesses felt that there was no intent of unlawful use of the automobile on the part of the defendant and therefore placed the case on file.

Speed Merchant Fined

William King appeared before the court on a complaint charging him with unlawfully operating a motor vehicle at an unreasonable rate of speed on April 22. Melvin G. Rogers, counsel for the defendant, entered a plea of guilty and explained to the court that at about 11:30 o'clock on the night of April 22 King was driving an automobile through Merrimack street. He was in the rear of an electric car and when the car slowed up he steered his machine to the right and crashed into an automobile which was standing near Rogers said that King had paid the damages done to the other machine. The court imposed a fine of $25 which the defendant paid.

NEW DINING ROOM

CHARMING REFECTORY OPENED AT HARRISONIA HOTEL BY 200 GUESTS LAST EVENING

A decidedly metropolitan and thoroughly pleasing atmosphere pervaded the Harrisonia hotel last evening, when Proprietor Frank E. Harris opened his new and elaborate dining room to the public, some 200 guests assembling to "christen" the new and beautiful refectory, which for artistic design, modern appointments and general comfort can't be excelled even in the metropolitan cities. Proprietor Harris in planning the latest addition to his hostelry had an eye for service, and as a result the guests, last evening, were frequently heard to remark: "Isn't the service fine?" Not only has a new dining room been added but in connection with it a special kitchen, serving room, refrigerator and buffet bar, which together make it possible to give most efficient service. There are tables and booths for the guests, while arrangements are in readiness for changing dish parties, and in fact for any form of refection. In a corner of the dining room is a stage on which is a baby grand piano, where entertainments of a high class are promised in the future. If they are as good as that provided last evening, they will satisfy the most fastidious lover of entertainment. Lavigne's orchestra of six pieces, assisted by Mrs. Saxon and the reorganized Honey Boy quartet, provided a continuous program, which was thoroughly enjoyed. The Honey Boys now consist of Messrs. Handley, Lyons, Perry and Brown, and no professionals have anything on them. The menu for opening night which included an infinite variety of delectable specials, met with the enthusiastic approval of the guests, and as was mentioned previously, the service was faultless. While the new dining room will be open to the public, private parties may engage it for banquets, when by means of heavy doors, it may be completely separated from the remainder of the hotel. The new room is lighted by 220 incandescent bulbs, set in decorative globes of artistic design and gracefully hung about the room. Proprietor Harris is to be congratulated upon his enterprise in providing such a charming dining room.

One of the most important jobs of the department is the paving of Dutton street from Broadway to Fletcher, Fletcher street to Thorndike and Thorndike to Middlesex. KITCHENER QUESTIONED

Secretary of War Heckled by Parliamentary Critics of War Office

LONDON, June 2.—Earl Kitchener had today what was for him the unique experience of being heckled by parliamentary critics of the war office. Complimenting with the promise made on his behalf in the house of commons by the parliamentary under-secretary for war, Harold J. Tennant, in response to complaints of members that they had not had opportunity to question the secretary of war, the famous general went to one of the committee rooms of the house, prepared to make a statement on the conduct of the war and reply to questions. The war secretary was accompanied by several members of his staff and the political heads of the war office. He faced some 200 members, including what are known as the "ginger groups," composed of men who demand more vigorous prosecution of the war. The public was excluded rigorously. Indeed, the whole Westminster palace was shut off, to avoid leakage of any secret information which might be elicited.

Four carloads of steel rails have arrived for the Bay State Street Railway Co. and the employees will get busy at once tearing up the old rails in Dutton street and putting in the new. The employees of the street department will follow the Bay State men very closely in their work in order to rush the job along.

Among the other streets that are being paved or will be in the near future are Dutton street from Fletcher to Willie, East Merrimack and Branch streets. Holyrood avenue and Princeton street will be given a sealed coat, and the far is expected in this city next week. The extension of Anderson street will be started soon, and incidentally Mr. Morse wishes to state that the abutments along the streets that will be tarred will not be taxed for water or oil.

Employees of the sewer department are busy on the Woburn street sewer from the lands and harbor commission, informing him that the commission had voted to grant the city of Lowell permission to erect the new Pawtucket bridge over the Merrimack river. The council then adjourned to next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

BIG NAVAL BATTLE

ued during the night, the German fleet returning to its base on June 1.

The German battleship lost was the Pommern, a 13,000 ton vessel, and the cruiser, the fate of which is uncertain, is the Frauenlob of 2672 tons. The small cruiser sunk was the Wiesbaden.

Germans Gain at Verdun

The furious drive which the Germans have launched northeast of Verdun has already resulted in important gains in a sector where the battle lines until recently have held almost stationary since the early days of the Verdun struggle.

Supported by artillery fire of exceptional violence, the crown prince's forces have pushed south from Fort Douaumont and captured the Gaillette wood while further to the southeast they have reached the southern shores of Vaux pond. The German progress marks an advance of nearly a mile south of the Fort Douaumont line.

GERMAN ADMIRALTY ANNOUNCES VICTORY IN BIG SEA BATTLE

BERLIN, June 2. (By wireless to Sayville)—The German admiralty announced today that the German high sea fleet on May 31 had encountered a British fighting fleet. The engagement which developed, the admiralty says, was favorable to the Germans. The battle continued all night.

The German admiralty announces that the large British battleship Warspite, the battle cruiser Queen Mary and the indefatigable and two armed cruisers were destroyed.

It is also reported that a small British cruiser, a number of torpedo boat destroyers and torpedo boats were sunk.

The German admiralty statement adds that by observation it was established that a large number of British battleships suffered damage from the fire of the German big ships and the attacks of the torpedo boat flotilla.

The admiralty statement also declares that the British battleship Marlborough was hit by a torpedo, this being confirmed by the prisoners rescued. Several of the German ships rescued parts of the crews of the British ships which were sunk, they including, it is said, two men from the indefatigable, the only survivors from that ship.

On the German side the small cruiser Wiesbaden was sunk by gunfire and the Pommern was sent to the bottom by a torpedo. The fate of the Frauenlob is not known and some torpedo boats did not return. The German high sea fleet, the statement adds, returned to port June 1.

The text of the German admiralty report, which is dated June 1, says:

"During an enterprise directed to the northward our high sea fleet on May 31 encountered the main part of the English fighting fleet, which was considerably superior to our forces."

"During the afternoon between Skagerrak and Horn Reef, a heavy engagement developed which was successful for us and which continued during the whole night."

"In this engagement, so far as known up to the present, there were destroyed by us the large battleship Warspite, the battle cruiser Queen Mary and the indefatigable, two armored cruisers, apparently of the Achilles type, one small cruiser, a new flagship of destroyers, the Turbinant, Nestore and Alcester, a large number of torpedo boat destroyers and one submarine."

"By observation, which was free and clear of objects it was stated that a large number of English battleships suffered damage from our fire and the attacks of our torpedo boat flotilla during the day engagement and throughout the night."

"Among others the large battleship Marlborough was hit by a torpedo. This was confirmed by prisoners."

"Several of our ships rescued parts of the crews of the sunken English ships, among them being the indefatigable. On one side the small cruiser Wiesbaden by hostile gunfire during the day engagement and his majesty's ship Pommern during the night as the

BRITISH REPORT MANY GERMAN WARSHIPS SUNK IN BATTLE

LONDON, June 2, 7.05 p. m.—The British admiralty announced today that a battle had occurred in the North sea between the British and German fleets, in the course of which a number of German warships were sunk.

The British battle cruisers Queen Mary and indefatigable and the battleship Ironclad were sunk.

The cruisers Defence and Black Prince also were sunk, and the cruiser Warrior was disabled. The German losses are described as serious.

The announcement says two German battle cruisers were sunk and two German light cruisers were disabled and probably sunk.

The British destroyers Tipperary, Turbulent, Fortune, Sparrowhawk and Ardent were lost and six others have not yet been accounted for. The admiralty announcement says no British battleships or light cruisers were sunk.

From the advices thus far received it would appear that the greatest naval battle of history has taken place. Never before have two naval forces of such magnitude as the British and German high sea fleets engaged in combat. But apparently the battle was not fought out to a point to determine mastery of the sea, for the losses, serious as they are reported to have been, will not impair the strength of either fleet to a vital extent.

The scene of battle was in the eastern waters of the North sea. It is probable the German fleet was on one of the excursions into the North sea which it has taken from time to time during the war and met, whether or not by design, with the British fleet.

Skagerrak is an arm of the North sea between Norway and Denmark. The point referred to in the official German statement as Horn Reef probably is the reef off the Horn, on the southwestern extremity of Denmark. This would indicate the battle was fought off the coast of Denmark.

From the reef to Helgoland, the main German naval base in the North sea, is about 100 miles.

The British dreadnought Warspite, reported destroyed, in the North sea engagement, was a sister ship of the Queen Elizabeth, and both these vessels played a prominent part in the attempt of the British Mediterranean fleet to force the Dardanelles. The Warspite was 650 feet long and displaced 27,500 tons. She was built in 1914 at an estimated cost of $12,500,000. Her complement was 750.

The Queen Mary and the indefatigable were both battle cruisers of 27,000 and 18,700 tons displacement respectively. The Queen Mary was 720 feet long.

The indefatigable was 575 feet long. The Queen Mary and the indefatigable carried complements of between 300 and 950 men. The Queen Mary cost about $10,000,000, while the indefatigable cost nearly $8,000,000.

The British dreadnought Marlborough, said to have been struck by a torpedo, was of the Iron Duke class. She was built in 1914 and displaced 35,000 tons. She was 620 feet long.

The German battleship Pommern, which was sunk by a British torpedo, displaced 12,977 tons. She was 398 feet long and cost about $6,000,000. She carried 729 officers and men.

The Frauenlob, which did not return to the German base after the naval engagement was a small German cruiser displacing 2716 tons. Her complement was 264.

NEW YORK, June 2.—The board of directors of the General Federation of Women's Clubs today elected Mrs. William B. Young of Jacksonville, Fla., as treasurer. Decision on the place for holding the next biennial convention in 1918 was postponed.

ROWING EXPERTS SAY JOHN KELLY IS GREATEST SCULLER IN AMERICA

NEW YORK, June 2.—Rowing experts here are of the opinion that John Kelly of the Vespers of Philadelphia is the greatest sculler in the United States today. He proved his skill in his meeting with Tom Rooney, the Ravenswood veteran, and Waldo Smith of the New York A. C. in the senior sculls, held under the auspices of the New York Rowing association. Kelly got sweet revenge for his defeat here last year in the senior singles when he defeated Rooney. The latter finished second by a length and a half and had his work cut out for him to head off Smith. Considering the strong tide with the work cut out for him to head off Smith, Kelly was not remarkable. In the senior doubles Kelly and Smith met old rivals in H. H. Livingston and R. H. Pearson of the Nonpareils. It was a dual race, and the Quaker City pair had nearly two lengths to spare at the finish. Kelly will compete in all the big events to be held in this country this summer. Photo shows Kelly after winning the senior event.

WILSON AT ANNAPOLIS

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 2.—President Wilson unexpectedly made an address to the naval academy graduates at the commencement exercises today declaring that great responsibilities rest on naval officers of the United States. He had not planned to speak but said he now felt a particular interest in this year's class because it saw him "get into trouble" at his inauguration three years ago.

The president declared that he gained a liberal education in the White House. He said that discipline in the academy must be strict because "you are more than college boys; you are officers of the United States and any laxity of duty cannot be overlooked. There might come a time," he added, "when a laxity in duty might change the world's history."

"It had not been my purpose when I came here to say anything," he said, "but as I sit here and look at you youngsters, I find that my feeling is a very personal feeling indeed. I know some of the things that you have been through and I admire the way in which you have responded to the new call of duty. I would feel that I had not done either you or myself justice if I did not tell you so."

"I have thought that there was one interesting bond that united us. You were at Washington three years ago and saw me get into trouble. And now I am here to see the beginning of your trouble. Your trouble will last longer than mine, but I doubt if it will be any more interesting. I have had a liberal education in the last three years with which nothing that I underwent before bears the slightest comparison. But what I want to say to you young gentlemen is this: Once in a while when youngsters here or at West Point have forgotten themselves and done something that they ought not to, and were about to be disciplined, perhaps severely, for it, I have been appealed to by their friends to excuse them from the penalty. Knowing that I have spent most of my life at a college, they commonly say to me: 'You know college boys. You know what they are. They are headless youngsters, very often, and they ought not to be held up to the same standards of responsibility that older men must submit to.'"

"I have always replied: 'Yes, I know college boys, but while these youngsters are college boys they are something more. They are officers of the United States. They are not merely college boys. If they were I would look at dereliction of duty on their part in another spirit, but any dereliction of duty on the part of a naval officer of the United States may involve the fortunes of a nation and cannot be overlooked.'"

"Do you not see the difference? You cannot indulge yourselves in weaknesses, gentlemen. You cannot forget your duty for a moment because there might come a time when that weak spot in you should affect you in the midst of a great engagement, and then the whole history of the world might be changed by what you did not do, or did wrong."

"The fortunes of a nation are confided to us. Now, that ought not to depress a man. Sometimes I think that nothing is worth while that is not hard. You do not improve your muscle by doing the easy things; you improve it by doing the hard things and you get your zest by doing a thing that is difficult, not a thing that is easy. I would not say a great deal rather, so far as my sense of enjoyment is concerned, have something strenuous to do than have something that can be done leisurely and without a stimulation of the faculties. Therefore, I congratulate you that you are going to live your lives under the most stimulating compulsion that any man can feel, the sense of private duty merely, but of public duty also. And then if you perform that duty there is a reward awaiting you which is superior to any affectionate remembrance of your fellowmen—their honor, their affection. No man could wish for more than that or find anything higher than that to strive for. I wish you Godspeed and remind you that yours is the honor of the United States."

Prior to the president's address and the presentation of their diplomas, the graduates were addressed by Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

GERMAN AIRSHIP WRECKED
PARIS, June 2.—A squadron of French aeroplanes pursuing a group of German machines which had just bombarded Bar le Duc, brought down two machines, one of which was a Fokker.

The raid referred to probably is the one mentioned in last night's French official statement, which said that 13 civilians in Bar le Duc were killed by German bombs. The French statement recorded the bringing down of only one German aeroplane.

A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION

Oil Tank Blew Up Setting $30,-
000 Fire in East Boston—Narrow Escape From Conflagration

BOSTON, June 2.—Originating with the terrific explosion of an oil tank, fire swept through the one-story wooden building at 163 Border street, rear, East Boston, late yesterday afternoon, spread to five adjoining buildings and for a time threatened to reduce to ashes the Maverick church and other valuable property skirting Border, London and Liverpool streets. The total loss is estimated at $30,000, partly covered by insurance.

Peter W. Fletcher, owner of the building where the fire started, was at work in his office at 155 Border street when the explosion occurred. He ran out to the street and found the shed leased by him to the George Lowins company a mass of flames. He ran to box 631 and sounded an alarm, but by that time the whole building was burning and the flames had spread to his place at 167 and 155, a 2 1/2 frame structure, and were leaping across to the brick building at 153 occupied by the Federal Finish company.

The flames, despite the fire department's efforts, jumped to the wooden building at 163, occupied as a tobacco store by Benjamin T. Graham. From this it jumped to the 2 1/2-story wooden building at 165, 167 and 169, owned by Henry B. Fish of Winthrop and occupied by William Davis company and D. C. Crosby.

Backing up to the place where the flames were discovered is a three-story wooden apartment house at 1 and 2 Central court. The intense heat set the rear piazzas and roof afire and for awhile five buildings were burning at the same time.

From Liverpool street side engines 8 and 11 crews pumped tons of water into the burning buildings, checking the fire in the apartment house and beating the flames back.

Reinforced by the crew of fire boat 47, which ran lines over the McQuisen wharf, Companies 3 and 40 attacked from Border street, and after a little more than an hour's work the fire was extinguished.

The building where the fire originated is a total loss, with two automobile trucks and several heavy wagons. The tank which blew up, causing the fire, was nothing but a mass of twisted iron. The other buildings were only partly burned, but were well soaked with water.

The cause of the explosion is a mystery, inasmuch as the tank, which was being placed on a truck for delivery to the Standard Oil company, was a new one. In the opinion of Mr. Fletcher vapor must have formed inside the tank.

IN BOSTON INVENTOR-BUOY

BOSTON, June 2.—The Charlestown navy yard, within the next few weeks, may be the scene of experiments with a new periscope device which will make the submarine of the United States superior to any in the world. If the dream of a marcher in last Saturday's preparedness parade comes true.

The device is a child of the inventive mind of Van Antwerp Clarke, of this city. He described it about 10 days ago to officials at the Charlestown navy yard, and received a welcome there. He wrote to the navy department at Washington, and last Tuesday received a letter from Sec. Daniels giving him authority to use submarines at the Charlestown yard for perfecting his plans.

Last night Mr. Clarke told of his basic idea and gave all the details which he deemed it wise to make public. Much of the detail he has saved for the United States navy alone.

It is an invention which will allow the submarine to see miles farther than through any present periscope and will make the submersible a far more deadly force than at present.

Plans are now on foot to secure the use of one of the submarines built by the Fore River shipbuilding corporation for Great Britain, now held at the navy yard, as Mr. Clarke's laboratory. The United States submarines are away at maneuvers.

From the description the inventor gave last night, the device might be described as a floating eye. It is a periscope buoy, from which a vision for many miles may be phototelegraphed over a cable to the submarine. The periscope on the buoy can be raised much higher out of water than can a submarine periscope, with a consequently wider range of observation.

The periscope will have an instantaneous vision in all directions, and this vision can be transmitted by cable to the submarine a mile or more distant from the buoy, according to Mr. Clarke. Once the submarine commander has picked up the exact location of an approaching ship the cable connection can be dropped, so that the submarine is not confined for torpedo action to the radius of its cable.

Two difficulties in the inventor's mind when he submitted his idea to Naval Constructor Baxter and others at the navy yard were cleared up by them, he says. The possibility of detection was one; the other was the problem of stability for the floating periscope.

The officials suggested that dummy periscopes be placed in the same waters with the actual periscope, perhaps one to four or five dummies. The inventor's plans include a device for controlling the height of the periscope from the submarine, elevating the lens to perhaps 30 or 40 feet above water.

The naval constructors told the inventor also, he says, that there is now a known device for giving such an upright object as the periscope attached to a buoy absolute stability even in rough waters.

Besides the submarine use of the periscope it will be equally valuable to land naval stations, Mr. Clarke believes. A land station can probably have a much longer cable connection with a floating periscope and can pick up visions of objects at a much greater distance at sea than is now possible. A five-mile cable would be feasible, probably.

SCHOOL GIRL ARRESTED

Helen Katsavannin of Worcester Sold to Have Stolen $30—Many Complaints

WORCESTER, June 2.—Charged with larceny, Helen Katsavannin, aged 14, a school girl, was arrested by the Worcester police following the receipt of complaints from different sections of the city that apartments have been ransacked and robbed during the past few days.

The girl was arrested shortly after John L. Keating of 109 Chatham street notified the police that his apartment had been ransacked and $20 stolen. The police allege that the girl entered the block late in the afternoon and waited until the family had left for a trip downtown. The curtains in the different rooms of the Keating apartment had been drawn, say the police, so as to shut off any view from people living in the next block.

When searched at the police headquarters $50 was found tucked away in the girl's hair. It is alleged. The girl told the police she lived at 49 Summer street, this city.

IF YOU WORRY, READ THIS

—Worry never brought any good to anybody. But, you say, "I don't worry because I want to. I worry because I can't help it." Or, "I worry because I have so much to worry about."

We all have our troubles and worry, of course, makes matters worse. The patient generally recognizes this fact without being able to profit by it.

The doctor who could meet this nervous condition and cure it would be the most popular medical man alive. But he cannot do it because the form of nervous exhaustion known as neurasthenia, of which worry is a characteristic symptom, must be cured by the patient himself. That is why you should write today for the book "Diseases of the Nervous System" and read the chapter on "Neurasthenia." So many people have read it and written back, "This hits my case exactly, I am giving the treatment a trial and being benefited," that the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., has had a lot of these books printed and will send you a copy free on request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a non-alcoholic tonic, particularly suited for nervous, neurasthenic people. Your druggist sells them or they will be mailed postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50.

VICTORY FOR DEMOCRATS

Sec. Baker Predicts Re-election of Wilson—Calls G. O. P. an Aggregation of Factions

COLUMBUS, O., June 2.—Secretary of War Baker, in an address as chairman of the Ohio democratic convention here yesterday, declared the republican party is "an aggregation of factions agreeing upon no set of principles," and compared it with the democratic party which he said had carried out a wise and definite program in economic measures, national preparedness and foreign policy. The party will be continued in power to mature its program, he predicted.

Referring briefly to politics in Ohio, his home state, the secretary expressed the hope that the present republican administration "characterized by feebleness and uncertainty" would be replaced by the democrats next year and that special attention would be given to relieving the financial stringency of Ohio cities.

Secretary Baker praised President Wilson for pressing enactment of the federal reserve and rural credits systems, tariff reduction, for upholding American ideals in dealing with Mexico, and for steering the United States away from participation in the European war. He expressed satisfaction that the preparedness program had been moderate.

Attacking the republican party, Secretary Baker said:

"To speak of a man as a republican today identifies him with no cause, ascribes to him no opinion; and whether it affiliates him with progressives or reactionaries or both cannot be told until after the national convention in Chicago next week."

He declared that Senator Harding of Ohio, who will preside at the republican convention, represents one faction which believes the tariff should be the issue in the coming campaign, while other republicans favor an attack on the foreign policy of the present administration. Opposition camps are divided into those who believe the administration has been too bellicose and those who fear it has been too peace-loving, he said.

"Then there is a third group," the secretary continued, "headed by the Great Detractor, who, shifting from position to position on the nation's foreign policy, selects at each time apparently whatever vantage point seems to offer an opportunity for making difficult the position of the president and congress.

"In other words, what used to be the strong, coherent, logical organization known as the republican party, is now, so far as its leaders are concerned, an aggregation of factions, agreeing on no set of principles, advocating no national policy, the only common bond of union being a willingness to pool issues to win. And this party is about to meet in convention at Chicago to select whatever candidate looks best at the first moment, and whatever principles promise to weather the storm until November."

"In contrast to this, the democratic party, having lived through years of doubt and hesitation, with a central philosophy sometimes more a yearning than a program, now presents a matured policy, evolved by a great leader, welcomed by his party associates as the real expression of their political ideals."

Secretary Baker declared the federal reserve act, by steadying business and commerce during the trying period of the European war, alone "would afford a record for courage and wisdom upon which the party could confidently appeal to the country." It has eliminated the power of a few financiers to cause a panic, he stated. The rural credits legislation "is the first comprehensive recognition by the nation of the needs and rights of those who till the soil as the foundation of our entire economic structure," said the secretary.

Commenting on the democratic reduction of tariff, Mr. Baker said: "To the amazement of the faithful, the duties have gone down but the dinner pail is not only not empty but full to overflowing. The high protective duty has passed to the hall of fame, where it is placed with Dr. Cook, and Cagliostro, venerable only because of the length of time men rendered homage for virtue which it did not possess."

Mr. Baker declared that intervention in Mexico had been urged by "some American owners of Mexican mines, some American purveyors of Mexican concessions, some American who looked with longing eyes on Mexico as Naboth's vineyard." Border disorders have been unfortunate, he explained, but the only alternative was "war upon these people, who have willed no act of aggression on us, to invade their country, and to spend years in the occupation of foreign lands and in tollsome effort, expensive of life and treasure, to impress an alien civilization on these people."

Included in Mr. Baker's comment on the European war, was this:

"It is better for the people of the United States not to be involved in that vast destruction if it can be honorably avoided; and, second, it is better for humanity for the United States not to be involved in order that, when the end of the struggle comes, there will be one great and persuasive power in friendly relations with all of the belligerents, inspired only by high motives of humanity and friendship, to aid as adviser and counselor in the terms of readjustment necessary."

"The course of the administration has been to regard itself as, in the nature of the case, a trustee, for the time being, of the rights of neutrals."

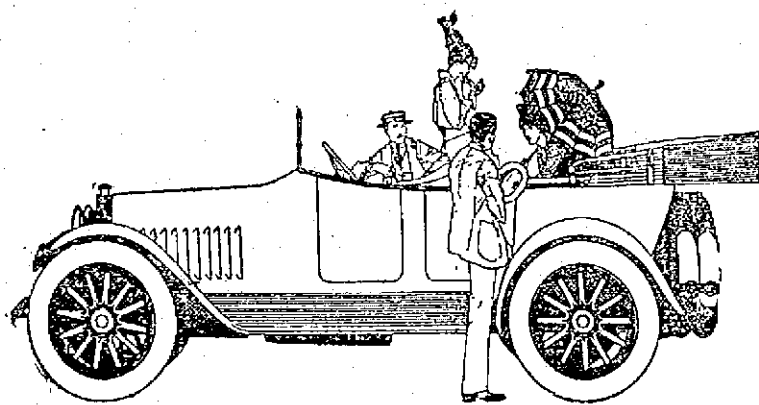

President Wilson was the subject of this praise from the secretary:

"When the history of this age comes to be written, the great fortune of the American people and of the world will appear to have been that our destinies were in the hands of a man, patient, wise and just, who saw past all the minor annoyances and through all the cross-currents of feeling, who resisted every impulse toward impetuous judgment and thereby accomplished these great things: First, that he saved the lives of countless Americans who by any other course would have been devoted to death in battle; second, that he preserved the civilization of the 20th century against the last great assault which would have been made had our country too been swept into the general catastrophe; third, that he vindicated and preserved unimpaired the right of neutrals and restrained the zeal of belligerents from sacrificing international law to the supposed necessities of their military plans, and fourth, that he saved up the moral energies of a great and free people to place them at the disposal of mankind when they rested from their work of destruction and began to reconsider the possibilities of national life."

"He has been the one sane and serene spirit which will redeem this age; and when the election comes it will be found that the people of America, whatever their sympathies in the European struggle, realize that the one indispensable exponent of the mind, the friendliness and the ideals of America in the remaking of the old order in the old world, is the finest order produced in this age by the new order in the new world—Woodrow Wilson."

SHE'S THERE BECAUSE SHE PERFORMS—THE 8400 r. p. m. CHALMERS

Most cars start alike. But very few finish alike. Therein comes a mighty difference.

Step on the little button 10 months after date and you'll readily note the inequality.

One is sluggish, "dead", without emotion, and responds to the touch with the speed of old-time oxen responding to the lash.

The other is alive, alert, ready; radiates desire to plunge ahead.

This is the 8400 r. p. m. Chalmers kind. The other kind is the species known to the trade as "one-year" cars.

Chalmers makes a five-year car. There's many an old 1909 Chalmers 80 Blue Bird giving a good account of itself today. You'll find the everlasting pep there five years from the day you take your first turn at the wheel.

Largely because of the 8400 r. p. m. engine. Which delivers mighty power with easy effort.

It's mostly in the design. The pistons are aluminum, about two pounds lighter per piston; the reciprocating parts lighter, which eases up the thrust on the bearings.

Then the crank-shaft, which is very heavy, and balanced to the weight of a hair in a special Chalmers device, spins at the rate of 8400 revolutions per minute.

It means excellent reserve power. For at 10 miles an hour the engine is turning up only 500 r. p. m. while at 20 she is doing about 1000 r. p. m. So that at excessive road speed she has the punch to deliver when called upon.

16% of her power is used at 10 miles an hour. So that she has 80% to 84%—when a twisting, hilly road looms ahead, when a sharp corner with a rugged grade hoves in sight; when the man ahead is showing you too much dust.

You'll like the 8400 r. p. m. Chalmers for one single little reason. She sure can perform.

Ask your dealer about Chalmers service inspector coupons, negotiable at all Chalmers dealers everywhere. This system is a most important consideration in buying your car.

MR. HELLER'S RECITAL

GROUP OF PUPILS GAVE EXCELLENT PROGRAM LAST EVENING AT LINCOLN STREET STUDIO

A very delightful musical was given last evening at the studio of Mr. William C. Heller, 211 Lincoln street, by a group of his pupils, and was attended by many of the parents and friends of the young musicians. The program was made up almost wholly of classical compositions, and the work of the pupils reflected great credit on Mr. Heller, whose reputation as pianist and teacher is established. All who attended spoke in the highest terms of the excellence of the music, especially as all selections were played from memory. Where all were so accomplished praise is superfluous, but special mention might be made of the playing of two of the youngest pupils—William Hoyle, who is only 3 years old, but who promises to be a veritable Paderewski, and Mary Ellen Mooney, whose feat in transposing a waltz into any major or minor key called by Mr. Heller was notable. After the formal program, refreshments were served and a delightful informal reception was held. Following is the program:

Consideration of Claims of Contesting Delegates Resumed Today—Other Business

CHICAGO, June 2.—Consideration of claims of contesting delegates to the national convention was resumed today by the republican national committee, which carried the deliberations here yesterday with a continuous session lasting more than nine hours.

The result of yesterday's work was a decision in the cases of sixteen delegates, three from Georgia and seven from Alabama.

The Henry S. Jackson delegates from Georgia were awarded seats and the seven protests in Alabama were settled by the voting of six regular delegates at large and a protesting delegate from the ninth congressional district. The committee also voted to place the delegates from Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines on the temporary roll with the recommendation that they be given votes.

The Louisiana contest involving 12 delegates was the first taken up today. It will be followed by the contest in Mississippi, Missouri and North Carolina, in the order named.

The fight in the Louisiana delegation today is between the so-called "Lillywhites" and the "Black and Tans" as has been the case at many former committee meetings preceding national conventions. The contesting delegates were chosen at separate meetings in Louisiana, the "Lillywhites" holding their meeting at a hotel in New Orleans where colored people were not allowed entrance. The delegation was, consequently, composed exclusively of whites. The other delegation is composed of an equal number of whites and colored people. Neither side is committed to any candidate.

POLICE STATISTICS
According to statistics recently compiled, Lowell, with a police force of 136 regular members, has a smaller number of men per thousand of population than most cities of like size. It is estimated that the police of the United States number 52,000 men. According to the census bureau, the total number of unformed police in cities of 30,000 population or over is 48,026, including 5532 officers, 4521 patrolmen on special duty and 3303 detectives. The total roster of the police force in the cities of 30,000 or over is 51,042, including civilians, only a small number of whom have been under drill. Of 208 mounted police officers, 53.6 per cent had horses; 24.1 per cent were on motorcycles, and 17 per cent on bicycles.

TENDERED SHOWER

A very pretty miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Lula Marie LaVigne, the popular ribbon buyer of the Bon Marche, last evening at the home of Miss Mary Doherty, 137 Cumberland road, in honor of her coming marriage to William Harold Tobin. Her many friends gathered at an early hour, and upon the arrival of the bride-to-be she was showered with beautiful and costly gifts.

A musical program was carried out, including piano selections by Frances Parker, Della B. LaVigne and Marion Bedard. The girl quartet of the Bon Marche entertained with several selections, while Ruth Anderson sang a pretty lullaby, after which dancing was enjoyed. The house was artistically decorated with palms and cut flowers. A very dainty luncheon was served. The happy affair came to a close at a late hour, wishing Miss LaVigne happiness, health and prosperity.

The affair was in charge of Mary Doherty and Ruth Anderson.

all of the Massachusetts mills and Rev. A. C. Ferrin.

President Cumcock's address of welcome was brief and to the point. He told of the wonderful advancement of the school and laid particular stress on the manufacture of dyes. "It gives me great pleasure," he said, "to welcome you to the exercises of graduation of the day class of the Lowell Textile school for 1916. It is the 18th year that I have had the honor to preside at these occasions and I am free to confess that for the first few years we didn't have much to boast about. But I have no apologies to offer to day for I believe we have the greatest textile school in the world."

"We can take the raw material from the holt of cotton and manufacture it into cloth. We can do more than that. We can take the wool from the sheep's back and manufacture it into cloth and I think there isn't another school in the world that can do it. There are three graduates here today who made the cloth for the suits they are wearing and the wool for the garments was taken from the sheep's back and was made into cloth by the boys who are wearing the suits. I think that performance cannot be matched anywhere. We have a wonderful equipment here and we have also a fine corps of teachers."

Mr. Cumcock, at this point, displayed two skeins of yarn as a demonstration of the school's progress in dyestuffs. The yarn was yellow and pink and he said the colors would neither run nor fade. He capped this interesting little climax with the statement that the dyes used on the yarns were made from coal tar produced by the Lowell Light company. There was great applause when Mr. Cumcock said the dyes were as good and as fast as any made in Germany.

"The Lowell Textile school," he said, "is making wonderful strides in chemistry. We have a laboratory equal to any in the United States and we are determined to get all we can out of our equipment. It may surprise some of you to learn that and Eve lived about six thousand years ago, and that civilization began a few hundred years before the Christian era, while prior to that time the whole human race existed in a state of barbarism. Recent discoveries in Egypt and Babylonia have shown traces of civilization running back probably seven thousand years, and no one can say that civilization was then new, in fact there is every reason to suppose it was old. The explorations of archaeologists have all the while been revealing evidence not only of the great antiquity of civilized races, but what I wish particularly to emphasize, the existence among those races of an educated class.

These have sometimes been represented by a professional class of scribes and clerks and sometimes by the priesthood. Learning does not seem formerly to have been associated with the ruling classes. The nobility of medieval times often could not write their own names. The scribes of Rome were often slaves. The powerful of ancient days cared no more about learning to read or write than they did to learn a craft or trade. The beginning of learning about the beginning of the modern period of history changed this attitude. With the decline of the feudalistic profession of arms the respect for learning among the nobility increased. The universities of Europe, no longer devoted to leisure education, no longer despised but now ennobled, became the possession of the upper classes. Scholarship became respected and ignorance a mark of disgrace.

At the time of the settlement of New England the commercial and political activities of the middle classes in England had brought them into touch with learning. But still the tradition which was brought here was that the higher education was for the clergy and the professions. It was not for the common people and it was not for women. The Puritans built their meeting houses and then turned them into colleges, but learning was for the classes, not for the masses. It was a privilege and such it remained until long after the Revolution.

The public school is a distinctly modern development and many now living can recall when there was no law for compulsory attendance. But all the while our system of education here the ancient theory that it was inherited to train men, not so much for life here, as for life hereafter. While this, and some other textile and industrial schools are older, it is only within ten years that Massachusetts has adopted a provision for vocational training in its public schools.

We are just beginning to apply the realization that training the hand and the eye is training the mind, that our industrial development depends upon making artists of our artisans and that the best preparation that we know of for the life hereafter is the skill and training and power to live useful and successful lives here.

Such, in rough outline, has been the progress of education and its application to the practical affairs of this world. I believe it is fraught with a deep and significant meaning of hope for humanity. You have seen how learning has always led the race on and up, though it was once despised as fit only for slaves and hirelings, how it became ennobled and reserved for the fortunate few, how American institutions have made the privilege of the few, the privilege and finally the duty of all. Such has been the establishment of the democracy of education.

The Lowell Textile school marks a step even in advance of this. As the public school meant the realization of the worth and dignity of man, so vocational training means a realization of the worth and dignity of industrial life.

Uncle Sam had to send to Germany for dyes for his greenbacks not long ago, but we are now in a position to furnish the green dye.

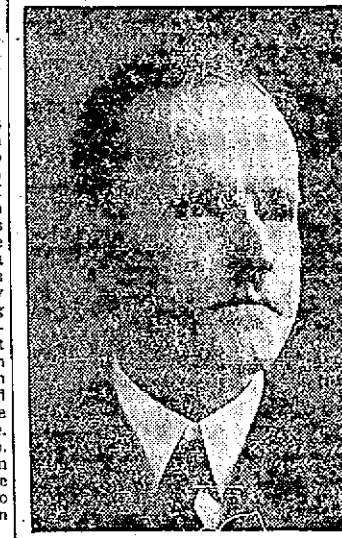

"We hear everybody asking what is going to happen after the war. I am sure I do not know what is going to happen and I must admit that I am sometimes a little bit afraid. But I feel that the government will furnish us with a protective tariff on dyestuffs and that we will be able to send some of our young men to South America to capture some of the trade down that way. From my own mill today I approved three or four orders going to Australia and there isn't any reason why we shouldn't get more of that trade. If we send young men to South America it will be necessary for them to be able to talk the Spanish and Portuguese languages. I asked the legislature for $1500 for that purpose, but the legislature wouldn't give up. I wanted to educate the young men in those languages so that they would be ready to go to South America and do business and I am going to try again next year."

"I remember that one time in Germany I tried my hand at German. I knew I couldn't do a very good job at it, but I thought I might get by. I tried it on a policeman. He listened a minute, then backed up against a lamp post and threw up both hands. I don't want the young men we send to South America to get caught in that same fix. We must teach them to talk the language or languages of the country whose trade we will sooner or later try to capture."

Accidents in Textile Mills

The thesis of John Gregory Echmalian, the first Armenian to graduate from the school, will interest all mill workers, as it deals with the subject of accidents. It was as follows:

The textile industry has always been the foremost in replacing slow, hand processes by automatic machinery. No industry has such a variety of mechanical appliances, thus the risks attending the operation of certain of these machines are of a serious nature. In this thesis I have made it my purpose to ascertain definite facts relating to accidents, their causes and consequences, such as the mechanical elements involved, the number of days lost, number of temporary and compensative accidents, the hours at which accidents most frequently occur, the location of injury on the body, etc.

Textile manufacturing has passed through an industrial revolution in this country. The native stock of help by raising its standard of living and ambitions have gradually left the mills, and their places have been taken by foreign races of lower intelligence, thus increasing the necessity of the application of safety devices. Many of our textile corporations realizing the great economic loss of time, money and men, through accidents, have given considerable attention to this matter, before the present state requirements went into effect. Today, the majority of employers are deeply interested in the movement to eliminate accidents to employees from both economic and humane standpoints.

I obtained data for the analysis of accidents from the records of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Co., 50 State Street, Boston, and am thankful for their courtesy and assistance.

Accident records are kept on reports similar to the enclosed sample. These reports are divided up into two parts, when a person is injured the upper part of the report properly filled out is immediately sent to the insurance company, and the lower or supplemental report is kept by the employers until the return of the injured employee, when it is properly filled out and sent to the insurance company who make proper compensation and other restitution.

As the time allotted me for the analysis of reports was more or less limited, I was only able to analyze one cotton mill and two woolen mills. These mills are situated in Massachusetts and are large and efficiently managed plants. The duration of my analysis was for six months, from July 1, 1913, and ending Dec. 31, 1913.

Accidents are classified as temporary and compensative, or slight and serious. Temporary and slight accidents are accidents which do not cause a man to stay away from work for more than 14 days. Compensation commences on the 15th day and thus all accidents causing over two weeks' unemployment are severe or compensative or serious accidents.

Accidents attributed to general causes are very numerous and may be included as follows:—cars on tracks, falls on floors, falls on stairs, falls from stairways or ladders, foreign substances in eyes, elevators, electrically stepping on nails or glass, and others too numerous to mention.

I have made four tables each for cotton and for wool, labelling them 1c, 2c, etc., for tables 1, 2, etc., of the cotton mill, and 1w, 2w, etc., for tables 1, 2, etc., of the woolen mill. An examination of the tables will indicate that the nature of the tabulations are the same for both cotton and wool.

Tables 1c and 1w show the mechanical elements involved, that is for the machine causing the accident the mechanical element involved, such as gears, rolls, etc., are shown and the number of accidents with their nature, whether slight or serious indicated. An examination of these tables will disclose the fact that more accidents are due to general causes than to any special cause.

Tables 2c and 2w show the number of days lost by accidents due to different machines of the textile industry. These tables disclose the fact that more time is lost by general or miscellaneous accidents than by actual machines.

Tables 3c and 3w show the hours of accidents. In the analysis of this table it would be best to refer to plots 3c and 3w. From the general shape of the curves they are about the same. Most of the accidents occur between 10.30 and 11.30 o'clock in the morning and between 2.30 and 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Tables 4c and 4w show the parts of the body affected by the accidents and also show whether the injured persons were temporary or compensative. From the examination of the tables, and also plots 4c and 4w, it is evident that the most affected parts of a man are what are known as the upper limbs, that is, the shoulders, arms, wrists and hands.

From my investigations and study of accidents I derive the following conclusions:

1.—Relative hazards from machines in the cotton and woolen industry are practically the same.

2.—More accidents are due to general causes than the combinations of all machines either in cotton or woolen.

3.—The greatest number of accidents occur between 10.30 and 11.30 o'clock in the morning, and between 2.30 and 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

BURNS AMERICAN FLAG

Pastor Sentenced to 30 Days and Fined $100 for Desecrating the Stars and Stripes

NEW YORK, June 2.—Bouck White, pastor of the Church of the Social Revolution, who last night participated in the burning of the American flag and other national emblems in the rear of his church, was today found guilty by the court of special sessions of desecrating the American emblem and was sentenced to 30 days in the penitentiary and to a fine of $100. The offense of which he was convicted today was the desecration of the American flag in circulars he caused to be distributed some weeks ago.

Police Commissioner Woods today ordered an investigation of the burning last night of the flags which were placed in a "melting pot."

The affair was described by White as the "birth of internationalism." It is alleged that the American flag was thrown to the flames by Albert Henkel, described as an artist, who afterward unfurled a banner of "International Industrialism."

The police commissioner said today that if the facts were as reported it was an "outrage that should not be tolerated." He directed a deputy to confer with the district attorney and said that if that official believed the participants in the "melting pot" episode should be punished, the detectives would obtain the evidence.

INVESTIGATING MURDER

State and City Police Searching for Murderer of Seven Year Old Melrose Girl

MELROSE, June 2.—State and city police under the active direction of Mayor Charles H. Adams today continued their investigation of the assault and murder of 7-year-old Loretta Winifred Wakelin, whose body was found yesterday in the woods near her home in the Swain's pond section of the city.

Mayor Adams and Alderman Albert M. Tibbatts in a visit to the scene of the crime found a school book which the child carried when she was attacked while on her way to school. It was in the underbrush a short distance from the spot where the body was found. The police today were endeavoring to locate and question every man known to have been in the vicinity yesterday. Several suspects already have been eliminated.

Mayor Adams had under consideration the question of offering a reward, but no action along this line has been taken, as the mayor said today he believed no added stimulus was necessary to urge the police and citizens in their investigations. Such a step, he added, might be taken at a meeting of the board of aldermen Monday.

"The police are doing their utmost to locate the perpetrator of the atrocious crime," said the mayor, "and while we have no very promising clue we hope for developments which will lead to the arrest of the assailant. State Police Officers Thomas Eustace and Silas P. Smith are working with Chief of Police Kerr, and members of the Melrose department to this end."

Mayor Adams said that the officials attached no importance to the finding of a pile of male clothing on a bluff near the place where the child's body was found. This clue, like all others, however, was being given the closest attention, he said.

WELCOMED INTO THE NAVY GOING TO CHICAGO

Annapolis Graduates, Coming Into Service at Period of Its Largest Expansion, Says Daniels

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 2.—Secretary Daniels today welcomed the graduating class at the naval academy into actual naval service with an address counselling a steady continuance on their part of the training and studies begun at Annapolis in order that the navy, dependent upon their knowledge for efficient expansion and keeping, might remain equipped and prepared always for any emergency. The secretary told the graduates they were coming into the navy at the period of its largest expansion and its highest efficiency and when lessons from Europe point directly to the need of trained men in war if human life is to be spared from the killing of men unprepared and unskilled in the science of militarism.

"We have learned as never before during the present world war," the secretary said, "that courage on the field of battle is the commonest, as well as the most glorious attribute of our humanity. The man who, in patriotic outbursts, hurries to volunteer on land or sea often fails to appreciate the fact that his service lacks the highest value unless he is trained in arms. The pathos of human lives sacrificed in war because of unready-ness is the saddest lesson taught by the European war. It is a lesson which has served to awaken America to the need of training men."

The training that produces skill and efficiency, said the secretary, should be encouraged among naval officers after they are graduated if the navy is to profit by their services.

"Another lesson of the war and one needed in America," he continued, "is that industrial preparedness must go hand in hand with building battle cruisers and other naval craft, and securing more trained officers and men. Most of the great nations had but dimly understood that ability to quickly mobilize the resources and convert industrial plants into munition factories as important as to mobilize men."

"I counsel you," he continued, "to early marry yourself to a special branch of the service, for an ounce of expert knowledge in the days that are before you will be worth a pound of general information. The man who is to win the highest place in the navy of the future will be looked up to because he has made himself a master of his specialty. The time will come when expert knowledge will be the chief demand upon you."

The graduates also were reminded that "the old things are passing away and new ones must be devised." The responsibility of providing weapons and strategy to meet the unrevealed possibilities of certain instruments of war, he said, in conclusion, would devolve upon them.

FRANK MORAN AND JACK DILLON
FOR NIGHT OF JUNE 20

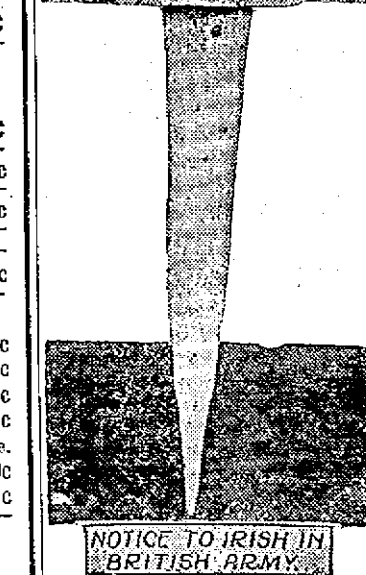

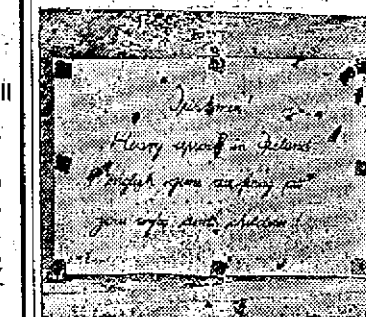

NEW YORK, June 2.—Frank Moran of Pittsburgh and Jack Dillon of Indianapolis, heavyweight championship contenders, will meet in a 10-round bout at Washington park, Brooklyn, on Thursday night, June 20. The bout was clinched today after many weeks of negotiations, and will be definitely arranged tonight when the Dorgan, manager of Moran, and Sam Marburger, director of Dillon's pugilistic affairs, will sign the articles.

Harry Pollok, Dan McKelrick and Jack Curley are the promoters of the bout, and they will give Moran $25,000 for his end of the purse, and Dillon will receive $15,000. Moran will have his choice of 40 per cent. of the gross receipts and Dillon can have 25 for his share, if the amount goes above his guarantee. Five thousand dollars will be posted by the promoters tonight with George Considine to bind the match, and the remainder of the purse will have to be hung up a day or two before the bout takes place.

This is the biggest bout that New York has had since the Moran-Willard go in Madison Square Garden and the promoters are counting on drawing a gate of nearly $100,000, provided the weather is favorable. There are enough seats in Washington park, former home of the Brooklyn Feds, to accommodate 25,000 persons, and extra seats will be built before the bout. Moran, with his trainer, Willie Lewis, left last night for Saratoga Springs to get into condition. It was there that he prepared himself for his bout with Willard and when he entered the ring he was as perfect physically as he could have been. Dillon has not yet selected his training camp. The "Man-Killer" from Indianapolis will concede about 40 pounds to Moran, and will weigh probably between 165 and 170, against 305 for the Pittsburgh blonde.

GIVING NEWS OF REVOLT IN DUBLIN

NOTICE TO IRISH IN BRITISH ARMY

When the news of the Irish uprising reached the German firing line in France some of the zealous Teutons thought they saw an opportunity to win some Irishmen from the British cause. So they erected a placard, which is reproduced here, with for the Irish to read. The wording runs: "Irishmen! Heavy Up! In Ireland, English guns are firing at your wives and children! The English account of the incident says that 'the Munsters greeted its appearance with a volley of bullets and the same night made a raid and carried off the placard in triumph.' Note the bullet holes in the placard."

A QUARTER CENTURY AGO

The year 1890 was a year of no-licence in Lowell, and as a result drug stores, so-called, sprang up in every kind of vacant stores and they appeared to thrive, though some occasionally some of them would occasionally visit by the liquor officers. When the city went "yes" in the municipal election that year, and license was restored in May, 1891, it was at first believed that the return of the licensed saloons would cause the elimination of the bogus drug stores. Such, however, was not the case, and a quarter of a century ago at this time of year, with the saloons in full blast, there were more drug stores in Lowell than there have been at any time since. In those days there was no sandwich law that made it easy to get a drink on the Sabbath, and the hotels in selling liquor had to take the same chances as were taken by any other non-licensed places, and hence they were inclined to be careful on account of the money invested in their places. Thus, the drug store, which sold only one dollar for licenses, did a land office business on the Sabbath. The situation relative to the drug store in Lowell, a quarter of a century ago, was sized up by "Monte Christo," the old Sun's special writer, as follows: "Unless the real estate men get a move on and finish up the buildings already under construction there will not be stores enough to accommodate the local drugists. There is a new drug store opening in Lowell every half hour. We have had a reputation in the past as great manufacturers of patent medicines, but Lowell will soon be known throughout the country as the city where all the people live on drugs and chemicals and buy and sell nothing else. The future bill of fare in Lowell will most likely include: hocus, hum, sarsaparilla chowder, fried porous plaster, and cod liver dressing, linseed mush with cough syrup, and all that sort of thing. We will soon have a line of drug stores on both sides of Merrimack street, from Bridge street to Pawtucket falls, and an unbroken line from the postoffice to the burying ground. We need them all; we are a very sick crowd, and our city fathers are the cause of it all. Any kind of a character can open a drug store and get a license from the Lowell board of aldermen if he only knows the difference between a porous plaster and a coal sieve."

But the day of the "hocus" drug store has long since passed away and comparatively few of them are complained of in these enlightened times. The state board of pharmacy assisted in cleaning them up. Simon B. Harris, who quartered of a century ago was busily engaged in the good work of cleaning up the roadhouses along the road to Lawrence, subsequently entered the employ of the state board of pharmacy and while on the job was the terror of all liquor selling drugists. It will be recalled that it was over a sale of liquor made in a local drug store, a quarter of a century ago, that the supreme court rendered its famous decision absolving the proprietor from responsibility in the event of a clerk disobeying his orders in his absence.

A Quarter Century Novelty

Says The Sun of quarter of a century ago:

"The Channing fraternity connected with the Unitarian church has outlined a plan for a temperance saloon to be opened in this city, and to offer attractions equal to those of the liquor saloons, in the shape of temperance drinks of all kinds, facilities for harmless games, with nourishing soups for the sick and poor. This undoubtedly would do good, if properly conducted, and it is well at least to make the experiment. In order to ascertain how far such a saloon would be patronized and whether it will draw any of those who frequent the liquor saloons."

Well-meaning, enthusiastic, but unsophisticated were those good people of the Channing fraternity, of quarter of a century ago, when they attempted to furnish a rival for liquor, without a kick in it. They might have installed a cabaret, or have brought Mary Pickford or Charlie Chaplin here, in person, but unless they put a stick in the flowing bowl they didn't have a burglar's chance to beat out old John Barclaycorn in a race for popularity. But there's no denying the fact that conditions relative to the sale of liquor have improved remarkably in quarter of a century, and there has been an additional improvement since the beginning of the present year.

An Old Time Nuisance

Says The Sun of quarter of a century ago:

"The conductors of some of the street cars find passengers complaining about the oil of the kerosene lamps dropping on their clothing."

That efficiency expert who is appearing for the Day State, at the hearings before the public service commission at the state house should quote this item as another argument in behalf of six cent fares, as there are no droppings from incandescent lamps, and, today, their passengers' clothing is protected against ruin, where quarter of a century ago they took a chance. But when one enters some of the cars that the company has been running in Lowell, recently, instinctively he looks up to see if they have the oil lamps installed for they are certainly old-fashioned cars. Not long ago The Sun published a complaint from passengers on the North Chelmsford car who had to ride on a leaky car, getting a drenching every time the rain fell.

Some Class to It, of T.

That there was some class to the board of trade of quarter of a century ago is evidenced by the following which appeared in The Sun of that time:

"The board of trade is planning a two days' trip to the White mountains this summer, instead of the regular picnic, or outing."

In those days they went by train. Now they might make the trip over that celebrated highway from the mountains to the sea, for a part of which the board was in a measure responsible.

Sons of Veterans

The fine appearance of the Sons of Veterans in the Memorial day parade suggests the fact that they have been prominent in this city for over quarter of a century, and just quarter of a century ago the state convention of the organization was held in this city. Huntington hall being the scene of the meeting. There were present 226 delegates, representing a total membership in the state at that time of 4375, divided among 134 camps. Closely following that state convention a new camp of the order was established in this city and named after Hon. Frederick T. Greenhalge. Its first officers were: Captain, G. N. Howard; first lieutenant, Fred L. Knapp; second lieutenant, L. F. Bradford; camp council, Walter H. Coburn; Charles Bell; Quartermaster, W. Thayer; color guard, E. Hutchinson.

Bricklayers Are Busy

An item in The Sun of quarter of a century ago, stating that the bricklayers had started an agitation for $4 per day, calls to mind the fact that the present year has been the busiest in the history of the local bricklayers, and with their overtime and Sunday work on the munitions plants some of them are getting twice $4 per day. The $4 day for bricklayers has been in vogue for some time, and in some cities they get much more than that rate of wages.

THE WALKER MEMORIAL

BUILDING WILL OCCUPY THE MIDDLE OF THE CHARLES RIVER BASIN FRONT

Ground has been broken for the Walker Memorial of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the corner stone will be laid on Monday, June 12 at 2 p.m. in the presence of some thousands of alumni from all parts of the country in the fulfillment of a plan which has been next the hearts of the alumni for a number of years.

The building is to occupy the middle of the Charles river basin front of the easterly half of the Technology holdings along the Esplanade, a half that, from the beginning, has been set aside for student activities. Here there is already established the athletic field with a track that is said to be the best in the country and here already constructions are in progress to be ready in the fall for housing a good many of the students in dormitories which have all the natural advantages of the situation and are in proximity to the class rooms and matters in which the students will be interested in their spare hours. Of the latter the Walker Memorial will be the centre, geographically as well as socially.

The Walker Memorial, a beautiful building which is in harmony with the educational group and carries out the same ideas and the same classic style and in the same warm-tinted limestone, will be restful to the eye and at the same time will be convenient for the social uses which the club of all Technology requires. There will be a great dining hall, the largest in Greater Boston, which will readily seat eight or nine hundred smaller refectories scattered about in other parts of the building, a vast gymnasium in which the cadet corps could perform its evolution if necessary, and a grand foyer for mass meetings, so arranged as to afford a great series of living rooms for the students, who, under the new conditions, will have supplied to them the one feature that Technology life has lacked to a considerable extent, the opportunity for the students to get together under favorable conditions for personal intercourse.

The Walker Memorial will have rooms galore for the accommodations of the student activities of which there are more than thirty, a library, some space reserved for the instructing staff, and courts for indoor sports, and will be in fact the great meeting ground for the twenty-five hundred individuals who will form the Technology family when it gets moved to its new home.

The beginnings of the construction have of necessity been delayed till now, and it will obviously be impossible to have the Memorial complete by the time of the dedication exercises on June 12, 13 and 14 next, but the essential portions of the structure will be ready for the students when they assemble in the fall, and these will include the dining hall and gymnasium. Two or three months later the whole building will be at the service of the students.

The Walker Memorial was suggested shortly after the death of President Walker and a fund was subscribed which touched about $100,000. It was to be a memorial that was peculiarly appropriate since in his life and while he was president he realized the fundamental need of the Institute for what may be termed a social side. Without dormitories, with the students scattered through homes and lodging houses in every part of greater Boston, there could be no student life distinctive of the college. It was an idea of his to correct the need, but at the time it was the existence of Technology that was General Walker's chief care, so that the luxury of student accommodations could not come during his day.

There were associated with the original idea some plans with reference to gymnasium, student restaurant and the like. This was in the days of a Technology of much smaller proportions than now. Presently there was developed a plan for providing meals. This has become a permanent feature of Institute administration, and secondary to the experience of some other colleges has proved a financial success, and moreover has furnished a number of students with the wherewithal to get through the school. In providing a building for the restaurant it was easy to make a great living room and here the students have fared fairly well in expectation of greater things. Meanwhile there came the current due to the fact that the Institute, on account of its rapid growth, must presently seek another home for itself. Thus it is that although plans were once actually drawn for a memorial building to be located on Trinity Place it was deemed best to defer the construction of the memorial till the future home of Technology should be decided.

This has been done and the educational structures are complete in outward form so that the Walker Memorial is next in order, and the plans of the proposed building have been approved informally by the authorities. It is the presentation of the Walker Memorial according to the original idea of students' club building, of three stories the cost of which will be about half a million dollars. A portion of the fund is in hand and the alumni will be asked to see that the construction does not lag, and from their past records it is evident from the beginning that their subscriptions will be all sufficient for the purpose.

The Esplanade front of the memorial will be simple and in keeping with the educational buildings in architecture, with a great engaged portico of half-a-dozen massive columns. Entering the visitor will find himself in a spacious tripartite lobby, with a great lounge on one side and the equally large library and reading room on the other. Straight ahead will be the dining hall with its 3,000 square feet of floor space, back of which are the kitchen and service rooms. The building is H-shaped in form, the dining room being in the bridge. Engineers will describe it as an I-beam in section with an exaggerated web.

The dining hall goes up through two stories, the second forming a balcony useful in general for general consultation purposes and on special occasions for the great hall will be used for mass meetings, dances and other great student functions will afford a splendid vantage ground from which to see what is going on.

Overhead there will be the gymnasium and dozens of little rooms for societies or special purposes. There will be a bathroom with always, rifle range, big kitchen and bakery, storage rooms and the check rooms, utility offices, administration, etc.

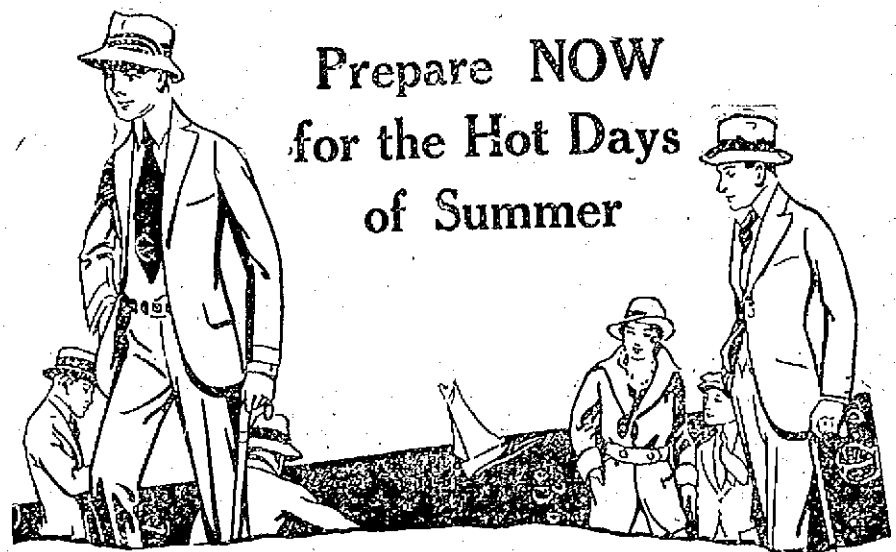

With the athletic field so close at hand there will be later constructions to care for the grand stand, lockers and showers and a field house, so that the big gymnasium in Walker Memorial will be permanently be relieved of its outdoor athletic company which it will

THE MAYFLOWER OUTING

Once upon a time the "Three E" children's father said at breakfast time: "Children if you can be ready in half an hour I will take you with me today into the country. I have to go on business and the trip will take me very near the woods where you children can hunt for Mayflowers."

The children were very pleased that they could go for they always enjoyed the trips they took with their father and in a short time they were packed away in the bottom of the wagon which their father had covered with straw. Their mother had given them a big box of lunch and Eric was watching it as though he knew he was going to get some of it instead of the dog biscuit he always ate at home.

Edna told them a story as they rode along and before they knew it they were at the edge of the wood and a father was out lying the horse to a tree near by. How good the woods smelled! They found plenty of flowers, but they didn't pick any of them, but ran off to look for Mayflowers. They had to hunt hard for them and push back the soft earth and grass which had covered them all winter. Some were pale pink, almost white, while others were pretty rose pink color and when they looked very pretty and the children agreed to take them home to their mother.

Edna had brought a basket and after they had gathered the bunch for their mother they put the rest into a basket to take home to their other friends.

Edward heard his father call and ran to meet him while Edna and little Ethel spread out the lunch on a mossy rock near a cool spring. What a lunch it was and how the children did eat. Eric was given a chicken bone as a special treat which he took with a wag of his tail and then ran off to eat it all by himself under a tree. When they had finished they washed their hands in the brook and when their father was ready to go home.

All at once they heard Eric bark and they ran to see what he was barking at. They found the dog watching a hole and barking as hard as he could and digging with his paws at the same time. Their father said: "No thought! It was a woodchuck's hole, but if it was Mr. Woodchuck's hole enough to stay way down in it while Eric was around."

My fingers were drawn toward the palm of my hands, the knuckles enlarged and it was impossible to straighten them. My shoulders were stiff and painful, as well as the muscles from my head to my shoulder. My knees gave me a great deal of trouble on account of stiffness and pain. THE PHAROAKS

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 2.—El Arish, one of the world's forgotten places until the English bombarded it a few years ago, is the subject of a war geography bulletin, issued today by the National Geographic society from its Washington headquarters, which says:

"With its large square fort and battlement walls, El Arish presents a much more formidable and imposing appearance, viewed from the Mediterranean to the north and from the Desert of Th to the south, than its importance has warranted in recent years. Formerly a populous halting place for the numerous caravans following the 'short desert route' from Egypt to Syria, its trade has waned materially since the completion of modern railway connections with Jaffa, Port Said and Alexandria. The town clings to the banks of the Waddi-el-Arish, a stream which becomes a small torrent after every rain. It is more than a hundred miles southwest of Jerusalem and a slightly shorter distance from the Suez canal, which lies to the west.

"The recent hostilities in this area have revived a host of historical associations dating as far back as the time of the Pharaohs when this town was a place of exile for political prisoners, its ancient name being Rhinoklura. Its present name is supposed to be derived from the custom which obtained here of cutting off the noses of malefactors whose death sentences had been commuted.

"Some 30 miles to the east of El

Arish, on the Egyptian-Syrian boundary, lies ancient Rhaphia, now called Bir-Rafa, where Josephus tells us that the Roman conqueror Titus made his first stop on his march against Jerusalem. Here also Sargon overwhelmed the Egyptians in the eighth century before the Christian era, and 500 years later there was fought on the same sands the famous battle between Ptolemy, Philopator and Antiochus, when the charging elephants of both armies played such a spectacular role. Of these great beasts, which had been introduced into Syrian and Greek warfare after Alexander's conquests in India, much was expected. The battle opened with a trumpeting dash of the opposing armored mountings 73 feet. Ptolemy's forces commanded 73 of the terror-inspiring chargers while Antiochus sent into the fray 102. With the first onslaught practically all of Ptolemy's elephants were captured, yet he won the day.

"El Arish fell before Napoleon's Egyptian army in September, 1798, the credit for the city's fall being given to France's great general, Kleber, commander of the vanguard which also seized Jaffa and Gaza. It was during this campaign that Napoleon committed the great atrocity at Jaffa, shooting those prisoners whom he could neither guard nor feed, yet whom he feared to release. After Napoleon's departure Kleber concluded a convention at El Arish with the English admiral Sir William Sidney Smith, whereby the French were to be allowed to capitulate and were to receive safe transport back to France. This agreement was revoked by Lord Keith, however. Whereupon Kleber with 10,000 men marched to Jaffa and administered a crushing defeat to the Turks who outnumbered him 6 to 1. Had not a fanatic assassinated the great French tactician on the day that Napoleon won the battle of Marengo, the fate of French arms in Egypt might have been different.

"The admiral Smith whose agreement with Kleber was disallowed was the same British officer who had caused the signal defeat of Napoleon before the walls of Acre, a relief work for which a grateful parliament voted him an annuity of a thousand pounds.

"In the center of the town of El Arish is a granite wall with an inscription in hieroglyphics, perpetuating a curious legend about the Egyptian god Shu. A short distance beyond the walls the traveler is shown the ruins of the building in which Baldwin I, one of the Crusader kings of Jerusalem, died in 1118, after an unsuccessful attack on Egypt."

BRAVE DEFENSE

150 British Soldiers Held Positions Against Great Odds

LONDON, June 2.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—The defense by the British at the Egyptian desert post at El-Dueidar during the Turkish raid of April 23 deserves to be chronicled as among the memorable incidents of the war, according to Reuters' special correspondent at the general headquarters of the Egyptian expeditionary force. On that Sunday 150 British soldiers held a position far too extended for such a small garrison, against a force of Turks and Arabs six times their own number, says the correspondent.

The location of defense is a small oasis in a depression in the sandy waste about 12 miles east of the Suez canal. The British had erected two redoubts and several small isolated posts in the vicinity of a grove of date palms. These defenses were not completed at the time of the raid.

In a mist so thick that the defenders were barely able to discern the barbed wire fifty feet in advance of their redoubts, the attack began at 8 o'clock in the morning. Rifle fire beat back the first assault very quickly, according to the correspondent, the Turks retiring to form.

Capt. Roberts of the Royal Scots Fusiliers was in command. In the absence of communication trenches, he was unable, after the mist lifted at 9 o'clock to send reinforcements, ammunition and messages to the isolated posts, as the attackers' rifle and machine gun fire swept the intervening spaces. One post was held by eight men, three of whom were wounded early in the engagement. To the extreme right, some of the British lay out in the open and fought off enemy attempts to reach the rear of the defenses.

Returning to the attack, the enemy brought up a mountain gun and with it fiercely shelled the oasis, but, according to the correspondent, the aim was wasted and little damage was done. From a ridge to the left a machine gun raked the eastern range of the oasis.

The attacking force numbered 120 Turkish camel corps and about 750 Arabs, together with two mountain guns and 60 artillerymen. The British, after holding their positions throughout the day, resisted the final and most desperate attack which began at 7 o'clock at night, this assault consisting of three rushes. When it had been beaten off, most of the enemy dead were found within fifty yards of the British trench, one Turk being found within twenty yards. The defenders had suffered a great many casualties.

Meanwhile news of the attack had reached brigade headquarters, seven miles away, and two companies of infantry had been sent to the garrison, which they reached about 9 o'clock after a trying march through deep sand. The officer commanding these fresh troops had orders to take the offensive at the first opportunity and drive off the enemy but found that the latter was too strong, and further infantry reinforcements were despatched from brigade headquarters, while two squadrons of Australian Light Horse hurried up from a place eighteen miles away.

Before the arrival of these last reinforcements, however, the Turks and Arabs began to fall back, and a British counter-attack drove off the rear guard, twelve of the enemy being captured. The Australian Light Horse assisted in the full retreat but were unable to overtake the camels on which the enemy was mounted.

The Turks and Arabs lost 70 dead, one wounded and 31 prisoners, according to the correspondent, who does not state the British casualties. The latter included Capt. A. C. Brice, of the Army Service Corps, the only officer of the original garrison killed, and Lieut. Crawford, of the Royal Scots Fusiliers, wounded. Capt. Brice met death while trying to rescue Lieut. Crawford, who was lying on the sand, exposed to a deadly fire.

STRIKE IS ADVERTED

Doston University Degree Candidates Object to $10 Graduation Fee—Not Session, But Finally Vote to Pay

BOSTON, June 2.—A strike of the entire graduating class of Boston University Law school which threatened to mar the university commencement day exercises next Wednesday in Tremont Temple was averted yesterday when the class averted the suggestion of Pres. Lemuel H. Murlin of the university to submit its differences with the school authorities to the university trustees.

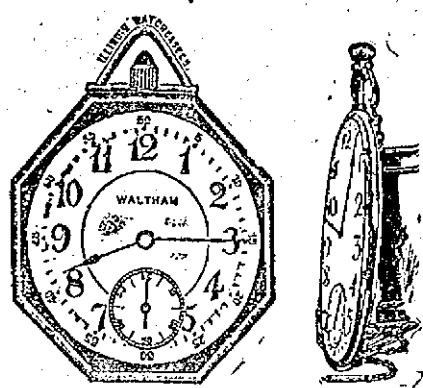

The cause of the trouble and excitement was the objection of the candidates for degrees to payment of a graduation fee of $10 each, which was established this year for the first time. In a long and spirited session between the class and Pres. Murlin, during which many of the seniors faced the university president and told him the fee was illegal, the cooler heads prevailed, the excitement subsided and the class voted to adopt Pres. Murlin's suggestion to pay the fee under protest and then take the question up with the trustees at their annual meeting next Tuesday.

HELP FOR WORKING WOMEN

Some Have to Keep on Until They Almost Drop. How Mrs. Conley Got Help.

Here is a letter from a woman who had to work, but was too weak and suffered too much to continue. How she regained health—

Frankfort, Ky.—"I suffered so much with female weakness that I could not do my own work, had to hire it done. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I tried it. I took three bottles and I found it to be all I needed. Now I feel as well as ever I did and am able to do all my own work again."

I recommend it to any woman suffering from female weakness. You may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. JAMES CONLEY, 516 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. All women are invited to inspect the laboratory of the Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass. It is interesting and instructive.

mentioned, it is the wife mother who makes the very first dresses with arms and neckbands in like proportion. With the addition of cuffs and a turn-down collar, these dresses are not only fit for several months' wear, but have the boyish air. Make the cuffs very long and turn them up; the little arms will all too soon outgrow them. No more bumped baby heads from falling against unrelenting crib sides. The new padded adjustable cushions have banished that sorrow forever, so that one burden is lifted from the anxious mother's heart. The pads come in sets already made, are of quilted muslin with crocheted edges, and have tape to hold them in place. They launder splendidly.

A child's skull is but little more than putty in substance and it is up to the mother to make it shapely. There is not the least excuse for any child having an ugly nose. The tiny bodies are so plastic that it is only necessary to have the will and determination to make them anything one wishes them to be. Home massage under the instruction of a nurse or doctor is the foundation for your little girl's future beauty and your son's straight shoulders and strong body.

A beauty specialist declares that any mother can make her baby have curly hair by always brushing the hair backward when it is damp and using a cream from the hair store instead of the way the hair grows. She says ringlets and waves are trained.

When a child likes or craves sweets it is the usual excuse of an indulgent parent. Every child likes his own way, but that is no reason why he should not be trained to obedience and self-control. A child's fondness for sweets can hardly be considered a normal instinct. As a matter of fact, supported by every day experience, no causes are productive of more disorders of digestion than the free indulgence in desserts and sweets by young children. It is a constantly increasing tendency, not easily controlled, as a child grows older and in early childhood, the only safe rule is to give none at all.

A nursing mother should lead a simple, natural life, should have regular out-of-door exercise, preferably walking or driving, as soon after her confinement as her condition will permit. She should be as free as possible from unnecessary cares and worry, her rest at night should be disturbed as little as possible, she should go to bed early and lie down for at least one hour in the middle of the day. A nursing mother has the child's health in her own hands, and should use every precaution to live correctly.

If a child is two or more years old, the only effective means of weaning from the bottle is through hunger. The bottle should be taken away at once and entirely, and nothing allowed except milk from a cup until the child takes this willingly. Sometimes a child will go an entire day without food, occasionally as long as two days, but one should not be alarmed on this account and yield. This is a matter of the child's will and not of his digestion, and when once he has been conquered it is seldom that any further trouble is experienced.

Few mothers realize how to properly lift their children. When a young baby is to be lifted from its bed, the right hand should grasp the clothing below the feet, and the left hand should be slipped beneath the infant's body to its head. It is then raised upon the left arm. This method is the best because the entire spine is supported, and no undue pressure is made upon the chest or abdomen, as often happens if the baby is grasped around the body or under the arms.

HOW TO WASH YOUR FACE

If you wash your face in the wrong way every day for a year you won't be as pretty a girl at the end of that time as you were at the beginning.

Your skin will be coarsened and your color spoiled, and if you look at yourself in a good light you will see many little wrinkles.

This is the right way of washing your face:

Start by bathing it in clear hot water.

Apply a little good, pure soap to a soft flannel or your fingers, and go thoroughly well over your face with this.

Rinse the soap off again with hot water.

Sponge your face lightly with cool—not cold—water.

Dry your face downward. Perhaps you don't know that by careless rubbing upward you can very soon spoil the shape of your nose.

Brush or comb your eyebrows, which will have become a little rumpled with the drying of your face. If you leave them as they are they will grow into bad lines.

It is not necessary to use soap on your face more than once a day. If you come home at night with a thoroughly greasy face and neck, you can cleanse them best by rubbing a little pure toilet cream all over them and then taking this off again with a bit of soft rag. The grease will bring the dirt away wonderfully. After you have wiped it all off, bathe your face in warm water.

If you are very pale it is a good thing to splash cold water up into your face when you have finished washing. Throw it up briskly with both hands from the basin.

AMERICA'S PROVED NEUTRALITY

There are few, if any, who can discuss the war dispassionately and it goes without saying that no thinking man is really neutral. Whether from honest abstract conviction, inherited prejudice, racial affinity or dislike or some other compelling reason the judgment of individuals is formed in certain moulds, and while all patriotic Americans put the interests of America first, each individual American has a leaning to one side or other of the belligerents. No man can be wholly neutral in watching any contest, and certainly not while watching a titanic grapple with which one's inmost emotions are so intimately linked.

With the official side of the American government it is different, and the present administration has striven honestly and honorably to maintain a neutral neutrality, not interfering in the war except to protect American rights or the broader rights of humanity. Now that the presidential campaign is approaching, various elements are striving to fasten the guilt of unfair bias on President Wilson and his cabinet, but these attacks are fated to fail if both still triumph over falsehood.

Not alone in this country but in all the warring nations is America occasionally accused of being unneutral in the war, and this is one of the surest proofs of our neutrality. When our state department sends out a note of protestation against Germany, England rejoices and Germany protests; when we send a note of protestation against England, Germany rejoices and England protests. The warring nations in their destructive hate have thrown international law to the winds and they are opposed to anything that is against their respective policies of expediency.

Now that the world is talking of possible peace, proofs that America has been truly neutral are not lacking. As the president of the greatest non-belligerent power, which has spoken for all neutrals, President Wilson has been prominently mentioned as one of the intermediaries for a settlement. Whether acting alone or in concert with Pope Benedict, King Alfonso and other rulers, it has been said from the first that the American president would have a great part in shaping the terms of the new international agreement.

It is most significant that the American papers report on the same day two distinct protests against the president as peacemaker—one from England and the other from Germany. In England, Lord Cromer—who does not speak officially for the British government—declares that President Wilson is not in sympathy with England's aims and so cannot be accepted as an intermediary by England. In Germany several violent speeches in the Reichstag have declared that because of the sale of arms to England and the submarine controversy, Germany cannot take kindly to the mediation of President Wilson.

If a proof of American neutrality is needed, here it is. This nation has been alternately praised and blamed by both sides in the war, because American interests have in turn conflicted with the interests of both England and Germany. If President Wilson has not always sided with British interests it was because these were sometimes antagonistic to American interests as in the mail and supplies controversies, and as for the British blockade, Germany is merely placating public opinion there, knowing full well that America has been absolutely fair to the central powers.

When the belligerents come to make peace—and may it be soon!—they will speedily forget their pique against the American government and they will accept the mediation of the American president. It now looks as if there is a strong possibility of the war's ending before the presidential campaign, and if so, President Wilson will be carried into office by an overwhelming majority, for by his prudent guidance he has ensured to America the leading place in the world, with the brightest prospects of any power on earth.

PATCHING UP STREETS

Sooner or later the street department will have to tackle the job of block paving Broadway and other streets in this city that now are in a sorry state. Broadway throughout its entire length is pitted with holes and ruts, some of them of handsome proportions, and while it may do some good to fill them in, the treatment will be only temporary, and will not give ultimate relief. Last year the long and important thoroughfare was put in passable shape, but the frosts of the late winter and spring and the heavy traffic have reopened the old holes and made new ones so that the street as it stands today is one of the worst that could be seen in the commonwealth. Commissioner Morse has started to fix up the lower end and in view of the decreasing appropriation and demands in Back Central street and elsewhere he cannot do more than repair the worst defects at the present time. The fine work done on Andover street, Rogers street, Gorham street, and other streets only shows up streets like Broadway and points out to citizens of Lowell the needs that will call for immediate attention as soon as the street department has enough time, enough money and enough men.

Meantime, Commissioner Morse cannot do better than to employ permanently the repair gang which he is employing temporarily at the present time. The Sun has repeatedly and persistently called the attention of the authorities to the need for same, and if streets were attended to regularly and not left until they are in a completely defective condition, money paid to a wide-awake repair gang would be saved many times over every year. It is the policy of prevention applied to the streets, and the present state of Broadway will form the best kind of argument for those who may not be converted to the repair gang idea. As the heavy trucks increase so do the street effects, especially on smooth paving that was never intended for the industrial traffic of today.

CARRANZA'S DEMANDS

Carranza may not be an over-weighty president of Mexico, but it comes to writing notes he is John-on-the-spot. His latest diplomatic missive is long on rhetoric—to the extent of 12,000 words, but is short in logic. He now says that in contradiction to our expressed design, American soldiers have invaded Mexico, that they are there without the consent of the Mexican government—whatever that is—and that they should immediately vamoose. In fact he invites them to withdraw in the truly polite fashion of Mexico. Now, to take the note more seriously than it deserves, if the American soldiers are still in Mexico, whose fault is it? They surely are not there from choice and Washington would much rather have them somewhere else. They are there for a specific purpose and that is to protect Americans and give them the guarantee of safety that Carranza either cannot or will not give. The "invasion" of Mexico by American troops put Carranza to a test and he failed to meet it. By refusing to cooperate and by hindering instead of helping Uncle Sam's boys he showed that he is an open enemy or the ally of a designing European power. Either alternative is not complimentary to him, and it looks as though the note will be disregarded—for the present at least. A withdrawal of troops at this time would be a confession of failure, and we cannot afford to fall in such a comparatively small undertaking.

FIRES ON DUMPS

Residents of Centralville in the vicinity of First street and on the hill and also residents of Andover street on the opposite bank of the river complain of the occasional fires that at this season break out on the First street dump. These fires sometimes smoulder for days and weeks and give off a pungent smoke of a very disagreeable odor, and so they constitute a very real nuisance. It seems only a little while back to the time of the fires on the Aiken street dump and the resultant complaints, but these are happily silent. Another criticism heard from time to time is that the city employees are not sufficiently careful in dumping refuse with the effect that papers and other trash blow about the neighborhood for days after the dumping of a fresh load.

It may be possible for the city to minimize the danger of spontaneous combustion on dumps and to so dispose of stuff carted there that children may not be able to start fires. It ought to be possible also for the city to prevent papers and loose rubbish from blowing all over a section where a city dump is located. While one of the commissioners recently regretted that dump space is becoming restricted and that a longer haul will soon be necessary, there are compensating features which offset the disadvantage of dumps at a distance from the business and residential sections.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

A commission to look into the advisability of old age pensions in Massachusetts and also state insurance against sickness and unemployment is one of the possibilities of the near future if a bill now in the house passes. This is the natural outgrowth of the humanitarian legislation of the past five years and it marks a step towards the radical that would have been undreamed of a decade ago. The main question would seem to be one of economics, and if the state can afford to do all these fine things, well and good. There are many who feel, however, that we are overdoing our applied philanthropy and that there shall he a reaction which shall leave the people worse off than before. Germany seems to have adopted a wise system of old age pension and insurance, on a contributory basis, but this might not be popular here where the state is expected to do all the spending. In matters of this kind, individual instances would lead the thoughtful to approve of any law that would help, but it is a broad business question that must be settled by the head instead of the heart.

THE CRANKS

It is not strange that a man should throw a pocket knife at Col. Roosevelt or that a thug should throw stones through the window of W. K. Vanderbilt but it is strange that we have so little of this sort of thing. When one considers that we have over one hundred millions of people made up from the racial stocks of all the earth and that in our lower social strata we have dangerous demagogues, anarchists and revolutionists of all sorts who prey upon the ignorant and temperamental, the wonder is that respect for law and order is so universal. The pity is that men who ought to know better will preach inflammatory doctrines and give example that tends to agitate this element, and Col. Roosevelt himself is not free from blame. Many of his interferences are sure to arouse passion and the example of some of our multi-millionaires keeps alive what a noted churchman has called "the tumult of the envious." Even when the millennium shall have dawned, there shall be a few cranks and there are no roses without thorns, even in Arcady.

SEEN, AND HEARD

Some women remind one of pieces of ornamental hick-a-brac.

It is the hardest work to make some see that they "must pay the fiddler."

Circus day is about due, and there is no better reminder of the circus than the floor of our moving picture theatres strewn with peanut shells. Managers take notice.

A recent birthday at city hall has passed our observation simply because Mr. Fred A. Bates, agent of the health department, is too modest to talk about himself. We would not believe that he is so— but we are not going to squeal as it was told in a secret. Suffice to say that it is a grand age and he is a credit to it.

The operation of the semaphore at the various crossings has drawn out a crowd of interested spectators. We had begun to think that it was almost useless until today at the Central street crossing, after allowing several touring cars and as many big Jumbo street cars to pass unmolested, a poor, unattractive, one-lunged Lawrence street car, that was then ten minutes late was held up by the appalling challenge "Stop! Why is it that everybody picks on the Lawrence street line?"

Little Green Tents

The little green tents where the soldiers sleep and the sunbeams play and the women sleep, are covered with flowers today. And between the tents walk the weary few who were young and stalwart in '62, when they went to the war away. The little green tents are built of sod, and they are not long and they are not broad, but the soldiers have lots of room. And the sod is part of the land they saved when the flag of the enemy darkly waved the symbol of dole and doom. The little green tent is a thing divine; the little green tent is a country's shrine where patriots kneel and pray. And the brave men left, so old, so few, were young and stalwart in '62, when they went to the war away.—Boston Transcript.

His Own Mark

To a suburban clothing store which has a large foreign patronage there came the other day a young man to buy a ready-made suit of clothes. The one he picked out had to be altered slightly.

"You can have it day after tomorrow," the clerk explained complacently. On that day the young man returned. Nervously he grabbed the coat and began examining it with more than customary carelessness. In mild surprise the clerk looked on.

Suddenly a smile broke over the young man's face. Pointing to a place on the inside of the coat, he said: "Right. It's mine. See where I hit the haling?"

Full of the suspicion that is inborn, he had feared that he might not get the suit he had chosen. So, in trying-on, he had somehow or other managed to sink a tooth through the lining where the hole would show to only his knowing eyes.—Exchange.

In Self Defence

"Jones," said the officer, frowning darkly, "this gentleman complains that you have killed his dog."

"A dastardly trick," interrupted the owner of the dog, "to kill a defenseless animal that would harm no one!"

"Not much defenseless about him!" chimed in the private heatedly. "He bit pretty freely into my leg, so I ran my boy over him."

"Whereas," answered the owner, angrily, "he was a docile creature. Why did you not defend yourself with the butt of your rifle?"

"Why didn't he bite me with his tail?" asked Private Jones, with spirit.—Youth's Companion.

And Father Pays Bills

"How is Robert getting on at college?" asked the minister, who was being entertained at dinner. "Splendidly," said the proud father, who then went on to tell of his son's various social, athletic and scholastic successes, and the minister said it was a fine thing to be college bred. That evening little James, who had been an interested listener, said: "Papa, what did Mr. Brown mean by college bred?"

"Oh, that," said papa, who had been looking over his son's bills, "is a four years' loaf."

Bugs Got 'Em Next Time

An American tourist had been boasting again in the village inn.

"Talking of scarecrows," he said, "my father once put one up, and it frightened the crows so much that not one entered the field again for over a year."

He looked triumphantly around his audience. Surely that had settled these country people.

"But he was to meet his match."

"That's nothing," retorted one farmer. "A neighbor of mine once put a scarecrow into his potato patch, and it terrified the birds so much that one rasal of a crow which had stolen some potatoes came next day and put them back."

Portia's Costume Correct

Wearing the wig and gown of a baroness, the Inner Temple, Lady Eliza Rose completely upset the equanimity of Mr. Justice Neville in the London law courts the other day, when she appeared before him and attempted to plead in a case in which she was interested.

English law will admit no Portias, and Justice Neville politely but firmly told her as much.

"Are you a barrister?" was all the astonished judge could say as his eye fell on her.

"I am a barrister in my own cause," said Lady Eliza.

Justice Neville replied: "The garb that you are wearing is reserved for members of the bar, and I cannot have you masquerading in that costume here."—New York Sun.

Collier Had the Remedy

William Collier, W. L. Abington and an English actor were discussing the war problem in the grillroom of the Lundy club.

"I think it is your duty to go home and fight," declared Abington.

"It is not for you to say that," retorted the English actor. "You are a British subject yourself."

"Yes, and I tried to enlist," declared Abington. "I was ruled out on my age."

"I tried to enlist in the army, too," said the English actor, "but was ruled out on account of my health. The surgeon discovered that I had a floating kidney."

"You ought to have entered the navy," remarked Collier.

In Storage Two Years

The young lady from town was spending a week-end in the country, and she discussed glowingly to the Boston landlady of the rustic inn on the delight that real country butter and real new-laid eggs gave to a New Yorker.

Her faith in country produce was destined, however, to be rudely shaken, for on coming down to breakfast next morning, she was greatly shocked to discover the good landlady saying to her spouse:

"The lady from New York's mighty keen on fresh eggs, John. Run and

FOREST SERVICE AUTOS IN COLLISION

Manufacture of Needle Oil in the United States

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Shoe-black- ing owes its peculiar aromatic odor, faintly suggestive of the deep woods where spruce or hemlock needles pad the ground, to an oil which is manufactured from these same kinds of needles. Similar oils are obtained from the foliage and small twigs of various cone-bearing trees, and in Europe the number of purposes to which these resins of perfume in soap. They are common components of liniments and other medicinal preparations. Cedar oil is chiefly used in the preparation of insecticides, and to some extent, in making liniment.

Investigation of the yield and the value of the oil obtainable from some of our southern and western trees have been made by the forest service, partly with a view to the possible utilization of waste material left after lumbering in the national forests. In these investigations, large quantities of western yellow pines produced the most promising results, but the needle oils obtained from these pines did not surpass the already firmly established spruce and hemlock oils. The large quantities of needles and twigs are not only a sheer timber sale article, but also form a special fire hazard. An increased market for leaf oil would make possible the utilization of some of this waste material.

The industry, though small, is fairly old in the United States. The value of the annual production of needle oil is about $100,000. Black and white spruce and eastern hemlock produce very similar oils, 40,000 to 50,000 pounds annually, worth 45 to 60 cents per pound. Red cedar produces 15,000 to 20,000 pounds of oil, having the same value per pound as the spruce and hemlock oil. The conifer leaf oil produced in the United States. Besides the home product, small quantities of needle oil are imported from Europe. One of these, silver fir oil, brings four values a pound. In most cases these oils have a pleasant odor. A few are disagreeable when first distilled but become pleasant with age.

The greater portion of the oil produced in the United States is distilled by small farmers in New England during the winter months when farm work is slack. In 1912 a Seattle firm began the distillation of leaf oil from western red cedar on a large scale, but found that at the going market value of 40 cents a pound the oil scarcely repaid the cost of production. It was chiefly used in manufacturing an insecticide containing 35 per cent of cedar oil and

Planters Play Superior Baseball and Inflict Second Whitewash in Two Days

A repetition of Wednesday's matinee performance at Spalding park was presented to nearly 1600 fans yesterday afternoon when Lowell was gooseegged for the second time in succession by the New London team. As on the previous day, the score was 0 to 0.

With Martin, a youngster with a southpaw delivery, on the mound for the Planters, Lowell didn't have a chance. Not a Lowell man reached third base during the nine long innings of play and but two of the home team reached second.

Two clean hits and three scratches were all that Lord's sluggers could register while the hard hitting visiting aggregation found Matty Zieser for 13 safeties.

A change was made in the Lowell lineup and this did not prove of any benefit toward checking the speed of the league leaders. Torphy went back to shortstop with a sore finger, and Downey went over to first while Greenhalge remained on the pivot sack. Muan, who has been making a strike out record against left handers of late, was given a day off. Two of the runs came following misplays by the Lowell team. Better all round work won for the visitors, however, Lowell being outplayed in every department.

First Inning
Gloom came over the Lowell fans in the first inning when the visitors sent a man over the plate while Lord's aggregation had to be satisfied with a big cipher. Kane's poor judgment of Weiser's high fly in right field gave the New London left fielder a triple on which Dowd scored. The local players went out in the one, two, three order.

Marhefka hit one too hot for Lord to handle and he reached first but was forced at second on Dowd's grounder to Lord. Weiser sent a high fly to right garden but Kane misjudged it and Weiser traveled to third. Dowd scoring Weiser was forced at the plate on Whitehouse's grounder to Zieser. Whitehouse tried to steal second and was thrown out, Kuhlman to Torphy.

One run, two hits, no errors.

In Lowell's half Lord fled to Becker and Stimpson went out on strikes. Greenhalge sent a grounder to O'Connell and never had a look at first.

Score: Lowell 0, New London 1.

Second Inning
There was nothing doing on either side in the second inning. Rodriguez opened with a drive to Zieser who threw the runner out at first. Becker singled to left and stole second. Zieser dropped Dowd's fly in right field and Becker at second nailed him on the third try. Torphy tagging the speedy visitor off the bag, O'Connell was third out on strikes.

No runs, one hit, no errors.

In the latter half of the inning Barrows sent a grounder to Rodriguez and was out at first. Martin covering the bag, Downey reached first on a pretty single to the left field fence. Kane drew a free pass and Downey went to second. Kuhlman hit a long fly out to centre which Whitehouse nabbed. Torphy struck out.

No runs, one hit, no errors.

Third Inning
The visitors scored another run in the third, while a goose egg was registered for the home team. Rodriguez, first baseman for the New London team, injured his hand when he ran against the fence near the first base bleachers while trying to gather in a foul fly off Lord's bat, but he returned to his position at first after a few minutes delay.

Russell opened the third with a single to left field. Martin attempted to sacrifice with the result that Russell was forced at second. Zieser getting the ball and sending it to Torphy in time to get the runner. Marhefka struck out and Dowd reached first on four balls. Weiser singled to right centre field and Martin came home. White-

Fourth Inning
Ciphers were placed against the team in this inning.

Rodriguez fled to Kane. Greenhalge allowed Becker's fly to drop through his hands but a little later he made a nice catch of O'Connell's fly in lack of first base. Becker was caught while attempting to steal second. Kuhlman making a perfect throw to Torphy.

No runs, no hits, no errors.

Becker after a little run gathered in Greenhalge's fly. Barrows went out on an easy grounder. Martin, Rodriguez, Downey sent a high fly to Whitehouse and was third out.

No runs, no hits, no errors.

Score: Lowell 0, New London 2.

Fifth Inning
New London scored another run in the fifth.

Russell hit one too hot for Zieser to handle and was safe at first. He went to second on Martin's sacrifice. Marhefka flied-out to Lord. Kane singled to left and stole second. Russell scored. Dowd was forced at second when Weiser sent a grounder to Greenhalge.

One run, one hit, one error.

Kane fled to Becker and Kuhlman followed with a single to left field. Torphy flied-out to Rodriguez. Zieser singled to centre but he died on first for Lord struck out.

No runs, two hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning
Four hits by New London and one error by Lowell resulted in three runs for the visitors in the sixth inning.

Whitehouse opened the inning with a single to right field and stole second. Rodriguez reached first on a foul ball hit to Torphy. In an attempt to get "Red" at first made a bad throw and Whitehouse scored. Becker followed with a single to right. Both men were advanced on O'Connell's sacrifice. Russell singled to short left field, scoring Rodriguez. Becker came home on Martin's high fly to Kane. Marhefka closed the inning with a fly to Stimpson in left centre.

Three runs, four hits, one error.

Stimpson sent a grounder to O'Connell and failed to reach first. Greenhalge grounded to Marhefka and was out at first. Barrows sent the ball over second base, but Dowd threw bad to first and the runner was safe. Downey was third out, Marhefka to Rodriguez.

No runs, one hit, one error.

Seventh Inning
Dowd singled by Lord and Weiser fled to Kane. Whitehouse also singled by Lord. Dowd, in attempting to travel from first to third on Whitehouse's hit was thrown out by Stimpson. Rodriguez sent a grounder to Greenhalge and was out at first.

No runs, two hits, no errors.

In Lowell's half Kane sent a grounder to O'Connell and was out at first. Marhefka made a nice stop of Kuhlman's grounder and threw him out at first. Torphy fled to centre.

No runs, no hits, no errors.

Score: New London 6, Lowell 0.

Eighth Inning
Becker singled to right and was forced at second on O'Connell's grounder to Lord. O'Connell tried to steal second and was thrown out. Kuhlman to Torphy. Russell walked and Martin was third down on strikes.

No runs, one hit, no errors.

Zieser reached first when Becker dropped his fly to left. Lord fled to Becker, who threw to Rodriguez, getting Zieser for a double play. Stimpson died at first on a grounder to O'Connell.

No runs, no hits, no errors.

Score: Lowell 0, New London 6.

Ninth Inning
Marhefka flied to Stimpson. Dowd hit a grounder to Lord and was out at first.

Weiser fled to Torphy.

No runs, no hits, no errors.

Greenhalge singled but was forced at second on Barrows' grounder to O'Connell. Barrows was forced at second on Downey's grounder to Marhefka.

DIAMOND GOSSIP
The Braves showed signs of life and beat the Brooklyn leaders in a double header. Both Ragan and Rudolph were too much for the Dodgers.

New York passed up a chance to tie Brooklyn for first place by dropping a game to Philadelphia.

"Babe" Ruth and Walter Johnson fought a great pitching duel in Boston yesterday, the only run of the game being made by the Red Sox in the eighth as a result of misplays. The duel was something similar to the one between Johnson and "Joe" Wood about three seasons ago.

Joe Jackson of the White Sox is making a record. Yesterday he got a triple, two singles and a base on balls in four time up, making a total of nine safeties registered by him in as many consecutive times at the bat.

Clyde Engel, who for a time considered coming to Lowell with Manager Lord, substituted in right field for Cleveland in the second game of a double header.

If Boston continues to win as it has the past week the team will soon be in the race for first place. With Cleveland, Washington, New York and Boston bunched at the top, there would surely be something doing.

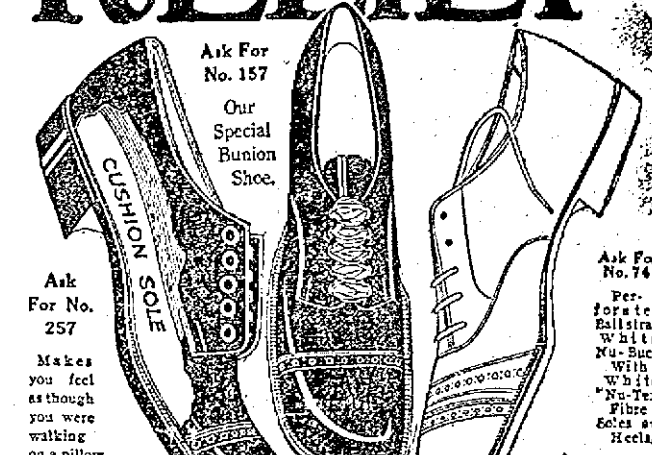

O'Neill, the Indians' regular catcher, will be remembered as a member of the Worcester team in the old New England league three or four seasons back. O'Neill was only a youngster then but he was picked up by Cleveland and is now the first string catcher.

Strunk McInnis and Oldring are the only names in Connie Mack's lineup that can be connected with the last world's series in which the Athletics participated.

Mike McNally, who is taking the place of Barry at second for the Red Sox, continued his fine work yesterday and scored the only run of the game by a wonderful sprint from second. McNally was discovered by Patsy Donovan in 1913. Donovan saw him at Utica and then Mike was purchased. He was with St. Paul under an optional agreement in 1914 and last year he was with Providence. He hails from Minoqua, Pa.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM OFF
The members of the Lowell high school team left today for Derry, N. H., where a game will be played with the Pinkerton academy nine this afternoon. The team will remain in Derry over night and journey to Manchester tomorrow to play the high school team of that city. The following players went: Capt. Lynch, Liston, A. Goodall, Falls, Mulino, Switzer, Desmond, Condon, Hayward, Callahan and Mansur.

Ross, a young twirler from the Springfield City league.

Manager Louis Pieper has protested the Lynn-Worcester game Monday afternoon on account of umpire Jack Stanford allowing pitcher Herring to go into the game when he had been taken out. It is claimed that Herring was called to the bench and was to be replaced by "Lefty" Smith. The latter had previously been ordered from the coaching lines and fined $10 so Umpire Stafford, refused to allow him to pitch. Upon Manager Hamilton sent back Herring, who was on the bench with his sweater on. At the time of the dispute Lynn was leading, 6 to 4 and Worcester finally won out, 8 to 5.

Dan Murphy, the local young catcher, did some fine work in the Lowell series. He not alone received well, but he had his head up at all times and kept the Lowell base runners close to their sacks. Murphy joined professional ranks this season and he has won all the earnings of a developing into a mighty good backstop. Experience will help to polish him up.—Lawrence Tribune.

Harry "Bud" Weiser, the New London star left fielder, was with the champion Philadelphia team of the National league last year as infielder, outfielder and pinch hitter. He was born in Harrisburg 23 years ago. He obtained his early training at Charlott, in the North Carolina league, where he led in batting in 1914. He, besides Bancroft, was the only recruit kept by Moran last year.

"Cuke" Barrows is not hitting the ball in his old time form as yet. He experienced the same trouble early in the season last year and it was thought that the burden of the managerial duties affected him. Barrows has not struck out in a home game yet this year, but he hits the ball straight at someone, usually an outfielder. With "Cuke" batting better, opposing pitchers would not find Lowell so easy.

Fast Mail Train Wrecked by Tornado Near Saunemin, Ill.—18 Injured—One May Die

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., June 2.—A tornado blew the Chicago-St. Louis fast mail train No. 17, on the Washburn road, from the tracks near Saunemin, Ill., early today injuring 18 persons, one probably fatally. The accident occurred in a deep cut, which kept the cars from overturning and probably prevented heavy loss of life.

The combination baggage and smoking car and four coaches were blown from the track. A Pullman sleeper crashed through the smoking car, tearing it to pieces. It was in the smoking car that most of the casualties occurred.

26 WERE INJURED

Twenty-six persons were injured when the Washburn night mail train No. 27 bound from Chicago to St. Louis, was blown from the tracks by a tornado early today near Saunemin, Ill.

The train was traveling forty miles an hour when it was wrecked. None of the injured was in a serious condition.

Reply to Carranza Delayed—The Troops to Stay—No Cabinet Meeting Today

WASHINGTON, June 2.—A week or more will be taken by administration officials to frame a reply to Gen. Carranza's last note threatening war if American troops are retained in Mexico, it was said today. President Wilson was out of the city and no active preparations were being made to draw up an answer. The usual cabinet meeting was cancelled, since the president was not to return until late today from Annapolis, where he went to attend the commencement exercises at the Naval academy.

Army officers today looked for a report from Gen. Pershing on his conference yesterday at Colonia Dublan with Gen. Gaviarra, Carranza's military commander in northern Chihuahua. The meeting was brief and it is assumed only questions of co-operation in troop movements were discussed. Gen. Pershing described the conference as "very satisfactory," according to unofficial reports.

The war department's plans for maintaining Pershing's column in Mexico were unchanged.

FRENCH ADVANCE IN COURSE OF HEAVY FIGHTING ON VERDUN FRONT

PARIS, June 2, 12.10 p. m.—In the course of heavy fighting on the Verdun front, which continued through the night, the French progressed slightly south of Caurettes wood, the war office statement of today announces. The struggle between Thiaumont farm and Vaux, east of the Meuse, is described as extremely violent. The artillery action on both sides was extremely heavy throughout yesterday and last night.

Aside from the Verdun fighting, the night passed quietly along the front.

The text of the statement follows: "In the Argonne there has been fighting with hand grenades in the Vauquois sector, at Courtes Chaussees and Elie Morte. We caused the explosion of several small mines, which inflicted damage upon the subterranean works of the enemy.

"On the left bank of the river Meuse a counter attack, deterred by our troops, made it possible for us to progress for one hundred yards into the communicating trenches of the enemy south of the wood of Caurettes. Between this wood and the village of Cumieres an attack on the part of the enemy was checked by our curtain of fire and the Germans could not move out.

"On the right bank of the river the battle continued yesterday and last night with extreme violence along the entire front between the Thiaumont farm and Vaux. It even spread to the east of the Vaux fort as far as Damoupe. In the region of Thiaumont and Damoupe the assault of the enemy were repulsed by our fire and our counter attacks.

"South of the Douaumont fort the Germans were successful in penetrating the southern portion of the Caillotte wood as well as the southern shores of the Vaux pond. On our right all the attacks directed upon the sector between Vaux and Damoupe were broken by the counter resistance of our troops who inflicted very heavy losses upon the enemy.

"In the course of this fighting the artillery fire reached an exceptional degree of violence and continued all along the front attacked.

"The night passed relatively quiet on the remainder of the front.

"Yesterday French air squadrons engaged in combat the group of aviators who came to bombard Bar le Due and compelled a second group of enemy machines to disperse. A German machine was brought to the ground near Etain, and in the course of this pursuit a Fokker machine, attacked by two French machines came down near Bouconville."

NAVAL BATTLE

The Losses on Both Sides Were Extremely Heavy

BERLIN, June 2.—Germany's high sea fleet met the main part of the British fleet in battle in the northern section of the North sea on May 31. In the heavy engagement which followed the German fleet, according to a report issued by the German admiralty, sank the British battleship Warspite, the British battle cruisers Queen Mary and Indefatigable, two armored cruisers believed to be of the Achilles type and a large number of warships of smaller tonnage. Several other British battleships are reported to have been damaged, including the battleship Marlborough, which was struck by a torpedo.

The German losses are announced as the battleship Pommern, sunk by a torpedo; the cruiser Wiesbaden, sent to the bottom by gun fire; the protected cruiser Frankfurt reported missing and several torpedo boats which did not return to port.

BERLIN REPORTS THE CAPTURE OF CALLEITE WOOD

BERLIN, June 2, via London, 5.30.—The capture of Callette wood, south of Fort Douaumont, on the Verdun front, and of adjoining trenches, was announced today by the war office.

A counter attack by the French southwest of Vaux wood was a failure, although made in strong force, the statement adds. The capture of seventy-six officers, 2000 men, three guns and more than a score of machine guns is reported.

The statement follows: "After an increase of artillery fire and preliminary mine explosions, strong British forces attacked last night west and southwest of Giverny. Such as had not been forced to withdraw with heavy losses by our curtain of fire were driven back after hard hand fighting.

"On the west bank of the Meuse the French repeatedly attacked without success.

"On the east bank of the Meuse we stormed Callette wood and trenches adjoining. An enemy counter-attack this morning with strong forces west of Vaux wood failed. Up to the present 76 officers, 2000 men, three cannons and at least 25 machine guns have been captured.

"Southwest of Little a British aeroplane with its occupants fell into our hands undamaged. A French single-seat battle machine was brought down in an aerial engagement over Marre ridge. Furthermore, one biplane was brought down within our reach over Vaux and another west of Moerchincien.

"The British biplane reported upon yesterday is the fourth enemy machine to be put out of action by Lieut. Mulzel.

"Eastern front: A successful German reconnoitering advance on the front south of Smirnow resulted in the capture of a few dozen prisoners. Southwest of Lake Prilavaty, a Russian aeroplane was destroyed by our

NEW HIGH RECORDS

NEW YORK, June 2.—New high records were registered by three widely divergent issues in today's early market. Norfolk and Western rose 1 1/4 to 130 1/4, Chandler Motors one point and Gulf States Steel 1 1/2 to 85 1/2. The movement otherwise was in keeping with these gains, Mercantile Marines being the most active issues. The preferred opened with a block of 1500 shares at 95 1/2 to 96, an over-night gain of 1 1/4, soon advancing to 97 on very large transactions, with an advance of a point for the common. Best sugar, Allis-Chalmers preferred, and rubbers comprised the other strong stocks. Later falls as a whole improved materially.

Additional records were made during the busy forenoon. Willy-Overland rose 15 to 32 and Beet Sugar 15-8 to 79. Meanwhile Norfolk and Western eclipsed its previous maximum, touching 133, with gains of 1 to 2 points for New York Central, Canadian Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Chesapeake & Ohio, Southern Railway preferred and some of the minor rails. "Big Four" controlled by New York Central rose 1-2 points to 59 on rumors of an early resumption of dividends. Reading and Lehigh Valley were under pressure and United States Steel was firmly in Gulf States Steel. Bonds were firm.

Another record was made in the afternoon, Marine preferred rising to 95 1/2. This was offset, however, by heaviness in coppers and profit-taking elsewhere and a marked cessation of activity.

Stocks broke violently in the last hour, wiping out virtually all gains and substituting numerous net losses. The closing was heavy.

BOSTON MARKET

BOSTON, June 2.—The elements that made last week's copper market dull and weak and others that aim to create an advance were both present in the early trading today. A result was that irregularity marked the price fluctuations. Zincs were generally lower.

BERLIN REPORTS THE CAPTURE OF CALLEITE WOOD

BERLIN, June 2, via London, 5.30.—The capture of Callette wood, south of Fort Douaumont, on the Verdun front, and of adjoining trenches, was announced today by the war office.

A counter attack by the French southwest of Vaux wood was a failure, although made in strong force, the statement adds. The capture of seventy-six officers, 2000 men, three guns and more than a score of machine guns is reported.

The statement follows: "After an increase of artillery fire and preliminary mine explosions, strong British forces attacked last night west and southwest of Giverny. Such as had not been forced to withdraw with heavy losses by our curtain of fire were driven back after hard hand fighting.

"On the west bank of the Meuse the French repeatedly attacked without success.

"On the east bank of the Meuse we stormed Callette wood and trenches adjoining. An enemy counter-attack this morning with strong forces west of Vaux wood failed. Up to the present 76 officers, 2000 men, three cannons and at least 25 machine guns have been captured.

"Southwest of Little a British aeroplane with its occupants fell into our hands undamaged. A French single-seat battle machine was brought down in an aerial engagement over Marre ridge. Furthermore, one biplane was brought down within our reach over Vaux and another west of Moerchincien.

"The British biplane reported upon yesterday is the fourth enemy machine to be put out of action by Lieut. Mulzel.

"Eastern front: A successful German reconnoitering advance on the front south of Smirnow resulted in the capture of a few dozen prisoners. Southwest of Lake Prilavaty, a Russian aeroplane was destroyed by our

MAYOR CURLEY AND EX-MAYOR FITZGERALD PAT EACH OTHER ON THE SHOULDER

BOSTON, June 2.—For the first time since he quit city hall as mayor, John F. Fitzgerald appeared at the executive chamber yesterday.

Any person who imagined there was ill-feeling between Mayor Curley and the former Mayor Fitzgerald, had taken a peek over the transom of the sanctuary.

The mayor and ex-mayor patted each other on the shoulder and exchanged felicitations in a manner that belied old time friendship.

At first, much mystery was attached to the unexpected visit of Dr. Fitzgerald. But later the mayor's office announced he had called in connection with the launching of a joint protest against an O. K. by Gov. McCall on the proposed special commission to investigate the Boston Elevated railroad.

Subsequently both the mayor and the former mayor appeared before Gov. McCall, and urged that Boston be given the representation to the commission.

Dr. Fitzgerald's plan called for the naming of five members by the mayor. Regardless of the outcome of the plan for better representation on the commission, everything was sunshine

BIG DOWEY MEETING HELD

About 700 Men Promise to Assist Billy Sunday Campaign—Parade Before Lecture

About 700 men stood up in the First Congregational church last night to be counted as active workers in the campaign to put 50,000 men in New England into Men's Bible classes before Billy Sunday comes to Boston. The men who stood up to be counted answered the call of Rev. George G. Dowsy of Philadelphia, the man at the head of the Men's Bible class campaign. Last night's meeting aimed at constructing a mechanism of men who shall personally work to increase the number of active participants in Bible class work. It was decided to begin at once a four weeks' campaign to mobilize for Bible class work.

Prior to the meeting about 400 men marched through the main streets of the city, led by the drum corps of the Pawtucketville Boy Scouts. The meeting opened at 8 o'clock and a chorus of 35 voices sang the Sunday songs.

William F. Hills presided and introduced Dr. D. E. Yarnell, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., who read the 119th psalm. Prayer was offered by Rev. Arthur Crawley Archibald, pastor of the First Baptist church, and Rev. F. F. Peterson, chairman of the Men's Bible class section, Sunday campaign, of Boston, was brought forward. He said he would be willing to come to Lowell at every opportunity to do what he might towards putting into effect the plan to recruit Bible classes. A liberal collection was taken to defray the expenses of the meeting.

Mr. Dowsy's Subject "How To Do It" was Mr. Dowsy's subject. After finding out that only four men in the large audience had ever attended a Billy Sunday meeting he allowed that practically every one present was "from Missouri." They had come to be shown and he congratulated them on that score for he said there were many on the outside who were not willing to be shown.

"You may expect your whole community to be thoroughly shaken," he said, "by the Sunday campaign. It will last for 10 weeks in Philadelphia, 20,000, 30,000 and 40,000 persons going every day to that tabernacle. There will be a genuinely widespread religious feeling. The atmosphere will be charged with it. Everybody will be talking about it. A whole lot will be for and a whole lot will be against, but I don't care whether they're for or against, so long as they talk it. There will be just two classes of persons when that campaign strikes this region: those for and those against, and the line of demarcation will be sharply drawn. I can tell you. There will be no neutral zone, make sure of that."

"Fashionable society will stop its gossip about things long enough to give the campaign a thorough discussion. Fellows in the booze joints will stop drinking long enough to have a say about Billy Sunday. The afternoon bridge players will feel it, you can bet that, for they will do something besides play bridge all of the time. They'll talk about Billy Sunday. And scores and hundreds who haven't darkened the door of a church for years will get right down to hardpan on this proposition."

"But if this campaign didn't do more than shake the community it wouldn't achieve what we're striving for. But make sure, it gets results. Hundreds and thousands are pricked in their consciences, brought to confession of their sins and there follows a presentation of themselves in the churches.

"Day laborers, high brow, school teachers, saloon keepers, policemen, all of them get the feeling that Sunday campaigning means something to them. And it does. You couldn't bamboozle and hypnotize a crew like that into following the trail. You can't strike so many different kinds with just hot air. No, it isn't hot air. It's a real message that strikes every kind of a man and woman in this world."

Bible Class Movement

"Now a word about this Bible class movement. A little over a year ago we had 12,000 men in the Bible classes of Philadelphia. Today we have 55,000, and the number is still growing. I am a Reformed Episcopalian, a member of a church which has but 10 congregations. It's a very conservative church, and it looks at things from all angles before a move is made. But, let me tell you, that church went into the Sunday campaign with both feet. When the Bible class campaign ended, a year ago last April, we had 542 members in our Men's Bible classes. Were they genuine, sincere, did they know what they were doing when they went in? Barring those who died, or moved away, or slipped back, they all have stayed, and 200 more have come in since that time. Let me tell you that they constitute over 600 assistant pastors in that church."

"Have you the qualities in your church that will make them stick? If you don't do you or Lowell any good unless you get fired up with true zeal. We show them how to do good—simply trying to be good. In Philadelphia thousands of men are not wasting time being good, they are doing good."

The Booze Dealers

"Booze dealers and distillers are going around to their conventions now, throwing out their chests and saying that Philadelphia is getting normal again. They hope it is, but it isn't. They are liars, and liars by the reports of Uncle Sam, and he isn't put out by the reports from any high moral purpose. Those reports show that 70,000 barrels of beer fewer than were delivered a year ago are being sold in Philadelphia today. When you put such a dent into the booze business that it sells 70,000 fewer barrels of booze in a year than it did a year ago, then the campaign means something vital. I don't know what you up here will call it, but I call it a revival of religion."

"There will be three things with relation to this revival which must be very marked. They are preparation, production and conservation."

"The program for the Boston campaign in 50 Bible classes with 1000 men in each class, or 50,000 men in Bible classes altogether. They told me that New England would be stiff and cold. Well, I told them that folks are folks, all over the world, and that I don't believe it, and I don't. I can get men into my Bible classes who never heard Mr. Sunday. This Bible

"ATTENDANCE AT MASS"

Since the opening of the mission for women at St. Michael's church, the congregation both at the morning and evening services has taxed the church to its capacity. This great interest is partly due to the fame of the Dominican fathers as missionaries, and thus far they have surpassed all expectations. Many women from the city and suburbs attend the services. The sermon last evening was on "Attendance at Mass On Sunday" and it was preached by Rev. Fr. Mackin, O. P., who said, in part, as follows:

"I will give you a clean obligation that shall be offered up from the rising to the setting of the sun."

"The sacrifice of the mass is the greatest act of worship a human being can offer to God. It is the highest form of sacrifice and sacrifice is the culmination of religion."

The ground of every religion, Pagan, Jewish or Christian is sacrifice. The more perfect the religion, the more perfect is its sacrifice. Because our religion is from Christ, it is the most perfect of all religions, hence its sacrifice is the most perfect—the clean obligation "that is offered from the rising of the sun to the going down of the same."

In childhood you were taught in Sunday school the meaning of a sacrifice. "It is the offering up of a living being to God by a priest and the consuming of it to acknowledge God's dominion over it and all creatures." Holy mass is all that. Here we have the altar, the priest, the victim—the consecrated host, the living, throbbing body and blood, soul and divinity of Christ Himself. At the consecration Christ offers Himself to the Eternal Father for your sins. At the communion His sacred body is consumed, annihilated, sacrificed for the sins of the world. Does this give you any idea of the greatness of the mass?

Every human being who has reached the use of reason owes certain duties to God. PLANS FOR CONVENTION

Democrats at St. Louis to Elect Temporary Chairman—Glynn and Stone Mentioned

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 2.—The sub-committee on arrangements of the Democratic national committee met today to elect a temporary chairman for the convention and to consider the apportionment of tickets and the assignment of seats to the various delegations. Martin H. Glynn, former governor of New York and William J. Stone, United States senator from Missouri, were among those being considered for temporary chairman, it was said.

The reports of the committees on tickets, decorations, entertainment and various other details also will be submitted to the committee which will be in almost continuous session until the opening of the convention.

They should see to it that their children never neglect the mass, the greatest act of worship man can offer to God.

Is there a thought more sublime than that which brings to our minds the picture of three millions of Catholics in different churches all over the world kneeling with bowed heads as priests everywhere hold aloft the Sacred Host, three million souls beholding with the eyes of faith the Son of God? Can you imagine anything more sublime?

Cast your eyes on the big pit of Purgatory. At the moment of consecration, the eyes of these suffering souls are riveted on the living victim on the body of Christ, hoping that through the merits of His sufferings, their own may be shortened. Can you imagine anything bigger than that? Look into the vault of heaven and behold the angels about the throne of God. Their eyes also are fixed upon the living victim about to spill His blood for the salvation of souls. You behold the Christ in heaven. You behold the Christ in purgatory, the church on earth, the threefold church of Christ turned to our Blessed Lord dying for us all. Is there anything greater or more sublime?

At the consecration the Eternal Father looks down from heaven. "This is my beloved Son," he exclaims, "in whom I am well pleased." Of His fullness we have all received. With all His goodness God could give us nothing greater than the mass. Dear women! From the depths of your heart promise that from this day until you pass into Eternity—you will never through your own fault miss mass on Sundays. Some have always lived up to this obligation. Those who have not should heed now this invitation to be faithful. At the close of the sermon every woman, standing, promised never to miss mass, through her own fault, on Sunday.

ST. LOUIS, June 2.—The establishment of Roger Sullivan for vice president headquarters and the arrival of a working quorum of the members of the sub-committee on arrangements of the Democratic national committee were the principal developments in the pre-convention activities here yesterday.

Women's Meeting There was a large attendance at the meeting for women conducted by Rev. George G. Dowsy at the First Congregational church yesterday afternoon. His address was devoted entirely to telling the results of the Sunday revival in Philadelphia, and the movement of organized Bible study which followed and is still in progress. He said that following the Sunday campaign the additions to the churches of the city were tremendous. Taking 100 of the average churches as an example, he said that 1200 people joined these 100 churches as a result of the Sunday meetings.

Jesus Christ is everything to us, our life, our guide, the supreme object of our love. God forbid we should glory in anything but in the cross of Christ. Like St. Paul we should judge ourselves to know nothing, but Jesus Christ and Him crucified. Jesus Christ lives with us, works with us, rests with us. In the mass He spills His precious blood for the nourishment of our souls. Of its fullness we have all received.

There are many beautiful devotions in the church—devotion to God's mother, to the saints, to the Sacred Heart and to the holy name of Jesus, but above and beyond all these is the sacrifice of the mass. "It is the sun of Christianity, the soul of faith, the center of the Catholic religion, the grand object of all her rites and ceremonies; in a word it is the summary of all that is grand and beautiful in the church of God. It is not a mere devotion, a ceremony, a commemoration of something beautiful and mystical. In holy mass, Christ places Himself in the hands of the priest, that He may offer to God the same great sacrifice of infinite value that was offered in Calvary—the living, throbbing body of Christ, dying and spilling His blood for us."

With Mary, the mother of God, with Magdalene and St. John you may place yourself at the foot of the cross, with the privileged three who looked into the sacred face of the dying Christ, you may follow again the tragedy of that awful Friday when Christ first offered Himself a bleeding victim for our sins. "If I were on Calvary," say you, "could I behold the sorrows of the Blessed Mother at the agony of her son? I am sure that, like the good thief, I would be moved to repentance." But you have the same privilege each Sunday when you assist at mass.

Yet how many women who might share in the benefits of the mass stay in bed on Sunday morning? How many spend the day in sin, giving but a stumbling block to the boys and girls God has entrusted to their care. In the mass God has given us a clean obligation. Our Saviour is the sweetest object of our love, yet some turn their backs on Him. Women of the world are made to His image and likeness, willfully and deliberately to desecrate the day God made to be kept holy. The day He intended should be given to His service in worship, in atonement for sin is often the day on which most sin is committed. It is sad to think of women, young or old, spending their Saturday evening or Saturday night in such a way that they are unable to assist at mass in the morning. Mothers who have growing daughters should see to it that no Saturday night amusement interferes with the observance of Sunday.

It was stated that the dead would total at least 15.

House Upholds Gov. McCall's Veto of the Measure

Special to The Sun.
STATE HOUSE, Boston, June 2.—The bill prohibiting the use of trading stamps was defeated in the house this noon when that branch by a vote of 57 to 143 failed to pass the bill over Gov. McCall's veto.
In his veto message the governor said he was sorry that he felt obliged to withhold his approval but in view of so many decisions of the supreme court he was forced to believe that the passage of the bill would be a violation of the liberties guaranteed by the bill of rights.

Curry, O.M.I., of North Chelmsford; Brother Aurelian Marcell, O.M.I., of Lawrence; Brother James P. McCarthy, O.M.I., of Lowell; and Brother Francis J. Hill, O.M.I., of Buffalo.

INNINGS	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Lowell	1	0	0	0	0	0	2	1	x	4	4	3

With the count four to one against them for the week, Harry Lord's aggregation clashed with Jesse Burkett's Lawrence crew at Spalding park this afternoon determined to square matters with the "old fox" for the week's loss. Lowell was defeated by Burkett in two of three games played Monday and Tuesday and in order to break even the local team will have to bring home the bacon today and tomorrow, the Saturday game to be played at Riverside park.

Conging to the peculiar schedule arranged by the Eastern league officials, Lowell and Lawrence met in five games this week. Today's was the fourth. Burkett seemed to be delighted with his surroundings at the park this afternoon and voiced the opinion that the local team was easy without any respect for Lord's boys. Fans in the grandstand and bleachers "came back" strong at the former Worcester manager and some snappy remarks were exchanged.

Despite the fact that Burkett was classed with the "has beens" long before the New England league went out of existence, he still wears a uniform and occasionally gets into the game as a pinch hitter. Burkett still has an eye for the ball and is liable to come through with a single at a moment of suspense in any game. He has worked hard in Lawrence this year, making changes until his team satisfied him and now he has an organization that will give any team a battle.

Torphy was out of the game again today, but Munn, who occupied a seat on the bench yesterday, was back at his old position on the first corner. Downey was covering short, Zeke Lohman, the man who never gets tired pitching, was on the mound with Kilhullen behind the bat. Gilmore, a 20-year-old "southpaw" was the twirler for the Spicketville aggregation and Arthur Lavigne, the former Lowell player, was catching. Umpire Doherty called the game at 3 o'clock, the batting order of the teams being as follows:

Lowell	Lawrence
Lord, 3b	cf, O'Connell
Stimpson, lf	rf, Luyster
Greenhalge, 2b	2b, Howard
Barrows, cf	ss, Mahoney
Downey, ss	1b, Kilhullen
Kane, rf	c, Somers
Munn, 1b	c, Lavigne
Lohman, p	p, Gilmore

First Inning
The home team scored one run in the first inning while the visitors failed to send a man across the plate. O'Connell, who opened for Lawrence, was retired on strikes. Luyster singled by shortstop and went to second when Downey made a wild throw to get him at first. Howard followed with a fly to Kane. Mahoney was out at first after sending a grounder which Mahoney gathered in and threw to O'Connell.

No runs, one hit, one error.
Lord opened the latter half of the inning with a base on balls. He was forced at second on Stimpson's grounder to third. Barrows went out on a grounder to O'Connell. Downey went to first on balls. Kilhullen sent a grounder to Mahoney who threw to Warner, getting Downey at first, but the umpire called him safe and Stimpson scored. Kane sent a grounder to Mahoney who threw to Warner, forcing Kilhullen.
One run, one hit, no errors.
Score: Lowell 1, Lawrence 0.

Second Inning
Neither side scored in the second inning.

Third Inning
Lowell was due to score a run in the third inning but the signal for a double steal did not bring results. Downey being doubled up between third base and the home plate. The Lawrence players went out in one, two, three order.

O'Connell filed to Barrows and Luyster hit to Lohman and was out at first. Downey took Howard's grounder and held him out at first.
No runs, no hits, no errors.
Barrows struck out. Downey drew a base on balls and went to third on Kilhullen's single to right field. A single was given for a double steal, and Downey started for home but Kilhullen remained on first. Lavigne threw to Howard and Downey was doubled up between third and home. Kilhullen managed to reach third on

Fourth Inning
Lawrence broke the ice in the fourth inning and sent two men across the plate. Downey made a wild throw after getting Mahoney's grounder and the latter was able to reach second. Warner bunted to Lohman who threw to Lord getting Mahoney at third. O'Connell hit to right field for a two base run and Warner went to third. Somers was the base runner. Stimpson's head and Warner and O'Connell scored. Somers was caught while trying to stretch the single into a triple. Lavigne sent a grounder to Greenhalge and was retired at first.

Two runs, two hits, one error.
Lohman walked to first and Lord filed to O'Connell. Lohman was caught napping by Gilmore and tagged out. Stimpson sent a high fly up in front of the pitcher's box and Gilmore caught the sphere for the third out.
No runs, no hits, no errors.
Score: Lowell 1, Lawrence 2.

Fifth Inning
Neither side scored in the fifth inning.

Gilmore whanged the ball out to deep centre but Barrows was on the job and nailed the fly. O'Connell sent the ball to Lohman and failed to reach first. Luyster sent the sphere to left field for a single but in trying to make a double play it was thrown out, Stimpson to Downey.
No runs, one hit, no errors.
Greenhalge hit a high fly to Howard and was the first out. Barrows sent the ball into Warner's territory and was second out at first. Downey then walked for the third out. Howard made a nice stop of Kilhullen's grounder and threw the ball to first in time to get the runner.
No runs, no hits, no errors.
Score: Lowell 1, Lawrence 2.

Sixth Inning
Howard foul filed to Lord and Mahoney struck out. Warner drove the ball to the right field fence for a two-bagger, but he remained there for O'Connell was third out on a fly to Barrows.
No runs, one hit, no errors.
In the latter half of the inning Kane sent a grounder which Warner grabbed and threw to first for the first out. Munn died in a similar manner. Lohman reached first when O'Connell dropped Mahoney's throw to first. Lord singled to right centre and Lohman walked to third. Stimpson forced Lord at third on a grounder to Mahoney.
No runs, one hit, one error.
Score: Lowell 3, Lawrence 2.

Seventh Inning
Somers opened the seventh with a base on balls, it being the first pass he made during the game. The runner went to second on Lavigne's sacrifice. Gilmore and O'Connell popped flies to Greenhalge and Downey respectively.
No runs, no hits, no errors.
Lowell scored two more runs in the seventh and forged to the front. Greenhalge sent a grounder to Howard and was out at first. Gilmore then got a streak of wildness and walked Barrows, Downey and Kilhullen. Gilmore was then benched and Pearson went in to pitch. With the bases filled Kane hit to centre field, scoring Barrows and Downey. Kane went to second, but Kilhullen was nailed at third on a perfect throw by Somers. Munn was out on a high fly to O'Connell.
Two runs, one hit, no errors.
Score: Lowell 3, Lawrence 2.

Eighth Inning
Luyster singled over third. Howard attempted to sacrifice, but died to Munn. Barrows made a petty catch

BURGLARS MADE HAUL

Fay at 70 Lawrence st., some time last night or early this morning and got away with several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry and silverware, including two valuable diamond rings, a gold bracelet and several other articles of jewelry. A large quantity of silver, antiques, high priced, were also taken. The police are now working on the case.

GERMAN VICTORY IN NORTH SEA---HUNDREDS DROWNED

According to Berlin the British Lost One of Their Latest Dreadnoughts, Two Battle Cruisers, Two Armored Cruisers and Numerous Smaller Craft While a Large Number of British Battleships Were Damaged—Germans Admit Loss of One Battleship and Small Cruiser

German and British battle fleets have clashed in a great engagement. According to Berlin the sea fight resulted disastrously for the British who lost one of their latest dreadnoughts, two battle cruisers, two armored cruisers and numerous smaller craft while a large number of British battleships were damaged.
The Germans admit the loss of one battleship and a small cruiser, while the fate of one cruiser and of some torpedo boats is unknown.
The British dreadnought sunk was the Warspite of the Queen Elizabeth class, a 27,000 ton vessel.
The battle cruisers were the Queen Mary and Indefatigable. The British battleship Marlborough is reported to have been hit by a torpedo.
Parts of Crews Rescued
German warships rescued parts of the crews of the sunken British sea fighters. It is declared that only two of the crew of the battle cruiser Indefatigable were saved.
The losses in the engagement must have been extremely heavy. The battle cruiser Indefatigable for instance, from which the German admiral reports only two men were saved, probably had more than 300 men on board, and others of the vessels sunk carried complements of men equally or nearly as large.
Previous to this battle Great Britain had lost during the course of the war ten battleships, 11 cruisers and various smaller craft. Germany had lost 18 cruisers, 19 auxiliary cruisers, chiefly converted passenger liners, and numerous smaller vessels.
Since the beginning of the war British cruisers and destroyers have patrolled day and night the approaches to the German fleet's base, in the bay formed by the mouths of the Elbe and the Weser.
The engagement took place during the afternoon of May 31 and continued to page five

Governor Halts Prorogation— Message Blocks Legislators— Trading Stamps Measure

BOSTON, June 2.—A special message from Gov. McCall to the state senate at 10.30 last evening prevented the prorogation of the Massachusetts legislature, which shortly afterward adjourned at 11 o'clock this morning.

The governor was not satisfied with the action of the senate in referring to the next general court the so-called Davis bill to transfer to the industrial accident board certain powers regarding the rates of workmen's compensation insurance.

The result was that His Excellency would not allow the general court to make the "getaway" it had so carefully planned, mock session and all.

The special message was not alone the reason for the governor's decision not to allow prorogation. The "trading stamp" bill was a matter which caused him to devote several hours to hearing interested parties on both sides. Some of the most prominent attorneys in the state were included in the delegations that called upon him late in the afternoon and came back in the evening at his request. The governor had not acted on the bill when he left for his home.

Other bills not signed by the governor when the prorogation program was abandoned included the measure to provide that at least one member of the minimum wage commission shall be a woman and also the bill to change the distribution of the corporate franchise tax measure assessed on public service corporations.

Governor's Special Message
In his special message the governor said: "I have already called the attention of the members of the general court in two messages to what I consider an imperative demand for legislation at this session."

"I can add nothing to what I said in my message to the honorable senate and house of representatives on April 21 relative to the necessity of transferring to the board of labor and industries and the industrial accident board, acting as a joint board charged with the duty of bringing about a reduction in the number of injuries to workers and of occupational diseases."

"I again recommend that an act be passed transferring the powers and duties of this joint board to either the industrial accident board or the board of labor and industries in order to make less the frightful toll in human life and in the efficiency of workers."

"I also again recommend that my doubt as to the application to the workmen's compensation act of section 7 of chapter 807 of the acts of 1913, to which I referred in my message of April 21 last, be removed by the passage of a suitable act."

"Further in view of the extreme importance as well as difficulty of the subject of rate making under the workmen's compensation insurance act and the failure of the legislature to pass any law this year relating thereto, I recommend that a recess committee be created thoroughly to investigate and study the whole of proper rate making and report to the next general court suitable recommendations for legislation upon the subject."

The message was referred to the joint committee on judiciary, which will meet prior to this morning's session.

AUNTIE'S NEW BLOUSE

"Where did Auntie get this beautiful blouse?" questioned Marjorie enthusiastically, as she lovingly fingered the folds of a black net creation Marie was shaking out preparatory to laying away.

"In Paris, of course," answered Marie. "Wherever else do you think you could find one like that? It is a very pretty novelty across the water," she continued, "to replace the linen blouse, which is worn less and less. This blouse is of black net without lining, crossed in surplice fashion and with short sleeves. And you see, all the daintiness of lingerie and ribbon underneath is revealed by this transparent corgage, which is of an indiscretion filled with attraction."

"My," exclaimed Marjorie in a shocked voice. "However do they dare to wear them?"

"Well," rejoined Marie, "without wishing to displease conservative husbands, the transparent effects are becoming more and more daring. Here is an example," and Marie picked up a rope of breadstiff, the skirt being draped very much toward the back. The lower part of the robe was in princess effect, standing up in a bib to the bust.

"It is here that the audacity of the gown is felt," she continued. "The shoulders and sleeves are of black tulle, kimono shaped and unlined. Here the lingerie effect is left out underneath, and Madame goes about in this unusual lingerie. Luckily, her short coat is worn, since no robe today is seen unaccompanied by its coat."

"I suppose I shall come to it sometime," sighed Marjorie, "but I am sure I should blush every moment I had it on," and she rushed away to wonder on the astonishing freaks of fashion.

PLAINS OF VICENZA

HARVESTING "GRAPES OF WRATH" INSTEAD OF THE PRODUCT OF THE ITALIAN VINE

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 2.—If the present offensive of the Austrian forces on the Italian front develops in accordance with the predictions of military critics, the fertile plains of Vicenza, 20 miles south of Piazza, where the Tyrolean border has been crossed, will soon be harvesting its "grapes of wrath" instead of the product of the Italian vine for which this section is famous. The National Geographic society's war geography bulletin, issued today from its Washington headquarters, describes this area of hostilities. "Closely massed on both banks of the small Bacchiglione river, Vicenza, with an urban population of 35,000, has been an important town of northern Italy since the early Roman days, when it was known as Vicetia," says the bulletin. "It has not played a thrilling role in Italian history, however, but is noted rather for its architectural splendor than for its achievement in arms."

The surrounding plain, whose luxuriant mulberry trees, with their armies of silk worms, so soon may be supplanted by the cypressy fronds of sorrow over countless soldiers' graves, extends to the north through Thiene and Schio, two manufacturing towns in the Leogra valley, and to the east as far as Venice, 40 miles distant. Sixteen miles to the west, beyond the Berici mountains, lies Verona, with its many Shakespearean associations. Beautiful villas and blossoming fields are a feature of this landscape now overcast with the shadow of invading Austrians.

"Vicenza's share in the history-making of the early middle ages was as a capital of Lombard duchy. It was one of the cities which formed the Lombard league in the 12th century, opposing Frederick Barbarossa during the several campaigns whereby he attempted to re-establish the western empire on a Charlemagne scale. In 1235 the city was stormed and pillaged by the Sicilian emperor, Frederick II, a catastrophe which the inhabitants were able to bear with more equanimity after this ruler's overwhelming defeat before the walls of Parma, when his imperial crown was placed in mockery on the head of a hunch-backed beggar who was given a triumphal entry into the victorious town. Early in the 14th century Vicenza asserted and secured its independence from Padua, but a hundred years later it came under the extensive sway of Venice.

"The most distinguished name in Vicenza's hall of fame is that of one of the greatest architects of the Italian renaissance, Andrea Palladio, who broke away from the excessively ornate style of his contemporaries and turned, perhaps too reverently, to the simple, stately standards of ancient Rome. His handiwork is pre-eminently dominant in his birthplace, so much so in fact that a famous American novelist has complained that 'the cold hand of that friend of virtuous poverty in architecture lies heavy upon his native city.' One of the most interesting structures designed by him is the immense Olympic theatre, modeled after the ancient theatres and dedicated in 1554.

"Another great artist of Vicenza was the precocious peasant boy Mantegna, who left his flock of sheep at the age of 11 in order to become a great painter under the patronage of the unique Squarcione, a tailor famous both as art connoisseur and teacher. The stiffness of Mantegna's draperies is said to be accounted for by his custom of drawing from models clad in paper or in gummy fabrics. As an engraver Mantegna's fame is assured by his plate entitled 'Entombment,' said to have had a greater influence on art than any other ever executed. For its composition was adopted by Raphael, Holbein and Durer."

WANT STANDARD BARREL.

Time Dealers Not Helped by Tuttle Bill Is Plea Made by Massachusetts Man to Congress

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Arguments in favor of a bill to establish a standard time barrel of 250 pounds net for a large barrel, and 150 pounds for a small barrel, were presented to the house committee on coinage, weights and measures today by Representative Treadway and David Follett of Adams.

At present, it was explained, dealers

buying presumably 200 pounds of lime were likely to get a barrel ranging anywhere from 150 to 210 pounds, with the general run below 200. This situation will be changed on July 1, when the Tuttle bill, passed by the last congress for a standard barrel, will become effective, but it was argued that this prospective barrel is designed chiefly for fruit and will not help the lime dealers.

He was picked up and rushed to the Hampden hospital in this city where he died without regaining consciousness. Golding's skull was fractured and there were bad bruises on his body.

ROOSEVELT ON TARIFF

Says Protection Needed By Industries After War is Over in Address at Newark, N. J.

NEWARK, N. J., June 2.—Return- ing from his middle western trip, Colonel Roosevelt stopped here last night, on his way to his home at Oyster Bay, to deliver an address at the Industrial exposition held in connection with the celebration of the 250th anniversary of the founding of New- ark.

Before he entered the Exposition building Colonel Roosevelt addressed briefly a company of New Jersey National Guardsmen.

"I do not believe," he said, "in weak- el words or weak deeds. I don't be- lieve in 'letting George do it.' But I do believe in preparedness. I am glad to meet you men who represent pre- paredness."

"I do not believe in the kind of preparedness where the patriotic em- ployer tells his employees to do it. I believe the employer and the employe should sleep in the same dog tent if we are to have effective prepared- ness."

In his formal address in the armory Colonel Roosevelt spoke at some length upon the tariff question. He declared a protective tariff is the bar- rier behind which American industry can be developed in safety, and as- serted that unless such a tariff is cre- ated the United States will face eco- nomic disaster after the close of the European war.

"After this war," the former presi- dent said, "we shall face a Europe which has cast off the shackles of the past, and which industrially will be as aggressive as any military power has ever been in a military sense."

"It is time for this great country of ours to be unified in its Americanism. One phase of that Americanism must be the Americanism of our industries. With that end in view it is an abso- lute necessity that there shall be pro- tection; that we shall have a protec- tive tariff, as I have on other occa- sions described."

ROOSEVELT AT NEWARK

Declines Protective Tariff Is Barrier Behind Which American Industries Can Be Developed in Safety

NEWARK, N. J., June 2.—The pro- tective tariff is the barrier behind which American industries can be developed in safety, and unless such a tariff is created the United States will face the greatest economic disaster after the close of the European war.

time such appreciation of high ideals and such perseverance in following them that we shall avoid the twin gulfs of disaster. We must steer between them toward the realization of the hope of those who when they made this republic, made it with the expectation that its citizens should be prosperous men and women, who did justice to others and demanded justice for themselves."

Welfare Rests on Workers

The whole structure of the national welfare, Colonel Roosevelt said, "rests on the men who do the work of industry, and the men who do the work of agriculture."

"Of recent years," he continued, "we have grown more and more to realize that, as a mere business proposition, while the welfare of each is primarily his own concern, yet it must also be to a large extent the concern of all of us."

"As regards farming, for instance, if the soil is exhausted, then the people who draw their living from the soil will become impoverished and then the whole social structure will topple. It is the business of the whole community to see that the soil that has been tilled for 50 years is more productive and not less productive at the end of that time. It is our busi- ness to help the men who dwell in the open country in such fashion that not only shall their work be more productive, but their lives, and especially the lives of their women and children, be led in full and satisfac- tory fashion."

"The same thing applies here in industry. It is essential that industry shall be in the highest degree pro- ductive, that is, that there shall be great efficiency, and, as a necessary corollary, the ample rewards for great leadership without which such efficiency cannot be achieved. It is no less essential that justice shall go hand in hand with the efficiency; and that the great rewards paid to the captains shall be paid, not at the expense of those who work under them, or of the public which they serve, but as a just recognition of the fact that their activities have been to the benefit of the public, and that the reward of the public and the justice of the community have been with a measurable approximation to justice, shared with and among the people who work for them."

Fair Play For All Sides

"Unfortunately there are many of our people who have refused to con- sider more than one side of this problem. It can never be rightly ap- proached or satisfactorily solved un- less full consideration is given both to the fact that it creates among many others a ranking sense of injustice which is bound in the future to work harm. On the other hand there are many of our visionaries, and of demagogues who take advantage of the fact that they are men who do talk and act as if men who did not receive their fair share of pros- perity could somehow be benefited by having the prosperity destroyed, so that they would receive no share at all."

"Both types, the type of prosperous man who gains his prosperity by ex- ploiting his fellows, and the type of unprosperous man who seeks to gratify his anger by wrecking the pros- perity of others, are equally undesirable from the standpoint of the republic as a whole. Moreover normally they are really the same type. Each de- nounces the views of the other; and yet his own view is merely that of others changed in form but identical in essence."

"The arrogance of the rich man who exploits and oppresses his fellow who is less well off, and the malig- nant envy and hatred with which a certain type of agitator regards the man who is better off, although in appearance opposite views, are funda- mentally merely diverse manifesta- tions of the same evil spirit. The ar- rogance felt by the unscrupulous man of means toward his less favored brother, and the envious hatred felt by the unscrupulous man of poverty toward his brother who is better off, are merely two sides of the same evil shield. Arrogance is painted on one side and envy on the other, but the shield itself is the shield of selfish dis- regard for a brother's welfare."

FULL PAY AND EXPENSES

UNITED FRUIT CO. OFFERS MEN WHO WISH TO ATTEND MILITARY CAMP PAY—$75 FOR EXPENSES

NEW YORK, June 2.—The United Fruit Co., its employees learned today, has offered to grant any man in its service who wishes to attend a mili- tary training camp this summer not only four weeks' vacation with full pay but an expense allowance of $75.

More than 800 corporations have granted their employees four weeks' leave on full pay if they wish to attend the training camp but the United Fruit Co., so far as is known, is the first that has promised to pay expenses as well. The expenses of the recruits are es- timated at about $50.

The Military Training Camps' asso- ciation made public today a telegram sent to President Wilson asking his as- sistance in urging the passage of that section of the new army bill author- izing the appropriation of funds to meet the expenses of training camp recruits who will accept government assistance. The association said that it feared that congress may delay passage of the necessary appropriation for another six weeks.

The total enrollment for the Platts- burg camp today reached 10,737.

SACO-LOWELL STRIKE SETTLED

The strike which during the past two weeks has made idle more than 700 operatives of the Saco-Lowell cotton machinery plant at Newton, Mass., was settled Thursday night at a meeting between officials of the company, rep- resentatives of the strikers and the state board of conciliation and arbitration. Terms of the agreement were not made public.

M.I.T. TELEPHONE STUNT

GOLDEN JUBILEE CELEBRATION OF THE MASS. STATE INSTI- TUTE OF TECHNOLOGY, JUNE 14

The telephone is going to contribute the most remarkable 'stunt' of the times to the famous Golden Jubilee celebration of the Massachusetts In- stitute of Technology this month. Not only will it be the latest word in telephone marvels, but there will be gathered the most distinguished audi- ence that has ever been assembled in this or any other country. When President MacLaurin speaks, or Bell or Edison or Watson, or any of the other great names of the telephone in- dustry, not only the company assembled in Boston, but Tech. men in thirty- five cities of the country, and gov- ernors, mayors and local officials whom the local M.I.T. clubs will have for their guests.

At first sight the accomplishment seems as if it were much the same as some of the previous ones, but tele- phone history is being rapidly written and what is proposed is far ahead of anything that has been done. The day will mark an era in the story of the telephone. Transcontinental speech with the waves of the Pacific audible at Atlantic banquet tables was the surprising feat of three months ago and this was surpassed a month ago by a meeting by five city delegations separated by long dis- tances with one presiding officer who conducted them through the tele- phone. Each of these groups came to the telephone in a great city on the main trunk lines of the transcon- tinental system.

For the Technology banquet it will be the telephone that goes to where the Tech. alumni are and hunts them in their home cities no matter where these may be located. The lines will run north, south and west and thirty- four places in a score of states will be linked up with the others in Boston. Every M.I.T. association west of the Hudson—every man east of this great river will be in Boston—will be gath- ered for its own celebration with in- vited guests from its own city and state, and in these places there will be happenings of local interest. It will be an event coming home to every section of the country.

On the platform of Symphony hall in Boston that eventful evening of June 14 will be a group of inventors such as the country has not before seen together, Bell, Edison and Orville Wright, and besides them will be an assemblage of the men who have de- veloped the telephone. Vail, president of the great American company, Vice- Presidents Bethel and Kingsbury, Spaulding of the New England com- pany, Watson, Carly and Professors Cross and Pupin representing the sci- entific end, together with the educa- tional dignitaries who will have as- sembled to do honor to the dedication of the great new educational plant of Technology. In the early days of the telephone there was so much in the way of experimentation done at the Tech. laboratories by Cross and his associates, that it is particularly fit-ling that the great event of the Tech- celebration should be the demonstra- tion with the telephone. Every place at the Symphony hall banquet will have its watch-case receiver and will be for every one of the auditors in the spacious galleries, in all some three thousand receivers in Boston, and in other places provisions are made for installing the receivers by the hundred. Everybody will be on the line and there will be no oratory with a man on the platform empha- sizing his remarks with gestures. Every speaker will deliver his address into the telephone and to a magnificent au- dience whose distribution will be country wide. This means so far as the telephone company is concerned devoting main lines for two solid hours to the Boston Tech. celebration to- gether with the enormous work of preparation for which thousands of the watch-case receivers have been specially made.

OREGON LAND BILL PASSED

Senate Adopts House Measure, But Changes Division of Proceeds From Sale of $30,000,000 Tract

government of 2,300,000 acres of Ore- gon land granted the Oregon & Cal- ifornia railroad was passed yesterday by the senate.

The lands, valued at about $30,000,000, are alleged to have been forfeit- ed by violations of the terms of the grant, which required their sale to settlers at $2.50 an acre.

Amendments were adopted to pro- vide that 80 per cent. of the proceeds of re-sale shall go to the state of Oregon, 10 per cent. to the reclama- tion fund for use in Oregon and 10 per cent. to the federal government. The house bill provided that 50 per cent. should go to Oregon for the use of the road and schools, 10 per cent. to the federal government and 40 per cent. to the general reclamation fund. Another amendment provides that sales of land shall be made for cash.

IN BASEBALL POOL CASE

Officer O'Sullivan in Disguise Buys a Ticket—Several Auto Cases Before the Court

William N. Fadden, who has been conducting a baseball pool in which there were daily prizes, appeared in court this morning and entered a plea of guilty to a complaint charging him with the unlawful possession of lottery tickets for money. At the request of Supt. Welch, who stated that the defendant had made a frank confession to him he suggested the imposing of the minimum fine and Fadden was ordered to pay a fine of $75.

Fadden's appearance in court came about as a result of the arrest of John H. Stanley on Wednesday by Patrolman Thos. P. O'Sullivan, who disguised as a mill hand, purchased a ticket in the baseball pool from Stanley in Merrimack street about 6.30 o'clock in the morning.

Stanley, when catechized by the police, gave Fadden's name as the promoter and admitted that he had been selling tickets but that the profit was very low, and that if he could assist the police he would do so.

When Stanley's case was called this morning, charged with the unlawful sale of lottery tickets, Supt. Welch recommended placing it on file and the court did so.

Unlawful Use of Automobile

Ernest Baehand, through his counsel A. S. Goldman, entered a plea of not guilty to a complaint charging him with the unlawful use of an automobile, the property of William J. Barry, shoe manufacturer in Stackpole street. The court after considering the evidence offered by the government accepted a plea of nolo by the defendant and the case was placed on file.

The first witness called was Mr. Barry who testified that the night before last the defendant called him on the telephone and asked him if he would like to sell his automobile. Mr. Barry replied that if the price was satisfactory he would sell it but the price named by the defendant was lower than Mr. Barry was willing to take.

Baehand called at the shoe shop yesterday morning about 9.30 o'clock and said he would like to show the car to the proposed purchaser, a Mr. Nelson, saying that he would go no farther than Merrimack square. Mr. Barry said he and his wife had to go to Haverhill on business and told the defendant to be sure and be back with the machine at 11 o'clock.

Neither the defendant nor the machine appeared at 11 o'clock and Mr. Barry waited until about 1 o'clock when he notified the police and asked them to assist him in locating the car.

Sergt. David Petrie was assigned to the case and he learned that Mr. Nelson, who Baehand intended to sell the car to, had gone to Manchester. Sergt. Petrie and Mr. Barry in another automobile belonging to the latter, then started over the road for Manchester.

When about three or four miles this side of Manchester they met Baehand and two other men in the Barry machine and trailed the car to the Pawtucket boulevard, where Sergt. Petrie placed Baehand under arrest.

Baehand explained to the officer that he had given Mr. Nelson a demonstration and inasmuch as the latter had missed a train for Manchester he took him to Nashua in order to get a train for Manchester, but upon arriving in Manchester found that the train had departed and then Baehand started for Manchester.

Lawyer Goldman informed the court that the defendant had no intention of going to Manchester when he was given the machine, but that owing to trouble with a leaky valve and shortage of gasoline he had to stop and have the machine repaired and when Mr. Nelson had missed the train he felt that he should carry him to Manchester as Mr. Nelson had an important engagement there.

The court after considering the testimony offered by the government witnesses felt that there was no intent of unlawful use of the automobile on the part of the defendant and therefore placed the case on file.

Speed Merchant Fined

William King appeared before the court on a complaint charging him with unlawfully operating a motor vehicle at an unreasonable rate of speed on April 22. Melvin G. Rogers, counsel for the defendant, entered a plea of guilty and explained to the court that at about 11.30 o'clock on the night of April 22 King was driving in an automobile through Merrimack street. He was in the rear of an electric car and when the car slowed up he steered his machine to the right and crashed into an automobile which was standing near the corner of Pawtucket street. Mr. Rogers said that King had paid the damages done to the other machine. The court imposed a fine of $25 which the defendant paid.

CHARMING REFECTORY OPENED AT HARRISONIA HOTEL BY 200 GUESTS LAST EVENING

A decidedly metropolitan and thoroughly pleasing atmosphere pervaded the Harrisonia hotel last evening, when Proprietor Frank E. Harris opened his new and elaborate dining room to the public, some 200 guests assembling to "christen" the new and beautiful refectory, which for artistic design, modern appointments and general comfort cannot be excelled even in the metropolitan cities. Proprietor Harris in planning the latest addition to his hotelery had an eye for service, and as a result the guests, last evening, were frequently heard to remark: "Isn't the service fine?" Not only has a new dining room been added but in connection with it is a special kitchen, serving room, refrigerator and buffet bar, which together make it possible to give most efficient service. There are tables and booths for the guests, while arrangements are in readiness for chafing dish parties, and in fact for any form of reception. In a corner of the dining room is a stage on which is a baby grand piano, where entertainments of a high class are promised in the future. If they are as good as that provided last evening, they will satisfy the most fastidious lover of entertainment. Lavigne's orchestra of six pieces, assisted by Mrs. Saxon and the reorganized Honey Boy quartet, provided a continuous program, which was thoroughly enjoyed. The Honey Boys now consist of Messrs. Handley, Lyons, Perry and Brown, and no professionals have anything on them. The menu for opening night which included an infinite variety of delectable specials, met with the enthusiastic approval of the guests, and as was mentioned previously, the service was faultless. While the new dining room will be open to the public, private parties may engage it for banquets, when by means of heavy doors, it may be completely separated from the remainder of the hotel. The new room is lighted by 220 incandescent bulbs, set in decorated globes of artistic design and gracefully hung about the room. Proprietor Harris is to be congratulated upon his enterprise in providing such a charming dining room.

The mayor informed his colleagues that yesterday he received a letter from the lands and harbor commission, informing him that the commission had voted to grant the city of Lowell permission to erect the new Pawtucket bridge over the Merrimack river. The council then adjourned to next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The employees of the Gow Co. were kept busy all day yesterday on repairing the leak in the bed of the filtration plant, which was caused through the loosening of some of the joints in the pipes. The men completed their work and the pipes will be given a test today.

KITCHENER QUESTIONED

Secretary of War Heckled by Parliamentary Critics of War Office

LONDON, June 2.—Earl Kitchener had today what was for him the unique experience of being heckled by parliamentary critics of the war office. Complying with the promise made on his behalf in the house of commons by the parliamentary under-secretary for war, Harold J. Tennant, in response to complaints of members that they had not had opportunity to question the secretary of war, the famous general went to one of the committee rooms of the house, prepared to make a statement on the conduct of the war and reply to questions.

The war secretary was accompanied by several members of his staff and the political heads of the war office. He faced some 300 members, including what are known as the "ginger groups," composed of men who demand more vigorous prosecution of the war. The public was excluded rigorously. Indeed, the whole Westminster palace was shut off, to avoid leakage of any secret information which might be elicited.

SOLEMN SERVICE

Funeral of John J. Dean

The remains of the late John J. Dean, a prominent young member of the Sacred Heart parish and a former president of the Burke Temperance institute, were this morning tenderly consigned to their last resting place in the Catholic cemetery after impressive services at the Sacred Heart church. The funeral cortege consisting of 55 carriages, left the home of deceased, 1007 Gorham street at 8.15 o'clock and wended its way to the church, where a high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock by Rev. John P. Flynn.

Employees of the sewer department are busy on the Woburn street sewer as well as on the sewer extension in Anderson street. Sand and stone have been brought for the Dummer street extension and work there will be started at once. Mr. Morse has also several other jobs he hopes to rush as long providing he can get the men and material.

ued during the night, the German fleet returning to its base on June 1.

The German battleship lost was the Pommern, a 13,000 ton vessel, and the cruiser, the fate of which is uncertain, is the Frauenlob of 2672 tons. The small cruiser sunk was the Wiesbaden.

Germans Gain at Verdun

The furious drive which the Germans have launched northeast of Verdun has already resulted in important gains in a sector where the battle lines until recently have held almost stationary since the early days of the Verdun struggle.

Supported by artillery fire of exceptional violence, the crown prince's forces have pushed south from Fort Douaumont and captured the Collette wood while further to the southeast they have reached the southern shores of Vaux pond. The German progress marks an advance of nearly a mile south of the Fort Douaumont line.

GERMAN ADMIRALTY ANNOUNCES VICTORY IN BIG SEA BATTLE

BERLIN, June 2. (By wireless to Saville).—The German admiralty announced today that the German high sea fleet on May 31 had encountered a British fighting fleet. The engagement which developed, the admiralty says, was favorable to the Germans. The battle continued all night.

The German admiralty announces that the large British battleship Warspite, the battle cruisers Queen Mary and Indefatigable and two armed cruisers were destroyed.

It is also reported that a small British cruiser, a number of torpedo boat destroyers and torpedo boats were sunk.

The German admiralty statement adds that by observation it was established that a large number of British battleships suffered damage from the fire of the German big ships and the attacks of the torpedo boat flotilla. The admiralty statement also declares that the British battleship Marlborough was hit by a torpedo, this being confirmed by the prisoners rescued. Several of the German ships rescued parts of the crews of the British ships which were sunk, they including, it is said, two men from the Indefatigable, the only survivors from that ship.

On the German side the small cruiser Weisbaden was sunk by gunfire and the Pommern was sent to the bottom by a torpedo. The fate of the Frauenlob is not known and some torpedo boats did not return. The German high sea fleet, the statement adds, returned to port June 1.

The text of the German admiralty report, which is dated June 1, says: "During an enterprise directed to the northward our high sea fleet on May 31 encountered the main part of the English fighting fleet which was considerably superior to our forces."

"During the afternoon between Skagerrak and Horn Riff, a heavy engagement developed, which was successful for us and which continued during the whole night."

"In this engagement, so far as is known up to the present, there were destroyed by us the large battleship Warspite, the battle cruisers Queen Mary and Indefatigable, two armed cruisers, apparently of the Achilles type, one small cruiser, a new flagship of destroyers, the Turbinant, Nestore and Alcazar, a large number of torpedo boat destroyers and one submarine."

By observation, which was free and clear of objects it was stated that a large number of English battleships suffered damage from our ships and the attacks of our torpedo boat flotilla during the day engagement and throughout the night."

"Among others the large battleship Marlborough was hit by a torpedo. This was confirmed by prisoners rescued from the crews of the sunken English ships, among them being two, and the only survivors, of the Indefatigable."

"On our side the small cruiser, Wiesbaden, by hostile gunfire during the day engagement and his majesty's ship Pommern during the night as the

BRITISH REPORT MANY GERMAN WARSHIPS SUNK IN BATTLE

LONDON, June 2, 7.05 p. m.—The British admiralty announced today that a battle had occurred in the North sea between the British and German fleets, in the course of which a number of German warships were sunk.

The British battle cruisers Queen Mary and Indefatigable and the battleship Invincible were sunk.

The cruisers Defence and Black Prince also were sunk and the cruiser Warrior was disabled. The German losses are described as serious.

The announcement says two German battle cruisers were sunk and two German light cruisers were disabled and probably sunk.

The British destroyers Tipperary, Turbulent, Fortune, Sparrowhawk and Ardent were lost and six others have not yet been accounted for. The admiralty announcement says no British battleships or light cruisers were sunk.

From the advices thus far received it would appear that the greatest naval battle of history has taken place. Never before have two naval forces of such magnitude as the British and German high sea fleets engaged in combat. But apparently the battle was not fought out to a point to determine mastery of the seas, for the losses, serious as they are reported to have been, will not impair the strength of either fleet to a vital extent.

The scene of the battle was in the eastern waters of the North sea. It is probable the German fleet was on one of the excursions into the North sea which it has taken from time to time during the war and met, whether or not by design, with the British fleet.

Skagerrak is an arm of the North sea between Norway and Denmark. The point referred to in the official German statement as Horn Riff probably is the reef of the Horn, on the southwestern extremity of Denmark. This would indicate the battle was fought off the coast of Denmark.

From the reef to Heligoland, the main German naval base in the North sea, is about 100 miles.

The British dreadnought Warspite, reported destroyed, was a sister ship of the Queen Elizabeth, and both these vessels played a prominent part in the attempt of the British Mediterranean fleet to force the Dardanelles. The Warspite was 650 feet long and displaced 27,500 tons. She was built in 1914 at an estimated cost of $12,500,000. Her complement was 750.

The Queen Mary and the Indefatigable were both battle cruisers of 27,000 and 18,700 tons displacement respectively. The Queen Mary was 720 feet long.

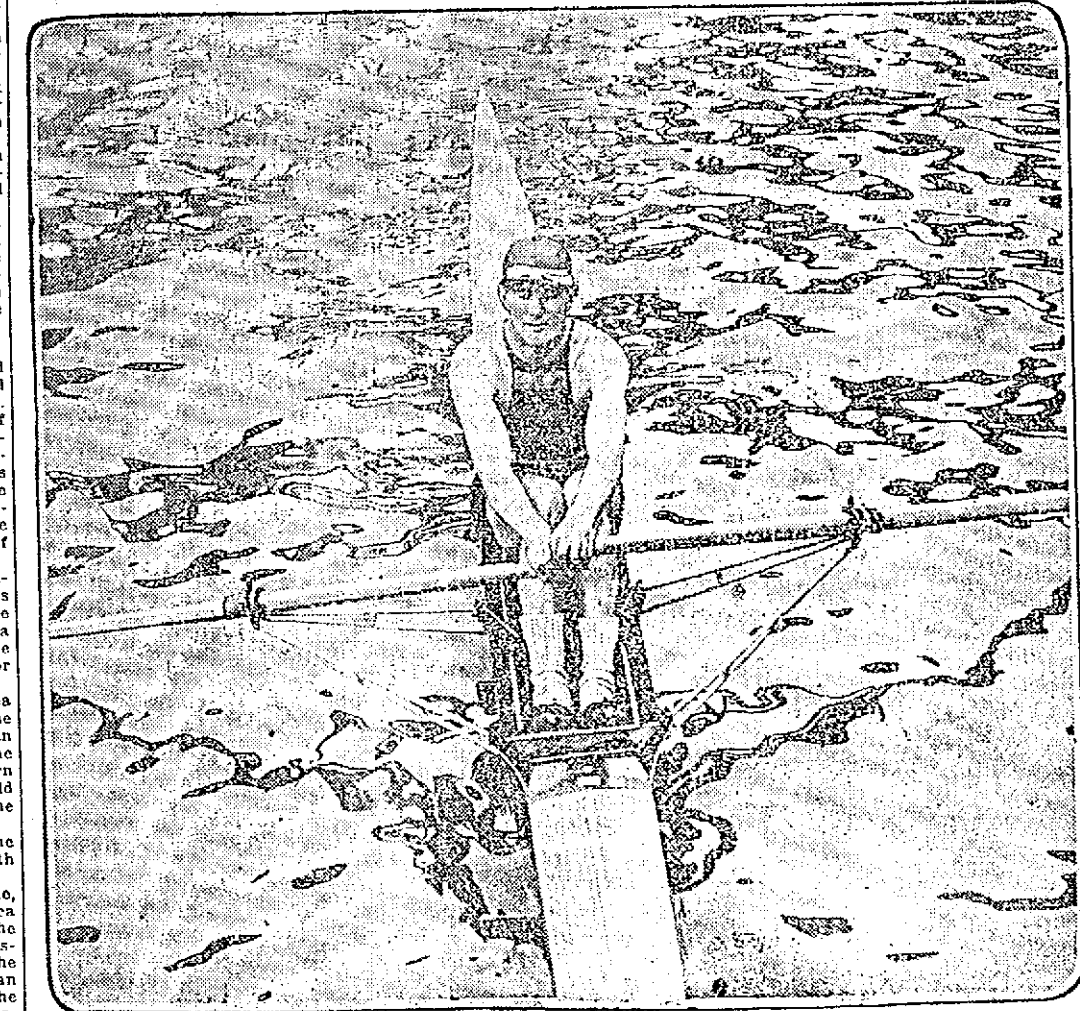

The Indefatigable was 578 feet long. The Queen Mary and the Indefatigable carried complements of between 900 and 950 men. The Queen Mary cost about $10,000,000, while the Indefatigable cost nearly $8,000,000. The British dreadnought Marlborough, said to have been struck by a torpedo, was of the Iron Duke class. She was built in 1914 and displaced 25,000 tons. She was 620 feet long. The German battleship Pommern, which was sunk by a British torpedo, displaced 13,977 tons. She was 335 feet long and cost about $5,000,000. She carried 729 officers and men. The Frauenlob, which did not return to the German base after the naval engagement was a small German cruiser displacing 2715 tons. Her complement was 264.

ROWING EXPERTS SAY JOHN KELLY IS GREATEST SCULLER IN AMERICA

NEW YORK, June 2.—Rowing experts here are of the opinion that John Kelly of the Vespers of Philadelphia is the greatest sculler in the United States today. He proved his skill on the Harlem river in his meeting with Tom Rooney, the Ravenswood veteran, and Waldo Smith of the New York A. C. in the senior sculls, held under the auspices of the New York Rowing Association. Kelly got sweet revenge for his defeat here last year in the senior singles when he defeated Rooney. The latter finished second by a length and a half and had his work cut out for him to head off Smith. Considering the strong tide with the scullers Kelly's time, 8.52 2-5, was not remarkable. In the senior doubles Kelly and Smith met old rivals in H. H. Livingston and R. H. Pearce of the Nonpareils. It was a dual race, and the Quaker City pair had nearly two lengths to spare at the finish. Kelly will compete in all the big events to be held in this country this summer. Photo shows Kelly after winning the senior event.

WILSON AT ANNAPOLIS

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 2.—President Wilson unexpectedly made an address to the naval academy graduates at the commencement exercises today declaring that great responsibilities rest on naval officers of the United States. He had not planned to speak but said he now felt a particular interest in this year's class because it saw him "get into trouble" at his inauguration three years ago.

The president declared that he gained a liberal education in the White House. He said that discipline in the academy must be strict because "you are more than college boys; you are officers of the United States and any laxity of duty cannot be overlooked. There might come a time," he added, "when a laxity in duty might change the world's history."

"It had not been my purpose when I came here to say anything," he said, "but as I sit here and look at you youngsters, I find that my feeling is a very personal feeling indeed. I know some of the things that you have been through and I admire the way in which you have responded to the new call of duty. I would feel that I had not done either you or myself justice if I did not tell you so."

"I have thought that there was one interesting bond that united us. You were at Washington three years ago and saw me get into trouble. And now I am here to see the beginning of your trouble. Your trouble will last longer than mine, but I doubt if it will be any more interesting. I have had a liberal education in the last three years with which nothing that I underwent before bears the slightest comparison. But what I want to say to you young gentlemen is this: Once in a while when youngsters here or at West Point have forgotten themselves and done something that they ought not to, and were about to be disciplined, perhaps severely, for it. I have been appealed to by their friends to excuse them from the penalty. Knowing that I have spent most of my life at a college, they commonly say to me: 'You know college boys. You know what they are. They are headless youngsters. Very often, and they ought not to be held up to the same standards of responsibility that older men must submit to.'"

"And I have always replied: 'Yes, I know college boys, but while these youngsters are college boys they are something more. They are officers of the United States. They are not merely college boys. If they were I would look at dereliction of duty on their part in another spirit, but any dereliction of duty on the part of a naval officer of the United States may involve the fortunes of a nation and cannot be overlooked."

"Do you not see the difference? You cannot indulge yourselves in weaknesses, gentlemen. You cannot forget your duty for a moment because there might come a time when that weak spot in you should affect you in the midst of a great engagement, and then the whole history of the world might be changed by what you did not do, or did wrong."

"The fortunes of a nation are confided to us. Now, that ought not to depress a man. Sometimes I think that nothing is worth while that is not hard. You do not improve your muscles by doing the easy things; you improve them by doing the hard things and you get your rest by doing a thing that is difficult, not a thing that is easy. I would a great deal rather, so far as my sense of enjoyment is concerned, have something strenuous to do than have something that can be done lazily and without a stimulation of the faculties. Therefore, I congratulate you that you are going to live your lives under the most stimulating compulsion that any man can feel, the sense not of private duty merely, but of public duty also. And then if you perform that duty there is a reward awaiting you which is superior to any other reward in the world. That is the affectionate remembrance of your fellowmen—their honor, their affection, their love for you, which no man could wish for more than that. So man could wish for more than that to strive for. I wish you Godspeed and remind you that yours is the honor of the United States."

Prior to the president's address and the presentation of their diplomas, the graduates were addressed by Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

GERMAN AIRSHIP WRECKED

PARIS, June 2.—A squadron of French aeroplanes pursuing a group of German machines which had just bombed Bar le Duc, brought down two machines, one of which was a Fokker.

The raid referred to probably is the one mentioned in last night's French official statement, which said that 18 civilians in Bar le Duc were killed by German bombs. The French statement recorded the bringing down of only one German aeroplane.

000 Fire in East Boston—Nar-
row Escape From Conflagration

BOSTON, June 2.—Originating with the terrific explosion of an oil tank, fire swept through the one-story wooden building at 163 Border street, rear, East Boston, late yesterday afternoon, spread to five adjoining buildings and for a time threatened to reduce to ashes the Maverick church and other valuable property skirting Border, London and Liverpool streets. The total loss is estimated at $30,000, partly covered by insurance.

Peter W. Fletcher, owner of the building where the fire started, was at work in his office at 155 Border street when the explosion occurred. He ran out to the street and found the shed seized by fire. The George Lowmeyer company a mess of flames. He ran to box 634 and sounded an alarm, but by that time the whole building was burning and the flames had spread to his place at 157 and 155, a 2 1-2 frame structure, and were leaping across to the brick building at 153 occupied by the Federal Trust company.

The flames, despite the fire department's efforts, jumped to the wooden building at 163, occupied as a tobacco store by Benjamin T. Graham. From this it jumped to the 2 1-2 story wooden building at 165, 167 and 169, owned by Henry B. Fish of Winthrop and occupied by William Davis company and D. C. Crosby.

Backing up to the place where the flames were discovered is a three-story wooden apartment house at 1 and 2 Central court. The intense heat set the rear piazzas and roof afire and for awhile five buildings were burning at the same time.

From Liverpool street side engines 5 and 11 crews pumped tons of water into the burning buildings, checking the fire in the apartment house and beating the flames back.

Reinforced by the crew of fire boat 47, which ran lines over the McQuay-Norris wharf, Companies 9 and 40 attacked from Border street, and after a little more than an hour's work the fire was extinguished.

The building where the fire originated is a total loss, with two automobile trucks and several heavy wagons. The tank which blew up, causing the fire, was nothing but a mass of twisted iron. The other buildings were only partly burned, but were well soaked with water.

The cause of the explosion is a mystery, inasmuch as the tank, which was being placed on a truck for delivery to the Standard Oil company, was a new one. In the opinion of Mr. Fletcher, vapor must have formed inside the tank.

IN BOSTON INVENTION—BUOY
PHOTOGRAPHIC SCENES

BOSTON, June 2.—The Charlestown navy yard and waters of Massachusetts bay, within the next few weeks, may be the scene of experiments with a new periscope device which will make the submarine of the United States superior to any in the world, if the dream of a marcher in last Saturday's preparedness parade comes true.

The device is a child of the inventive mind of Van Antwerp Clarke, of this city. He described it about 10 days ago to officials at the Charlestown navy yard, and received a welcome there. He wrote to the navy department at Washington, and last Tuesday received a letter from Sec. Daniels giving him authority to use submarines at the Charlestown yard for perfecting his plans.

Last night Mr. Clarke told of his basic idea and gave all the details which he deemed it wise to make public. Much of the detail he has saved for the United States navy alone. It is an invention which will allow the submarine to see miles farther than through any present periscope and will make the submersible a far more deadly force than at present.

Plans are now on foot to secure the use of one of the submarines built by the Fore River shipbuilding corporation for Great Britain, now held at the navy yard, as Mr. Clarke's laboratory. The United States submarines are away at maneuvers.

From the description the inventor gave last night, the device might be described as a floating eye. It is a periscope buoy, from which a vision for many miles may be photographed over a cable to the submarine. The periscope on the buoy can be raised much higher out of water than can a submarine periscope, with a consequently wider range of observation.

The periscope will have an instantaneous vision in all directions, and this vision can be transmitted by cable to the submarine a mile or more distant from the buoy, according to Mr. Clarke. Once the submarine commander has picked up the exact location of an approaching ship the cable connection can be dropped, so that the submarine is not confined for long to action to the radius of its cable.

Two difficulties in the inventor's mind when he submitted his idea to Naval Constructor Baxter and others at the navy yard were cleared up by them, he says. The possibility of detection was one; the other was the problem of stability for the floating periscope.

The officials suggested that dummy periscopes be placed in the same waters with the actual periscope, perhaps one to four or five dummies. The inventor's plans include a device for controlling the height of the periscope from the submarine, elevating the lens to perhaps 30 or 40 feet above water.

The naval constructors told the inventor also, he says, that there is now a known device for giving such an upright object as the periscope attached to a buoy absolute stability even in rough waters.

Besides the submarine use of the periscope it will be equally valuable to land naval stations, Mr. Clarke believes. A land station can probably have a much longer cable connection with a floating periscope and can pick up visions of objects at a much greater distance at sea than is now possible. A five-mile cable would be feasible, probably.

Residing at the Charlestown navy yard, Mr. Clarke is now a known device for giving such an upright object as the periscope attached to a buoy absolute stability even in rough waters.

SCHOOL GIRL ARRESTED

Helen Katsawanna of Worcester Said to Have Stolen $30—Many Complaints

WORCESTER, June 2.—Charged with larceny, Helen Katsawanna, aged 14, a school girl, was arrested by the Worcester police following the receipt of complaints from different sections of the city that apartments have been ransacked and robbed during the past few days.

The girl was arrested shortly after John J. Keating of 109 Chatham street notified the police that his apartment had been ransacked and stolen. The police allege that the girl entered the block late in the afternoon and waited until the family had left for a trip downtown. The curtains in the different rooms of the Keating apartment had been drawn, say the police, so as to shut off any view from people living in the next block.

When searched at the police headquarters $30 was found tucked away in the girl's hair. It is alleged. The girl told the police she lived at 69 Sumner street, this city.

IF YOU WORRY, READ THIS

Worry never brought any good to anybody. But, you say, "I don't worry because I want to, I worry because I can't help it." Or, "I worry because I have so much to worry about."

We'll have our troubles and worry, of course, makes matters worse. The patient generally recognizes his fact without being able to profit by it.

The doctor who could read this nervous condition and cure it would be the most popular medical man alive.

But he cannot do it because the form of nervous exhaustion known as neurasthenia, of which worry is a characteristic symptom, must be cured by the patient himself. That is why you should write today for the book "Diseases of the Nervous System" and read the chapter on "Neurasthenia." So many people have read it and written back, "This hits my case exactly. I am giving the treatment a trial and being benefited," that the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. has had a lot of these books printed and will send you a copy free on request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a non-alcoholic tonic, particularly suited for nervous, neurasthenic people. Your druggist sells them or they will be mailed postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50.

THE STATE TAX TWO EXECUTED BRANDEIS IS CONFIRMED

How Reduction Lowers Share of All Massachusetts Cities

BOSTON, June 2.—Massachusetts state tax this year will be $8,000,000, or 1,750,000 less than last year. This is the lowest tax that has been declared by the commonwealth since 1913, the last year of the Foss administration. It is likewise the greatest reduction in state tax in the city's history.

The state tax had been steadily mounting for years, it having jumped from $5,600,000 in 1911, the first year of the Foss administration, to $9,750,000 last year, when it was the highest in the state's history.

As a result when the house committee on ways and means reported this year's tax yesterday morning, there was great rejoicing among the republican leaders of the legislature. Governor McCall was delighted with the figures presented by the committee.

Two big factors operated to keep the state tax down this year. The chief of these was the new inheritance law, which produced a saving of about $3,000,000 or $3,500,000 more than even the most optimistic state officials hoped for it would produce.

Then the present administration got a $700,000 windfall from last year, because the income, when the 1915 state tax bill was made up, was underestimated that amount. As a matter of fact, the total appropriations this year were greater by nearly $1,000,000 than last year. In 1915 the total appropriations amounted to $20,103,222.75 as against $21,002,756.87 this year.

On the other hand the total revenues and cash on hand was about $2,700,000 more this year than last year. In 1915 he total revenues and cash on hand at the time the state tax was declared was $10,398,945.77, as against $13,005,070.65 this year.

While the reduction in the state tax will come as a direct boon to many cities and towns, some of the cities and towns will have to pay "considerably more this year than last year, as the result of the new apportionment of the state tax, which was recently completed.

Among these is the famous "millionaire's retreat," Orleans, which has received in the past in the lowest tax rate in the state, the rate being down to 33 per thousand in that town last year.

The state tax, which will have to be paid by the cities of the state follows: Attleboro, $35,520; Beverly, $74,730; Brockton, $98,240; Cambridge, $216,960; Chelsea, $24,400; Chicopee, $38,240; Everett, $54,550; Fall River, $180,000; Fitchburg, $70,080; Gloucester, $43,520; Haverhill, $76,480; Holyoke, $111,040; Lawrence, $134,560; Leominster, $24,000.

Murderers Put to Death at Sing Sing Prison This Morning

SING SING, N. Y., June 2.—Two murderers, Roy Champlin and John Supe were put to death early today in the electric chair at the state prison. Champlin killed his uncle, Henry McGee at Wellsville, in June a year ago. The murder was the outcome of a family quarrel.

Supe was executed for the murder of Vincenzo Abbattello at Westbury, Nassau county, on June 25, 1915. Supe was employed on the estate of Harry Payne Whitney and his victim worked for Willard in the straight. They quarrelled over an old debt owed by Supe.

The state board hopes, by a relentless campaign of education, with simple lessons, almost in monosyllables, to make of workers sworn enemies of dirt and dust and thereby to save them money and health.

The idea of slipping these little lessons into the pay envelopes struck Commissioner of Labor Edwin Mulready as an effective way of bringing the message home and with Dr. Thos. F. Harrington, medical deputy of the board, they are being put out in pamphlet form.

Here is part of one lesson, entitled "Some Facts About Dust and Your Pay Envelope."

"To the wage-earner—The state board of labor and industries asks your co-operation in fighting dust and its diseases because

"Dust is one of the great enemies of industrial workers. It destroys the power of the body to fight disease by clogging up the human machinery. This means a small pay envelope. It often means the loss of your job."

"The amount of sickness each year among industrial workers is appalling. The investigation of the Massachusetts commission showed that sickness causes a loss of $50,000,000 in this state each year that is preventable."

"All authorities agree that this great loss can be prevented."

"Do you realize what this means to you?"

"In dollars and cents it means that at least $27 now spent by each of the 600,000 families in this state for illness each year can be saved; it means that a loss in wages each year averaging two weeks for each wage-earner of the state can be stopped; it means that this money can be added to your income."

"Sickness lowers the power to work steadily. Sooner or later it makes the worker unfit for his job. This means

Wash Your Hands Rules

Wash your hands before eating. Do not eat your lunch in a dusty work room and do not spend the noon hour there. Make cleanliness the habit of your life, it will pay you in a better health.

Drink four or five glasses of water each day.

Do not defy Nature in your daily life.

Be temperate in all things. Take full advantage of God's free gifts—fresh air and sunshine.

Balance work and rest in a right proportion to fit your age, sex and health.

Help the board of labor and industries to enforce in your place of work the laws for better health.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL

The regular meeting of the Trades and Labor council was held last night in the hall at 32 Middle street. There was a large attendance of delegates and considerable business was transacted during the evening.

Charles Morris, representing the United Hatters, told of the results of the subscription fund recently raised by organized labor for the relief of the hat makers in Berlin, Germany. The amount realized by the donation of one hour's pay on Jan. 27 by organized labor was $122,138.55.

A communication was received from the International Bakery and Confectionery Workers, asking the local secretary to write the congressman from this district asking his support of pending workmen's compensation act for the District of Columbia.

Another communication was read from the Central Labor council of Mahoning county, Ohio, advising the local of a number of strikes in that territory. The workers seek an eight-hour day, which has been refused, after several conferences.

The credentials of John Carroll, who succeeds Louis Ingraham as a delegate from the Wöden Spinners, were received, and the following additional delegates to the Labor day committee were announced:

Brotherhood of Railway Carmen: E. L. Griffin, W. E. Donnegan and W. E. Oakes.

Painters and Decorators: Joseph Pantano, William Hollinsworth and Thomas Morrison.

Blacksmiths and Helpers: J. J. Beckett, Paul Hauha and Terrance Gilligan.

The organization of one or two new unions, which will affiliate with the Central council, is under way, it was announced.

AGAINST PENSION CLAIMS

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Steps were taken by army officers today to guard against future pension claims for disabilities not incident to military service. Army medical officers were instructed through a bulletin issued by the chief of staff to examine recruits with special care, even though they are enlisted from state militia organizations whose medical standards are equal to those of the United States army.

The circular cites the fact that thousands of claims for pensions based on physical defects possessed at the time of enlistment have been filed in past years, because careful physical reports on recruits were not kept.

THE KIMBALL SYSTEM GAME

The game between the Kimball System nine and Mayor John J. Hurley's aggregation from Lawrence will be played on the South Common instead of Spalding park. It was decided today.

The Hurleys, as they are known, have been making a great record this year. Their pitcher, Leary, possesses only one arm.

Sec. Baker Predicts Re-election of Wilson—Calls G. O. P. an Aggregation of Factions

COLUMBUS, O., June 2.—Secretary of War Baker, in an address as chairman of the Ohio democratic convention here yesterday, declared the republican party is "an aggregation of factions agreeing upon no set of principles," and compared it with the democratic party which he said had carried out a wise and definite program in economic measures, national preparedness and foreign policy. The party will be continued in power to mature its program, he predicted.

Referring briefly to politics in Ohio, his home state, the secretary expressed the hope that the present republican administration "characterized by feebleness and uncertainty" would be replaced by the democrats next year, and that special attention would be given to relieving the financial stringency of Ohio cities.

Secretary Baker praised President Wilson for pressing enactment of the federal reserve and rural credits systems, tariff reduction, for unholding American ideals in dealing with Mexico, and for steering the United States away from participation in the European war. He expressed satisfaction that the preparedness program had been moderate.

Attacking the republican party, Secretary Baker said:

"To speak of a man as a republican today identifies him with a cause, ascribes to him no opinion; and whether it affiliates him with progressives or reactionaries or both cannot be told until after the national convention in Chicago next week."

He declared that Senator Harding of Ohio, who will preside at the republican convention, represents one faction which believes the tariff should be the issue in the coming campaign, while other republicans favor an attack on the foreign policy of the present administration. Opposition camps are divided into those who believe the administration has been too bellicose and those who fear it has been too peace-loving, he said.

"Then there is a third group," the secretary continued, "headed by the Great Detractor, who, shifting from position to position on the nation's foreign policy, selects at each time apparently whatever vantage point seems to offer an opportunity for making difficult the position of the president and congress.

"In other words, what used to be the strong, coherent, logical organization known as the republican party, is now, so far as its leaders are concerned, an aggregation of factions, agreeing on no set of principles, advocating no national policy, the only common bond of union being a willingness to pool issues to win. And this party is about to meet in convention at Chicago to select whatever candidate looks best at the last moment, and whatever principles promise to weather the storm until November.

"In contrast to this, the democratic party, having lived through years of doubt and hesitation, with a central philosophy sometimes more a yearning than a program, now presents a matured policy, evolved by a great leader, welcomed by his party associates as the real expression of their political ideals."

Secretary Baker declared the federal reserve act, by steadying business and commerce during the trying period of the European war, alone "would afford a record for courage and wisdom upon which the party could confidently appeal to the country." It has eliminated the power of a few financiers to cause a panic, he stated. The rural credits legislation "is the first comprehensive recognition by the nation of the needs and rights of those who till the soil as the foundation of our entire economic structure," said the secretary.

Commenting on the democratic reduction of tariff, Mr. Baker said: "To the amazement of the faithful, the duties have gone down but the dinner pail is not only not empty but full to overflowing. The high protective duty has passed to the hall of fame, where it is placed with Dr. Cook, and Cagliostro, venerable only because of the length of time men rendered homage for virtue which it did not possess."

Mr. Baker declared that intervention in Mexico had been urged by "some American owners of Mexican mines, some American proprietors of Mexican concessions, some American who looked with longing eyes on Mexican lands, some who were greedy for the spoils of the Mexican revolution."

"Disorders have been unfortunate, he explained, but the only alternative was 'war upon these people, who have willed no act of aggression on us, to invade their country, and to spend years in the occupation of foreign soil, and in toilsome effort, expensive of life and treasure, to impress an alien civilization on these people.'

Included in Mr. Baker's comment on the European war, was this:

"It is better for the people of the United States not to be involved in that vast destruction if it can be honorably avoided; and, second, it is better for humanity for the United States not to be involved, in order that, when the end of the struggle comes, there will be one great and persuasive power in friendly relations with all of the belligerents, inspired only by high motives of humanity and friendship, to aid as adviser and counselor in the terms of readjustment necessary."

"The course of the administration has been to regard itself as, in the nature of the case, a trustee, for the time being, of the rights of neutrals."

President Wilson was the subject of this praise from the secretary.

"When the history of this age comes to be written, the great fortune of the American people and of the world will appear to have been that our destinies were in the hands of a man, patient, wise and just, who saw past all the minor annoyances and through all the cross-currents of feeling, who resisted every impulse toward impetuous judgment and thereby accomplished these great things: First, that he saved the lives of countless Americans who by any other course would have been devoted to death in battle; second, that he preserved the civilization of the 20th century against the last great assault which would have been made had our country too been swept into the general catastrophe; third, that he vindicated and preserved unimpaired the rights of neutrals and restrained the zeal of belligerents from sacrificing international law to the supposed necessities of their military plans; and fourth, that he saved up the moral energies of a great and free people to place them at the disposal of mankind when they rested from their work of destruction and began to reconsider the possibilities of national life."

"His has been the one sane and serene spirit which will redeem this age; and when the election comes it will be found that the people of America, whatever their sympathies in the European struggle, realize that the one indispensable exponent of the mind, the friendliness and the ideals of America in the remaking of the old order in the old world, is the finest order produced in this age by the new order in the new world—Woodrow Wilson."

SHE'S THERE BECAUSE SHE PERFORMS—THE 3400 r. p. m. CHALMERS

Most cars start alike. But very few finish alike. Therein comes a mighty difference.

Step on the little button 10 months after date and you'll readily note the inequality.

One is sluggish, "dead", without emotion, and responds to the touch with the speed of old-time oxen responding to the lash.

The other is alive, alert, ready; radiates desire to plunge ahead.

This is the 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers kind. The other kind is the species known to the trade as "one-year" cars.

Chalmers makes a five-year car. There's many an old 1909 Chalmers 80 Blue Bird giving a good account of itself today. You'll find the everlasting pep there five years from the day you take your first turn at the wheel.

Largely because of the 3400 r. p. m. engine. Which delivers mighty power with easy effort.

It's mostly in the design. The pistons are aluminum, about two pounds lighter per piston; the reciprocating parts lighter, which eases up the thrust on the bearings.

Then the crank-shaft, which is very heavy, and balanced to the weight of a hair in a special Chalmers device, spins at the rate of 3400 revolutions per minute.

It means excellent reserve power. For at 10 miles an hour the engine is turning up only 500 r. p. m. while at 20 she is doing about 1000 r. p. m. So that at excessive road speed she has the punch to deliver when called upon.

16% of her power is used at 10 miles an hour. So that she has 84%—when a twisting, hilly road looms ahead, when a sharp corner with a rugged grade hoves in sight; when the man ahead is showing you too much dust.

You'll like the 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers for one single little reason. She sure can perform.

Ask your dealer about Chalmers service inspection coupons, negotiable at all Chalmers dealers everywhere. This system is a most important consideration in buying your car.

Three-Passenger Cabriolet, $1440 Detroit.
Two-Passenger Roadster, $1070 Detroit.

FOR G. O. P. CONVENTION

Consideration of Claims of Contesting Delegates Resumed Today—Other Business

CHICAGO, June 2.—Consideration of claims of contesting delegates to the national convention was resumed today by the republican national committee, which opened its deliberations here yesterday with a continuous session lasting more than nine hours.

The result of yesterday's work was a decision in the cases of sixteen delegates, nine from Georgia and seven from Alabama.

The Henry S. Jackson delegates from Georgia were awarded seats and the seven protests in Alabama were settled by the seating of six regular delegates at large and a protesting delegate from the ninth congressional district. The committee also voted to place the delegates from Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines on the temporary roll with the recommendation that they be given votes.

The Louisiana contest involving 12 delegates was the first taken up today. It will be followed by the contest in Mississippi, Missouri and North Carolina, in the order named.

The fight in the Louisiana delegation today is between the so-called "Lillywhites" and the "Black and Tans" as has been the case at many former committee meetings preceding national conventions. The contesting delegates were chosen at separate meetings in Louisiana, the "Lillywhites" holding their meeting at a hotel in New Orleans where colored people were not allowed entrance. The delegation was, consequently, composed exclusively of whites. The other delegation is composed of an equal number of whites and colored people. Neither side is committed to any candidate.

TENDERED SHOWER

A very pretty miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Lula Marie LaVigne, the popular ribbon buyer of the Bon Marche, last evening at the home of Miss Mary Doherty, 187 Cumberland street, in honor of her coming marriage to William Harold Tobin. Her many friends gathered at an early hour, and upon the arrival of the bride-to-be she was showered with beautiful and costly gifts.

A musical program was carried out, including piano selections by Frances Parker, Bella B. LaVigne and Marion Bedford. The girl quartet of the Bon Marche entertained with several selections, while Ruth Anderson sang a pretty lullaby, after which dancing was enjoyed. The house was artistically decorated with palms and cut flowers. A very dainty luncheon was served. The happy affair came to a close at a late hour, wishing Miss LaVigne happiness, health and prosperity.

The affair was in charge of Mary Doherty and Ruth Anderson.

POLICE STATISTICS

According to statistics recently compiled, Lowell, with a police force of 136 regular members, has a smaller number of men per thousand of population than most cities of like size. It is estimated that the police of the United States number 53,000 men. According to the census bureau, the total number of uniformed police in cities of 20,000 population or over is 48,026, including 5532 officers, 4821 patrolmen on special duty and 3303 detectives. The total roster of the police force in the cities of 20,000 or over is 51,042, including civilians, only a small number of whom have been under drill. Of 3026 mounted police officers, 53.6 per cent had 10c Cigars in the world. Factory cycles, and 17 per cent on bicycles. Manchester, N. H.

There were 70 police women in the United States.

all of the Massachusetts mills and Rev. A. C. Ferrin.

President Cumcock's address of welcome was brief and to the point. He told of the wonderful advancement of the school and laid particular stress on the manufacture of dyes. "It gives me great pleasure," he said, "to welcome you to the exercises of graduation of the day class of the Lowell Textile school for 1916. It is the 15th year that I have had the honor to preside at these occasions and I am free to confess that for the first few years we did not have much to boast about. But I have no apologies to offer to day for I believe we have the greatest textile school in the world."

"We can take the raw material from the bale of cotton and manufacture it into cloth. We can do more than that. We can take the wool from the sheep's back and manufacture it into cloth. I think there isn't another school in the world that can do it. There are three graduates here today who made the cloth for the suits they are wearing and the wool for those garments was taken from the sheep's back and was made into cloth by the boys who are wearing the suits. I think that performance cannot be matched anywhere. We have a wonderful equipment here and we have also a fine corps of teachers."

Mr. Cumcock, at this point, displayed two skeins of yarn as a demonstration of the school's progress in dyestuffs. The yarn was yellow and pink and he said the colors would neither run nor fade. He capped this interesting little climax with the statement that the dyes used on the evaras were made from coal tar produced by the Lowell Gas Light company. There was great applause when Mr. Cumcock said the dyes were as good and as fast as any made in Germany.

"The Lowell Textile school," he said, "is making wonderful strides in chemistry. We have a laboratory equal to any in the United States and we are determined to get all we can out of our equipment. It may surprise some of you to learn that and Eve lived about six thousand years ago, and that civilization began a few hundred years prior to that time the whole human race existed in a state of barbarism. Recent discoveries in Egypt and Babylonia show traces of civilization running back probably seven thousand years and then new, in fact there is every reason to suppose it was old. The explorations of archaeologists have all the while been revealing evidence not only of the great antiquity of civilized races, but what I wish particularly to emphasize, the existence among those races of an educated class.

These have sometimes been represented by a professional class of scribes and clerks and sometimes by the priesthood. Learning does not seem formerly to have been associated with the ruling classes. The nobility of mediæval times often could not write their own names. The power of ancient days cared no more about learning to read or write than they did to learn a craft or trade.

The revival of learning about the beginning of the modern era, with history changed, the feudalistic profession of arms the respect for learning among the nobility increased. The men of leisure turned toward the universities and education, no longer despised but now ennobled became the possession of the upper classes. Scholarship became respected and ignorance a mark of disgrace.

At the time of the settlement of New England the commercial and political activities of the middle classes in England had brought the touch of learning. But still the higher education was for the clergy and the professions. It was not for the common people and it was not for women. The Puritans built their meeting house and then turned to found their colleges. Learning was for the classes and not for the masses. It was a privilege and such it remained until long after the Revolution.

The public school is a distinctly modern development, and many can recall when there was no law for compulsory attendance. But all the while our system of education bore the ancient theory that it was instituted to train men, not so much for life here, as for life hereafter. While this, and some other textile and industrial schools are older, it is only within ten years that Massachusetts has adopted a provision for vocational training in its public schools.

We are just beginning to apply the realization that training the hand and the eye is training the mind, that our industrial development depends upon making artists of our artisans, and that the best preparation that we know of for the life hereafter is the skill and training and power to live useful and successful lives here.

Such, in rough outline, has been the progress of education and its application to the practical affairs of this world. I believe it is fraught with a deep and significant meaning of hope for humanity. You have seen how learning has always led the race on and up, though it was once despised as fit only for slaves and hirelings, how it became ennobled and reserved for the fortunate few, how American institutions have made the realization of the few, the privilege and finally the duty of all. Such has been the establishment of the democracy of education.

The Lowell Textile school marks a step even in advance of this. As the public school meant the realization of the worth and dignity of man, vocational training means a realization of the worth and dignity of industrial life.

choice, and equal honor falls to equal endeavor.

PRINCIPAL CHARLES H. EAMES

Uncle Sam had to send to Germany for dyes for his greenbacks not long ago, and we are now in a position to make the green dye.

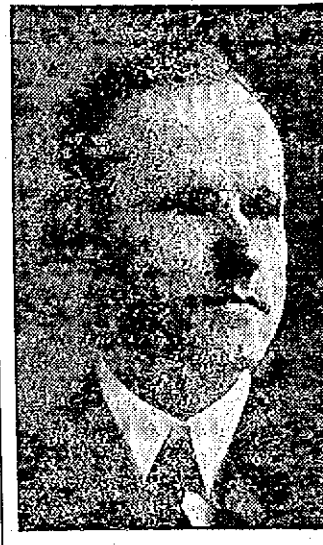

"We hear everybody asking what is going to happen after the war. I am sure I do not know what is going to happen and I must admit that I am not times a little bit afraid. But I feel that the government will furnish us with a protective tariff on dyestuffs and that we will be able to send some of our young men to South America to capture some of the trade down that way. From my own mill today I approved three or four orders going to Australia and there isn't any reason why we shouldn't get more of that trade. If we send young men to South America it will be necessary for them to be able to talk the Spanish and Portuguese languages. I asked the legislature for $1500 for that purpose, but the legislature wouldn't give up. I wanted to educate the young men in those languages so that they would be ready to go to South America and do business and I am going to try again next year."

"I remember that one time in Germany I tried my hand at German. I knew I couldn't do a very good job at it, but I thought I might get by. I tried it on a policeman. He listened a minute, then backed up against a lamp post and threw up both hands. I don't want the young men we send to South America to get caught in that same fix. We must teach them to talk the language or languages of the country whose trade we will sooner or later try to capture."

Lieut. Gov. Coolidge

Calvin Coolidge, lieutenant-governor, received a most cordial greeting and spoke in part as follows:

Modern scholarship has revealed to us that the earth is much older than formerly was supposed. Learned men would no longer tell us that Adam

Accidents in Textile Mills

The thesis of John Gregory Echmalian, the first Armenian to graduate from the school, will interest all mill workers, as it deals with the subject of accidents. It was as follows:

The textile industry has always been the foremost in replacing slow, hand processes by automatic machinery. No industry has such a variety of mechanical appliances, thus the risks attending the operation of certain of these machines are of a serious nature. In this thesis I have made it my purpose to ascertain definite facts relating to accidents, their causes and consequences, such as the mechanical elements involved, the number of days lost, number of temporary and compensative accidents, the hours at which accidents most frequently occur, the location of injury on the body, etc.

Textile manufacturing has passed through an industrial revolution in this country. The native stock of help by raising its standard of living and ambitions have gradually left the mills, and their places have been taken by foreign races of lower intelligence, thus increasing the necessity of the application of safety devices. Many of our textile corporations realizing the great economic loss of time, money and men, through accidents, have given considerable attention to this matter before the present state requirements went into effect. Today the majority of employers are deeply interested in the movement to eliminate accidents to employees from both economic and humane standpoints.

I obtained data for the analysis of accidents from the records of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Co., 30 State street, Boston, and am thankful for their courtesy and assistance.

Accident records are kept on reports similar to the enclosed sample. These reports are divided up into two parts: when a person is injured the upper part of the report properly filled out is immediately sent to the insurance company, and the lower or supplemental report is kept by the employers until the return of the injured employee. When it is properly filled out and sent to the insurance company who make proper compensation and other restitution.

As the time allotted me for the analysis of reports was more or less limited, I was only able to analyze one cotton and one woolen mill. These mills are situated in Massachusetts and are large and efficient, managed plants. The duration of my analysis was for six months' time, beginning July 1, 1913, and ending Dec. 30, 1913.

Accidents are classified as temporary and compensative, or slight and serious. Temporary and slight accidents are accidents which do not cause a man to stay away from work for more than 14 days. Compensation commences on the 15th day and thus all accidents causing over two weeks' unemployment are known as compensative or serious accidents.

Accidents attributed to general causes are very numerous and may be included as follows:—cars on tracks, falls on floors, falls on stairs, falls from scaffolds or ladders, foreign substances in eyes, elevators, electricity, stepping on nails or glass, and others too numerous to mention.

I have made four tables each for cotton and for wool, labelling them 1c, 2c, etc., for tables 1, 2, etc., of the cotton mill, and 1w, 2w, etc., for tables 1, 2, etc., of the woolen mill. An examination of the tables will indicate that the nature of the tabulations are the same for both cotton and wool.

Tables 1c and 1w show the mechanical elements involved, that is for the machine causing the accident the mechanical element involved, such as gears, rolls, etc., are shown and the number of accidents with their nature, whether slight or serious indicated. An examination of these tables will disclose the fact that more accidents are due to general causes than to any special cause.

Tables 2c and 2w show the number of days lost by accidents due to different machines of the textile industry. These tables disclose the fact that more time is lost by general or miscellaneous accidents than by actual machines.

Tables 3c and 3w show the hours of accidents. In the analysis of this table it would be best to refer to plots 3c and 3w. From the general shape of the curves they are about the same. Most of the accidents occur between 10.30 and 11.30 o'clock in the morning and between 2.30 and 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Tables 4c and 4w show the parts of the body affected by the accidents and also show whether the injuries sustained were temporary or compensative. From the examination of the tables, and also plots 4c and 4w, it is evident that the most affected parts of a man are what are known as the upper limbs, that is, the shoulders, arms, wrists and hands.

From my investigations and study of accidents I derive the following conclusions:—

1.—Relative hazards from machines in the cotton and woolen industry are practically the same.

2.—More accidents are due to general causes than the combinations of all machines either in cotton or woolen.

3.—The greatest number of accidents occur between 10.30 and 11.30 o'clock in the morning, and between 2.30 and 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The parts of the body most often affected by accidents are the upper limbs.

BURNS AMERICAN FLAG

Pastor Sentenced to 30 Days and Fined $100 for Desecrating the Stars and Stripes

NEW YORK, June 2.—Buck White, pastor of the Church of the Social Revolution, who last night participated in the burning of the American flag and other national emblems in the rear of his church, was today found guilty by the court of special sessions of desecrating the American emblem and was sentenced to 30 days in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $100. The offense of which he was convicted today was the desecration of the American flag in circulars he caused to be distributed some weeks ago.

Police Commissioner Woods today ordered an investigation of the burning last night of the flags which were placed in a "melting pot."

The affair was described by White as the "birth of internationalism." It is alleged that the American flag was thrown to the flames by Albert Henkel, described as an artist, who afterward described a banner of "international industrialism."

The police commissioner said today that if the facts were as reported it was an "outrage that should not be tolerated." He directed a deputy to confer with the district attorney and said that if that official believed the participants in the "melting pot" episode should be punished, the detectives would obtain the evidence.

INVESTIGATING MURDER

State and City Police Searching for Murderer of Seven Year Old Melrose Girl

MELROSE, June 2.—State and city police under the active direction of Mayor Charles H. Adams today continued their investigation of the assault and murder of 7-year-old Loreta Winifred Wakelin, whose body was found yesterday in the woods near her home in the Swain's pond section of the city.

Mayor Adams and Alderman Albert M. Tibbette in a visit to the scene of the crime found a school book which the child carried when she was attacked while on her way to school. It was in the underbrush a short distance from the spot where the body was found. The police today were endeavoring to locate and question every man known to have been in the vicinity yesterday. Several suspects already have been eliminated.

Mayor Adams has under consideration the question of offering a reward, but no action along this line has been taken, as the mayor said today he believed no added stimulus was necessary to urge the police and citizens in their investigations. Such a step, he added, might be taken at a meeting of the board of aldermen Monday.

"The police are doing their utmost to locate the perpetrator of the atrocious crime," said the mayor, "and while we have no very promising clue we hope for developments which will lead to the arrest of the assailant. State Police Officers Thomas Eustace and Silas P. Smith are working with Chief of Police Kerr, and members of the Melrose department to this end."

Mayor Adams said that the officials attached no importance to the finding of a pile of male clothing on a bluff near the place where the child's body was found. This clue, like all others, however, was being given the closest attention, he said.

WELCOMED INTO THE NAVY

Annapolis Graduates, Coming Into Service at Period of Its Largest Expansion, Says Daniels

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 2.—Secretary Daniels today welcomed the graduating class at the naval academy into actual naval service with an address counselling a steady continuance on their part of the training and studies begun at Annapolis in order that the navy, dependent upon their knowledge for efficient expansion and keeping, might remain equipped and prepared always for any emergency. The secretary told the graduates they were coming into the navy at the period of its largest expansion and its highest efficiency and when lessons from Europe point directly to the need of trained men in war if human life is to be spared from the killing of men unprepared and unskilled in the science of military.

"We have learned as never before during the present world war," the secretary said, "that courage on the field of battle is the commonest, as well as the most glorious attribute of our humanity. The man who, in patriotic outbursts, hurries to volunteer on land or sea often fails to appreciate the fact that his service lacks the highest value unless he is trained in arms. The pathos of human lives sacrificed in war because of unpreparedness is the saddest lesson taught by the European war. It is a lesson which has served to awaken America to the need of training men."

The training that produces skill and efficiency, said the secretary, should be encouraged among naval officers after they are graduated if the navy is to profit by their services.

"Another lesson of the war and one needed in America," he continued, "is that industrial preparedness must go hand in hand with building battle cruisers and other naval craft, and securing more trained officers and men. Most of the great nations had but dimly understood that ability to quickly mobilize the resources and convert industrial plants into munition factories as important as to mobilize men."

"I counsel you," he continued, "to early marry yourself to a special branch of the service, for an ounce of

House Members Ready for Final Vote on Naval Appropriation Bill

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Final vote on the naval appropriation bill was the only business before the house today at its last session with a general attendance before the republicans' convention. Many minority members were ready to leave the house chamber immediately after the balloting this afternoon and catch trains for Chicago.

The house yesterday retained that section of the bill authorizing the United States government to participate in establishment of an international court for maintenance of peace. It also voted an amendment providing not more than $6,000,000 for enlarging navy yards at Boston, Portsmouth, N. H., Charleston, Philadelphia, Norfolk, New Orleans and Puget Sound.

FRANK MORAN AND JACK DILLON MATCHED FOR 10 ROUND BOUT FOR NIGHT OF JUNE 20

NEW YORK, June 2.—Frank Moran of Pittsburgh and Jack Dillon of Indianapolis, heavyweight championship contenders, will meet in a 10-round bout at Washington park, Brooklyn, on Thursday night, June 23. This bout was clinched today after many weeks of negotiations, and will be definitely arranged tonight when the Dorgan manager of Moran, and Sam Marburger, director of Dillon's pugilistic affairs, will sign the articles.

Harry Pollak, Dan McKelrick and Jack Curley are the promoters of the bout, and they will give Moran $25,000 for his end of the purse, and Dillon will receive $15,000. Moran will have his choice of 40 per cent. of the gross receipts and Dillon can have 25 for his share, if the amount goes above his guarantee. Five thousand dollars will be posted by the promoters tonight with George Considine to bid the match, and the remainder of the purse will have to be hung up a day or two before the bout takes place.

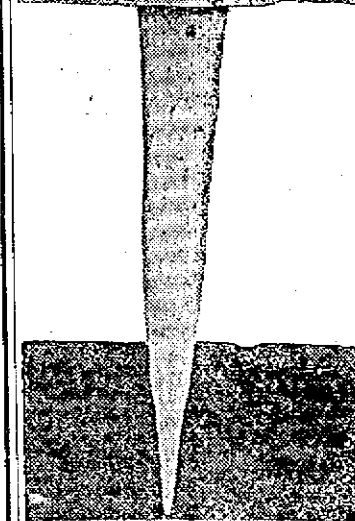

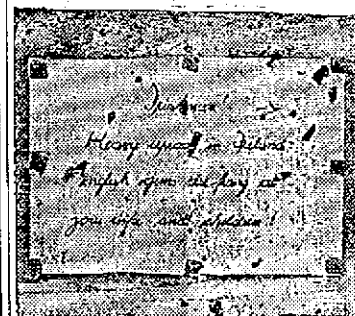

This is the biggest bout that New York has had since the Moran-Willard go in Madison Square Garden and the promoters are counting on drawing a gate of nearly $100,000, provided the weather is favorable. There are enough seats in Washington park, former home of the Brooklyn Feds., to accommodate 25,000 persons, and extra seats will be built before the bout.

Moran, with his trainer, Willie Lewis, left last night for Saratoga Springs to get into condition. It was there that he prepared himself for his bout with Willard and when he entered the ring he was as perfect physically as he could have been. Dillon has not yet selected his training camp.

The "Man-Killer" from Indianapolis will concede about 10 pounds to Moran, and will weigh probably between 165 and 170, against 205 for the Pittsburgh blonde.

GERMANS NOTIFY IRISH

POSTED NOTICE IN BATTLEFIELD GIVING NEWS OF REVOLT IN DUBLIN

NOTICE TO IRISH IN BRITISH ARMY

When the news of the Irish uprising reached the German firing line in France some of the zealous Teutons thought they saw an opportunity to wear some Irishmen from the British cause. So they erected a placard, which is reproduced here, with for the Irish to read. The wording runs: "Irishmen! Heavy Upward in Ireland! English guns are firing at your wives and children! The English account of the incident says that 'the Munsters greeted its appearance with a volley of bullets and the same night made a raid and carried off the placard in triumph.' Note the bullet holes in the placard."

MAY MARRY AND TEACH

WASHINGTON, June 2.—A female teacher in the schools in the District of Columbia may marry and still retain her position, the court of appeals decided yesterday. FUNERAL OF GALLIENI

MILITARY PROCESSION AND IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES FOR SAVOIR OF PARIS

PARIS, June 2.—The funeral yesterday of General Joseph Simeon Gallieni, former minister of war, was the occasion of an impressive public demonstration.

It began with a religious ceremony in the Hotel des Invalides, where the dead warrior's body had lain in state, at which Cardinal Amette, archbishop of Paris, officiated. There followed a funeral oration in the court of the Invalides by Pierre Auguste Roques, minister of war, and a military procession through the streets of Paris, the route of the cortege being packed with a vast multitude gathered to pay tribute to the man who saved Paris in the initial crisis of the war.

The ceremonies in the Invalides were attended by President Poincare, the cabinet ministers, the members of the senate and the chamber of deputies and members of the diplomatic corps.

A QUARTER CENTURY AGO

The year 1890 was a year of no-licensing in Lowell, and as a result drug stores, so-called, sprang up in every kind of vacant stores and they appeared to thrive, though some occasionally come of them would come to grief as the result of an unannounced visit by the liquor officers. When the city went "yes" in the municipal election that year, and license was restored in May, 1891, it was at first believed that the return of the licensed saloon would cause the elimination of the bogus drug stores. Such, however, was not the case, and quarter of century ago at this time of year, with the saloons in full blast, there were more drug stores in Lowell than there have been at any time since. In those days there was no sandwich law that made it easy to get a drink on the Sabbath, and the hotels in selling liquor had to take the same chances as were taken by any other no-licensed places, and hence they were inclined to be careful on account of the money invested in their places. Thus, the drug store, which paid only one dollar for license, did a land office business on the Sabbath. The situation relative to the drug store evil in Lowell, quarter of a century ago, was sized up by "Monte Christo," the old Sun's special writer, as follows: "Unless the real estate men get a move on and finish up the buildings already under construction there will not be stores enough to accommodate the local druggists. There is a new drug store opening in Lowell every half hour. We have had a reputation in the past as great manufacturers of patent medicines, but Lowell will soon be known throughout the country as the city where all the people live on drugs and chemicals and buy and sell nothing else. The future bill of fare in Lowell will most likely include frozen soup, sarsaparilla chowder, fried porous plasters with cod liver dressing, linseed mush with cough syrup, and all that sort of thing. We will soon have a line of drug stores on both sides of Merrimack street, from Bridge street to Pawtucket falls, and an unbroken line from the postoffice to the burying ground. We need them all; we are a very sick crowd, and our city fathers are the cause of it all. Any kind of a character can open a drug store and get a license from the Lowell board of aldermen if he only knows the difference between a porous plaster and a coal stove."

But the day of the "booze" drug store has long since passed away and comparatively few of them are complained of in these enlightened times. The state board of pharmacy assisted in closing them up. Simon E. Harris, who quarter of a century ago was busily engaged in the good work of cleaning up the roadhouses along the road to Lawrence, subsequently entered the employ of the state board of pharmacy and while on the job was the terror of all liquor selling druggists. It will be recalled that it was over a sale of liquor made in a local drug store, quarter of a century ago, that the supreme court rendered its famous decision absolving the proprietor from responsibility in the event of a clerk disobeying his orders in his absence.

A Quarter Century Novelty
Says The Sun of quarter of a century ago:

"The Channing fraternity connected with the Unitarian church has outlined a plan for a temperance saloon to be opened in this city, and to offer attractions equal to those of the liquor saloons. In the shape of temperance drinks of all kinds, facilities for harmless games, with nourishing soups for the sick and poor. This undoubtedly would do good, if properly conducted, and it is well at least to make the experiment. In order to ascertain how far such a saloon would be patronized and whether it will draw any of those who frequent the liquor saloons."

Well-meaning, enthusiastic, but unsophisticated were those good people of the Channing fraternity, of quarter of a century ago, when they attempted to furnish a rival for liquor without a kick in it. They might have installed a cabaret, or have brought Mary Pickford or Charlie Chaplin here, in person, but unless they put a stick in the flowing bowl they didn't have a burglar's chance to beat out old John Barleycorn in a race for popularity. But there's no denying the fact that conditions relative to the sale of liquor have improved remarkably in quarter of a century, and there has been an additional improvement since the beginning of the present year.

An Old Time Nuisance
Says The Sun of quarter of a century ago:

"The conductors of some of the street cars had passengers complaining about the oil of the kerosene lamps dropping on their clothing."

That efficiency expert who is appearing for the Bay State, at the hearings before the public service commission at the state house should quote this item as another argument in behalf of six cent fares, as there are no droppings from incandescent lamps, and today their passengers' clothing is protected against ruin, where quarter of a century ago they took a chance. But when one enters some of the cars that the company has been running in Lowell, recently, instinctively he looks up to see if they have the oil lamps installed for they are certainly old-fashioned cars. Not long ago The Sun published a complaint from passengers of the North Chelmsford car who had to ride on a leaky car, getting a drenching every time the rain fell.

Some Class to B. of T.
That there was some class to the board of trade of quarter of a century ago is evidenced by the following which appeared in The Sun of that time:

"The board of trade is planning a two days' trip to the White mountains this summer, instead of the regular picnic, or outing."

In those days they went by train. Now they might make the trip over that celebrated highway from the mountains to the sea, for a part of which the board was in a measure responsible.

Sons of Veterans
The fine appearance of the Sons of Veterans in the Memorial day parade suggests the fact that they have been prominent in this city for over quarter of a century, and just quarter of a century ago the state convention of the organization was held in this city, Huntington hall being the scene of the meeting. There were present 226 delegates, representing a total membership in the state at that time of 4875, divided among 134 camps. Closely following that state convention a new camp of the order was established in this city and named after Hon. Frederick T. Greenhalge. Its first officers were: Captain, G. N. Howard; first lieutenant, Fred L. Knapp; second lieutenant, L. P. Bradford; camp council, Walter H. Coburn, Charles Bell, Fred C. Amadon; sergeant, Charles Bell; quartermaster, W. Thayer; color guard, Z. Hutchinson.

Bricklayers Are Busy
An item in The Sun of quarter of a century ago, stating that the bricklayers had started an agitation for $4 per day, calls to mind the fact that the present year has been the busiest in the history of the local bricklayers, and with their overtime and Sunday work on the munitions plants some of them are getting twice $4 per day. The $1 day for bricklayers has been in vogue for some time, and in some cities they get much more than that rate of wages.

THE WALKER MEMORIAL

BUILDING WILL OCCUPY THE MIDDLE OF THE CHARLES RIVER BASIN FRONT

Ground has been broken for the Walker Memorial of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the corner stone will be laid on Monday, June 12 at 2 p.m. in the presence of some thousands of alumni from all parts of the country in the fulfillment of a plan which has been next the hearts of the alumni for a number of years.

The building is to occupy the middle of the Charles river basin front of the easterly half of the Technology holdings along the Esplanade, a half that, from the beginning, has been set aside for student activities. Here there is already established the athletic field with a track that is said to be the best in the country and here already constructions are in progress to be ready in the fall for housing a good many of the students in dormitories which have all the natural advantages of the situation and are in proximity to the class rooms and matters in which the students will be interested in their spare hours. Of the latter the Walker Memorial will be the centre, geographically as well as socially.

The Walker Memorial, a beautiful building which is in harmony with the educational group and carries out the same ideas and the same classic style and in the same warm tinted limestone, will be restful to the eye and at the same time will be convenient for the social uses which the club of all Technology requires. There will be a great dining hall, the largest in Greater Boston, which will readily seat eight or nine hundred, smaller refectories scattered about in other parts of the building, a vast gymnasium in which the cadet corps could perform its evolutions if necessary, and a grand foyer for mass meetings, so arranged as to afford a great series of living rooms for the students, who, under the new conditions, will have supplied to them the one feature that Technology life has lacked to a considerable extent, the opportunity for the students to get together under favorable conditions for personal intercourse.

The Walker Memorial will have rooms galore for the accommodations of the student activities of which there are more than thirty, a library, some space reserved for the instructing staff, rooms and courts for indoor sports, and all in fact, a great meeting ground for the twenty-five hundred individuals who will form the Technology family when it gets moved to its new home.

The beginnings of the construction have of necessity been delayed till now, and it will obviously be impossible to have the Memorial complete by the time of the dedication exercises on June 12, but the institute, by the essential portions of the structure will be ready for the students when they assemble in the fall, and these will include the dining hall and gymnasium. Two or three months later the whole building will be at the service of the students.

The Walker Memorial was suggested shortly after the death of President Walker and a fund was subscribed which touched about $100,000. It was to be a memorial that was peculiarly appropriate since in his life and while he was president he realized the fundamental need of the Institute for what may be termed a social side. Without dormitories, with the students scattered through homes and lodging houses in every part of greater Boston, there could be no student life distinctive of the college. It was an idea of his to correct the need, but at the time it was the existence of Technology that was General Walker's chief care, so that the luxury of student accommodations could not come during his day.

There were associated with the original idea some plans with reference to gymnasium, student restaurant and the like. This was in the days of a Technology of much smaller proportions than now. Presently there was developed a plan for providing meals. This has become a permanent feature of institute administration, and contrary to the expectation of some of the colleges has proved a financial success, and moreover has furnished a number of students with the wherewithal to get through the school. In providing a building for the restaurant it was easy to make a great living room and here the students have fared fairly well in expectation of greater things. Meanwhile there came the unrest due to the fact that the institute, on account of its rapid growth, must presently seek another home for itself. Thus it is that although plans were once actually drawn for a memorial building to be located on Trinity Place it was deemed best to defer the construction of the memorial till the future home of Technology should be decided.

There has been done and the educational structures are complete in outward form so that the Walker Memorial is next in order, and the plans of the proposed building have been approved informally by the authorities. It is the presentation of the Walker Memorial according to the original idea of a students' club house.

The memorial is to be a noble building of three stories the cost of which will be about half a million dollars. A portion of the fund is in hand and the alumni will be asked to see that the construction does not lag, and from their past records it is evident from the beginning that their subscription will be all sufficient for the purpose.

The Esplanade front of the memorial will be simple and in keeping with the educational buildings in architecture, with a great engaged portico of half-a-dozen massive columns. Entering the visitor will find himself in a spacious tripartite lobby, with a great lounge on one side and the equally large library and reading room on the other. Straight ahead will be the dining hall with its 2,000 square feet of floor room, back of which are the kitchen and service rooms. The building is H-shaped in form, the dining room being in the bridge. Engineers will describe it as an I-beam in section with an exaggerated web.

The dining hall goes up through two stories, the second forming a balcony, useful in general as affording consultation niches and on special occasions for the great hall will be used for mass meetings, dances and other great student functions—will afford a splendid vantage ground from which to see what is going on.

Overhead there will be the gymnasium and dozens of little rooms for societies of special purposes. There will be a basement with alleys, storerooms, big kitchen and baker's storerooms and the check rooms, utility offices, administration, etc.

With the athletic field so close at hand there will be later constructions to care for the grand stand, lockers and showers and a field house, so that the big gymnasium in Walker Memorial will presently be relieved of its outdoor athletic company which it will

SUIT OF EDWIN C. GILMAN, ESQ., VS. LAMSON CO. TO BE TRIED AGAIN

A new trial has been ordered by the United States circuit court of appeals in the suit of Edwin C. Gilman, Esq., against the Lamson Co. The new trial is ordered mainly upon an erroneous ruling by the district court judge upon the question of the burden of proof.

STOP SUICIDE OF EUROPE

THE OBJECT OF POPE BENEDICT IN HIS EFFORTS TO END WAR, SAYS PAPAL SECRETARY

ROME, via Paris, June 2.—Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, in an interview today with a representative of the Associated Press, declared that the pope was influenced in his peace efforts solely by a desire to stop the "suicide of Europe."

The holy father, said the cardinal, "in his most ardent desire for peace has no particular interest in view, despite what newspapers that are enemies of the papacy state to the contrary. If peace is concluded through the friendly intervention of the president of the great American republic or through his catholic majesty, the king of Spain, his holiness will equally thank the Almighty that an end should at last have been put to the butchery which is the suicide of Europe."

My fingers were drawn toward the palm of my hands, the knuckles enlarged and it was impossible to straighten them. SLEEPYTIME TALES

THE MAYFLOWER OUTING

Once upon a time the "Three E" children's father said at breakfast-time: "Children if you can be ready in half an hour I will take you with me today into the country. I have to go on business and the trip will take me very near the woods where you children can hunt for Mayflowers."

The children were very pleased that they could go for they always enjoyed the trips they took with their father and in a short time they were lathered away in the bottom of the wagon which their father had covered with straw. Their mother had given them a big box of lunch and Eric was going to get some of it instead of the dog biscuit he always ate at home.

Edna told them a story as they rode along and before they knew it they were at the edge of the wood and father was out tying the horse to a tree near by. How good the woods smelled! They found plenty of flowers, but they didn't pick any of them but ran off to look for Mayflowers. They had to hunt hard for them, and push back the soft earth and moss which had covered them all winter. Some were pale pink, almost white, while others were pretty rose pink color and when they were put in a bunch together they looked very pretty and the children agreed to take them home to their mother.

Edna had brought a basket and after they had gathered the bunch for their mother they put the rest into a basket to take home to their other friends.

Edward heard his father call and ran to meet him while Edna and little Ethel spread out the lunch on a mossy rock near a cool spring. What a lunch it was and how the children did eat. Eric was given a chicken bone as a special treat which he took with a wag of his tail and then ran off to eat it all by himself under a tree. When they had finished they washed their hands in the brook and soon they were ready to play in the woods until father was ready to go home.

At once they heard Eric bark and they ran to see what he was barking at. They found the dog watching a hole and barking as hard as he could and digging with his paws at the same time. Their father said no thought it was a woodchuck's hole, but if it was Mr Woodchuck knew enough to stay way down in it while Eric was around.

THE PHAROAH'S

War Revives Historical Associations in Forgotten Town

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 2.—El Arish, one of the world's forgotten places until the English bombed it a few years ago, is the subject of a war geography bulletin, issued today by the National Geographic society from its Washington headquarters, which says:

"With its large square fort and battlement walls, El Arish presents a much more formidable and imposing appearance, viewed from the Mediterranean to the north and from the Desert of Tih to the south, than its importance has warranted in recent years. Formerly a populous halting place for the numerous caravans following the 'short desert route' from Egypt to Syria, its trade has waned materially since the completion of modern railway connections with Jaffa, Port Said and Alexandria. The town clings to the banks of the Wadi-el-Arish, a stream which becomes a small torrent after every rain. It is more than a hundred miles southwest of Jerusalem and a slightly shorter distance from the Suez canal, which lies to the west.

"The recent hostilities in this area revive a host of historical associations dating as far back as the time of the Pharaohs when this town was a place of exile for political prisoners, its ancient name being Rhinokolura. Its present name is supposed to be derived from the custom which obtained here of cutting off the noses of malefactors whose death sentences had been commuted.

"Some 30 miles to the east of El

Arish, on the Egyptian-Syrian boundary, lies ancient Rhaphia, now called Be-Rafa, where Josephus tells us that the Roman conqueror Titus made his first stop on his march against Jerusalem. Here also Sargon overwhelmed the Egyptians in the eighth century before the Christian era, and 500 years later there was fought on the same sands the famous battle between Ptolemy, Philopator and Antiochus, when the charging elephants of both armies played such a spectacular role. Of these great beasts, which had been introduced into Syrian and Greek warfare after Alexander's conquests in India, much was expected. The battle opened with a trumpeting dash of the opposing armoured mountains of flesh. Ptolemy's forces commanding 73 of the terror-inspiring chargers while Antiochus sent into the fray 102. With the first onslaught practically all of Ptolemy's elephants were captured, yet he won the day.

"El Arish fell before Napoleon's Egyptian army in September, 1798, the credit for the city's fall being given to France's great general, Kleber, commander of the vanguard which also seized Jaffa and Gaza. It was during this campaign that Napoleon committed the great atrocity at Jaffa, shooting those prisoners whom he could neither guard nor feed, yet whom he feared to release. After Napoleon's departure Kleber concluded a convention at El Arish with the English admiral Sir William Sidney Smith, whereby the French were to be allowed to capitulate and were to receive safe transport back to France. This agreement was revoked by Lord Keith, however, when Napoleon returned with 10,000 men marched to Helopolis and administered a crushing defeat to the Turks who outnumbered him 6 to 1. Had not a fanatic assassinated the great French tactician on the day that Napoleon won the battle of Marengo, the fate of French arms in Egypt might have been different.

"The admiral Smith whose agreement with Kleber was disallowed was the same British officer who had caused the signal defeat of Napoleon before the walls of Acre, a relief work for which a grateful parliament voted him an annuity of a thousand pounds.

"In the center of the town of El Arish is a granite wall with an inscription in hieroglyphics, perpetuating a curious legend about the Egyptian god Shu. A short distance beyond the walls the traveler is shown the ruins of the building in which Baldwin I, one of the Crusader kings of Jerusalem, died in 1118, after an unsuccessful attack on Egypt."

BRAVE DEFENSE

150 British Soldiers Held Positions Against Great Odds

LONDON, June 2.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—The defense by the British at the Egyptian desert post at El-Dueidar during the Turkish raid of April 23 deserves to be chronicled as among the memorable incidents of the war, according to Reuter's special correspondent at the general headquarters of the Egyptian expeditionary force. On that Sunday 150 British soldiers held a position far too extended for such a small garrison, against a force of Turks and Arabs six times their own number, says the correspondent.

"The location of defense is a small oasis in a depression in the sandy waste about 13 miles east of the Suez canal. The British had erected two redoubts and several small isolated posts in the vicinity of a grove of date palms. These defenses were not completed at the time of the raid.

In a mist so thick that the defenders were barely able to discern the barbed wire fifty feet in advance of their redoubts, the attack began at 8 o'clock in the morning. The first host back the first assault very quickly, according to the correspondent, the Turks retreating to reform.

Capt. Roberts of the Royal Scots Fusiliers was in command. In the absence of communication trenches, he was unable, after the mist lifted at 9 o'clock to send reinforcements, ammunition and messages to the isolated posts, as the attackers' rifle and machine gun fire swept the intervening spaces. One post was held by eight men, three of whom were wounded early in the engagement. To the extreme right, some of the British lay out in the open and fought off enemy attempts to reach the rear of the defenses.

Returning to the attack, the enemy brought up a mountain gun and with it fiercely shelled the oasis, but, according to the correspondent, the aim was wretched and little damage was done. From a ridge to the left a machine gun raked the eastern range of the oasis.

The attacking force numbered 120 Turkish camel corps and about 750 Arabs, together with two mountain guns and 60 muller-men. The British, after holding their positions throughout the day, resisted the final and most desperate attack which began at 7 o'clock at night, this assault consisting of three rushes. When it had been beaten off, most of the enemy dead were found within fifty yards of the British trench, one Turk being found within twenty yards. The defenders had suffered a great many casualties.

Meanwhile news of the attack had reached brigade headquarters, seven miles away, and two companies of infantry had been sent to the garrison, which they reached about 9 o'clock after a trying march through deep sand. The officers commanding these fresh troops had orders to take the offensive at the first opportunity and drive off the enemy but found that the latter was too strong, and further infantry reinforcements were despatched from brigade headquarters, while two squadrons of Australian Light Horse hurried up from a place eighteen miles away.

Before the arrival of these last reinforcements, however, the Turks and Arabs began to fall back, and a British counter-attack drove off the rear-guard, twelve of the enemy being captured. The Australian Light Horse assisted in the full retreat but were unable to overtake the camels on which the enemy was mounted.

The Turks and Arabs lost 7 dead, one wounded and 31 prisoners, according to the correspondent, who does not state the British casualties. The latter included Capt. A. C. A. Brace, of the Army Service Corps, the only officer of the original garrison killed, and Lieut. Crawford, of the Royal Scots Fusiliers, who was killed. Capt. Drake met death while trying to rescue Lieut. Crawford, who was lying on the sand, exposed to a deadly fire.

STRIKE IS AVERTED

Boston University Degree Candidates Object to $10 Graduation Fee—Hot Session, But Finally Vote to Pay

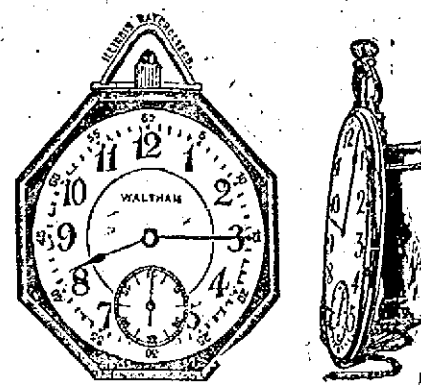

BOSTON, June 2.—A strike of the entire graduating class of Boston University Law school which threatened to mar the university commencement day exercises next Wednesday in Tremont Temple was averted yesterday only when the class adopted the suggestion of Pres. Lemuel H. Murlin of the university to submit its differences with the school authorities to the university trustees.

The cause of the trouble and excitement was the objection of the candidates for degrees to payment of a graduation fee of $10 each, which was established this year for the first time. In a long and spirited session between the class and Pres. Murlin, during which many of the seniors faced the university president and told him the fee was illegal, the cooler heads prevailed, the excitement subsided and the class voted to accept Pres. Murlin's suggestion to pay the fee under protest and then take the question up with the trustees at their annual meeting next Tuesday.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Nursing bottles should be so constructed that the inner surface should contain no corners to collect milk. After each feeding the bottle should be scrubbed with a bottle brush with soapy water and filled with water containing boracic acid until time to boil them before refilling with the next day's supply. They should all be scrubbed each morning before putting in a kettle and covered with cold water, and allowed to boil.

The best remedy for baby's cold is to give a dose of castor oil. Then apply camphorated oil under the nose, across the bridge of the nose and across the forehead. This often relieves the difficult breathing. Another method of giving relief is to wrap absorbent cotton saturated with melted white vaseline around a small stick. Insert, grease well each nostril. Keep a small orange wool stick for this purpose only.

The first hands to be put on the baby in the summer should contain some wool and the shirt should certainly be of a medium weight. The child should be kept as cool as possible, although you should keep the hand containing some wool over the abdomen during even the extreme weather. It is wise to sponge the entire surface of the body several times a day during the extreme weather.

Nowadays the fond mother begins from almost the birth of her baby's birth to keep a card book for its future inspection. This needs must be a large volume, for into it go all of the correspondence, cards, of congratulation to the parents, the birth announcements of contemporary infants, the visiting cards attached to flowers and gifts, and all holiday picture cards.

Mothers must learn to refrain from meddling and let the little ones learn to do their own lessons. When a child has already learned, unfortunately, to ask for help, one must try at once to undo this evil tendency by providing simpler and simpler exercises until, through making a very slight effort "all himself" the child learns the joy of self-conquering and re-acquires his natural instinct for independence. Healthy, normal children give no trouble of this kind. The average child always says: "Let me do it." Mothers must learn to be patient enough to let him do it. This is not to be considered "unduly child liberty," but simply leading him in the right direction.

The clothing of the boy is the problem that confronts most home dress-makers. From the time the wee baby starts to creep mother begins to think: "What shall I do to make his clothes look different from his sister's?" There are several ways of changing the first short dresses and here, too, might be mentioned, it is the wise mother who makes the very first dresses with armholes sufficiently large to fit a year-old baby and the neckbands in like proportion, for these dresses may be short-lived. With the addition of cuffs and a turn-down collar, these dresses are not only fit for several months' wear, but have quite a boyish air. Make the cuffs very long and turn them up; the little arms will all too soon outgrow them.

No more bunched baby heads from falling against unrelenting crib sides. The new padded adjustable cushions have banished that sorrow forever, so that one burden is lifted from the anxious mother's heart. The pads come in sets already made, are of quilted muslin with crocheted edges, and have tape to hold them in place. They launder splendidly.

A child's skull is but little more than putty in substance and it is up to the mother to make it shapely. There is not the least excuse for any child having an ugly nose. The tiny bodies are so pliable that it is only necessary to have the will and determination to make them anything one wishes them to be. Home massage under the instruction of a nurse or doctor is the foundation for your son's straight shoulders and strong body.

A beauty specialist declares that any mother can make her baby have curly hair by always brushing the hair backward when it is damp and washing it from the forehead instead of the way the hair grows. She says ringlets and waves are trained.

Then a child likes or craves sweets it is the usual excuse of an indulgent parent. Every child likes his own way, but that is no reason why he should not be trained to obedience and self control. A child's fondness for sweets can hardly be considered a normal instinct. As a matter of fact, supported by experience day after day, no causes a productive of more disorders of digestion than the free indulgence in desserts and sweets by young children. It is a constantly increasing tendency, not easily controlled, as a child grows older and in early childhood, the only safe rule is to give none at all.

A nursing mother should lead a simple, natural life, should have regular out-of-door exercise, preferably walking or driving, as soon after her confinement as her condition will permit. She should be as free as possible from unnecessary cares and worry. Her rest at night should be disturbed as little as possible, she should go to bed early and lie down for at least one hour in the middle of the day. A nursing mother has the child's health in her own hands, and should use every precaution to live correctly.

If a child is two or more years old, the only effective means of weaning from the bottle is through hunger. The bottle should be taken away at once and entirely, and nothing allowed except milk from a cup until the child takes this willingly. Sometimes a child will go an entire day without food, occasionally as long as two days, but one should not be alarmed on this account and yield. This is a matter of the child's will and not of his digestion, and when once he has been conquered it is seldom that any further trouble is experienced.

Few mothers realize how to properly lift their children. When a young baby is to be lifted from its bed, the right hand should grasp the clothing below the feet, and the left hand should be slipped beneath the infant's body to its head. It is then raised upon the left arm. This method is the best because the entire spine is supported, and no undue pressure is made upon the chest or abdomen, as often happens if the baby is grasped around the body or under the arms.

HOW TO WASH YOUR FACE

If you wash your face in the wrong way every day for a year you won't be as pretty a girl at the end of that time as you were at the beginning. Your skin will be coarsened and your color spoiled, and if you look at yourself in a good light you will see many little wrinkles.

This is the right way of washing your face:
Start by bathing it in clear hot water.

Apply a little good, pure soap to a soft flannel or your fingers, and go thoroughly well over your face with this:

Rinse the soap off again with hot water.

Sponge your face lightly with cool—not cold—water.

Dry your face downward. Perhaps you don't know that by careless rubbing upward you can very soon spoil the shape of your nose.

Brush or comb your eyebrows, which will have become a little rumpled with the drying of your face. If you leave them as they are they will grow into bad lines.

It is not necessary to use soap on your face more than once a day. If you come home at night with a thoroughly grubby face and neck, you can cleanse them best by rubbing a little pure toilet cream all over them and then taking this off again with a bit of soft rag. The grease will bring the dirt away wonderfully. After you have wiped it all off, bathe your face in warm water.

If you are very pale it is a good thing to splash cold water up into your face when you have finished washing. Throw it up briskly with both hands from the basin.

AMERICA'S PROVED NEUTRALITY

There are few, if any, who can discuss the war dispassionately and it goes without saying that no thinking man is really neutral. Whether from honest abstract conviction, inherited prejudice, racial animity or dislike or some other compelling reason the judgment of individuals is formed in certain moulds, and while all patriotic Americans put the interests of America first, each individual American has a leaning to one side or other of the belligerents. No man can be wholly neutral in watching any contest, and certainly not while watching a titanic grapple with which one's inmost emotions are so intimately linked.

With the official side of the American government it is different, and the present administration has striven honestly and honorably to maintain a real neutrality, not interfering in the war except to protect American rights or the broader rights of humanity. Now that the presidential campaign is approaching, various elements are striving to fasten the guilt of unfair bias on President Wilson and his cabinet, but these attacks are fated to fail if truth still triumphs over falsehood.

Not alone in this country but in all the warring nations is America occasionally accused of being unneutral in the war, and this is one of the surest proofs of our neutrality. When our state department sends out a note of protestation against Germany, England rejoices and Germany protests; when we send a note of protestation against England, Germany rejoices and England protests. The warring nations in their destructive hate have thrown international law to the winds and they are opposed to anything that is against their respective policies of expediency.

Now that the world is talking of possible peace, proofs that America has been truly neutral are not lacking. As the president of the greatest non-belligerent power, which has spoken for all neutrals, President Wilson has been prominently mentioned as one of the intermediaries for a settlement. Whether acting alone or in concert with Pope Benedict, King Alfonso and other rulers, it has been said from the first that the American president would have a great part in shaping the terms of the new international agreement.

It is most significant that the American papers report on the same day two distinct protests against the president as peacemaker—one from England and the other from Germany. In England, Lord Cromer—who does not speak officially for the British government—declares that President Wilson is not in sympathy with England's aims and so cannot be accepted as an intermediary by England. In Germany several violent speeches in the Reichstag have declared that because of the sale of arms to England and the submarine controversy, Germany cannot take kindly to the mediation of President Wilson.

If a proof of American neutrality is needed, here it is. This nation has been alternately praised and blamed by both sides in the war, because American interests have in turn conflicted with the interests of both England and Germany. If President Wilson has not always sided with British interests it was because these were sometimes antagonistic to American interests as in the mail and supplies controversies, and as for the British blockade, Germany is merely placing public opinion there, knowing full well that America has been absolutely fair to the central powers.

When the belligerents come to make peace—and may it be soon!—they will speedily forget their pique against the American government and they will accept the mediation of the American president. It now looks as if there is a strong possibility of the war's ending before the presidential campaign, and if so, President Wilson will be carried into office by an overwhelming majority, for by his prudent guidance he has ensured to America the leading place in the world, with the brightest prospects of any power on earth.

PATCHING UP STREETS

Sooner or later the street department will have to tackle the job of block paving Broadway and other streets in this city that now are in a sorry state. Broadway throughout its entire length is pitted with holes and ruts, some of them of handsome proportions, and while it may do some good to fill them in, the treatment will be only temporary, and will not give ultimate relief. Last year the long and important thoroughfare was put in passable shape, but the frosts of the late winter and spring and the heavy traffic have reopened the old holes and made new ones so that the street as it stands today is one of the worst that could be seen in the commonwealth.

Commissioner Morse has started to fix up the lower end and in view of the decreasing appropriation and demands in Back Central street and elsewhere he cannot do more than repair the worst defects at the present time. The fine work done on Andover street, Rogers street, Gorham street, and other streets only shows up streets like Broadway and points out to citizens of Lowell the needs that will call for immediate attention as soon as the street department has enough time, enough money and enough men.

Meantime, Commissioner Morse cannot do better than to employ permanently the repair gang which he is employing temporarily at the present time. The Sun has repeatedly and persistently called the attention of the authorities to the need for same, and if streets were attended to regularly and not left until they are in a completely defective condition, money paid to a wide-awake repair gang would be saved many times over every year. It is the policy of prevention applied to the streets, and the present state of Broadway will form the best kind of argument for those who may not be converted to the repair gang idea. As the heavy trucks increase so do the street defects, especially on smooth paving that was never intended for the industrial traffic of today.

CARRANZA'S DEMANDS

Carranza may not be an over-weighly president of Mexico, but when it comes to writing notes he is John-on-the-spot. His latest diplomatic missive is long on rhetoric—to the extent of 12,000 words, but is short in logic. He now says that in contradiction to our expressed design, American soldiers have invaded Mexico, that they are there without the consent of the Mexican government—whatever that is—and that they should immediately withdraw. In fact he invites them to withdraw in the truly polite fashion of Mexico. Now, to take the note more seriously than it deserves, if the American soldiers are still in Mexico, whose fault is it? They surely are not there from choice and Washington would much rather have them somewhere else. They are there for a specific purpose and that is to protect Americans and give them the guarantee of safety that Carranza either cannot or will not give. The "invasion" of Mexico by American troops put Carranza to a test and he failed to meet it. By refusing to co-operate and by hindering instead of helping Uncle Sam's boys he showed that he is an open enemy or the ally of a designing European power. Either alternative is not complimentary to him, and it looks as though the note will be disregarded—for the present at least. A withdrawal of troops at this time would be a confession of failure, and we cannot afford to fall in such a comparatively small undertaking.

FIRES ON DUMPS

Residents of Centralville in the vicinity of First street and on the hill, and also residents of Andover street on the opposite bank of the river complain of the occasional fires that at this season break out on the First street dump. These fires sometimes smoulder for days and weeks and give off a pungent smoke of a very disagreeable odor, and so they constitute a very real nuisance. It seems only a little while back to the time of the fires on the Alken street dump and the resultant complaints, but these are happily silent. Another criticism heard from time to time is that the city employees are not sufficiently careful in dumping refuse with the effect that papers and other trash blow about the neighborhood for days after the dumping of a fresh load.

It may be possible for the city to minimize the danger of spontaneous combustion on dumps and to so dispose of stuff carted there that children may not be able to start fires. It ought to be possible also for the city to prevent papers and loose rubbish from blowing all over a section where a city dump is located. While one of the commissioners recently regretted that dump space is becoming restricted, and that a longer haul will soon be necessary, there are compensating features which offset the disadvantage of dumps at a distance from the business and residential sections.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

A commission to look into the advisability of old age pensions in Massachusetts and also state insurance against sickness and unemployment is one of the possibilities of the near future if a bill now in the house passes. This is the natural outgrowth of the humanitarian legislation of the past five years and it marks a step towards the radical that would have been undreamed of a decade ago. The main question would seem to be one of economics, and if the state can afford to do all these fine things, well and good. There are many who feel, however, that we are overdoing our applied philanthropy and that there shall be a reaction which shall leave the people worse-off than before. Germany seems to have adopted a wise system of old age pension and insurance, on a contributory basis, but this might not be popular here where the state is expected to do all the spending. In matters of this kind, individual instances would lead the thoughtful to approve of any law that would help, but it is a broad business question that must be settled by the head instead of the heart.

THE CRANKS

It is not strange that a man should throw a pocket knife at Col. Roosevelt or that a thug should throw stones through the window of W. K. Vanderbilt but it is strange that we have so little of this sort of thing. When one considers that we have over one hundred millions of people made up from the racial stocks of all the earth and that in our lower social strata we have dangerous demagogues, anarchists and revolutionists of all sorts who prey upon the ignorant and temperamental, the wonder is that respect for law and order is so universal. The pity is that men who ought to know better will preach inflammatory doctrines and give example that tends to agitate this element, and Col. Roosevelt himself is not free from blame. Many of his utterances are sure to arouse passion and the example of some of our multi-millionaires keeps alive what a noted churchman has called "the tumult of the envious." Even when the millennium shall have dawned, there shall be a few cranks and there are no roses without thorns, even in Arcady.

SEEN AND HEARD

Some women remind one of pieces of ornamental bric-a-brac.

It is the hardest work to make some see that they "must pay the bill."

Circus day is about due, and there is no better reminder of the circus than the floor of our moving picture theatres strewn with peanut shells. Managers take notice.

A recent birthday at city hall has passed our observation simply because Mr. Fred A. Bates, agent of the health department, is too modest to talk about himself. We would not believe that he is so—, but we are not going to squeal as it was said in a secret. Suffice to say that it is a grand age and he is a credit to it.

The operation of the semaphore at the various crossings has drawn quite a crowd of interested spectators. We had begun to think that it was almost useful until today at the Central street crossing, after allowing several touring cars and as many big jump street cars to pass unmolested, a poor, inattentive, one-lunged Lawrence street car, that was then ten minutes late was held up by the appalling challenge "Stop!" Why is it that everybody picks on the Lawrence street line?

Little Green Tents

The little green tents where the soldiers sleep and the sunbeams play and the women sleep, are covered with flowers today. And between the tents walk the weary few who were young and stalwart in '62, when they went to the war away. The little green tents are built of sod, and they are not long and they are not broad, but the soldiers have lots of room. And the sod is part of the land they saved when the flag of the enemy darkly waved the symbol of dole and doom. The little green tent is a thing divine; the little green tent is a country's shrine where patriots kneel and pray. And the brave men left, so old, so few, were young and stalwart in '62, when they went to the war away.—Boston Transcript.

His Own Mark

To a suburban clothing store which has a large foreign patronage there came the other day a young man to buy a ready-made suit of clothes. The one he picked out had to be altered slightly.

"You can have it day after tomorrow," the clerk explained. On that day the young man returned. Nervously he grabbed the coat and began examining it with more than customary carelessness. In mild surprise the clerk looked on.

Suddenly a smile broke over the young man's face, pointing to a place on the inside of the coat, he said: "A right, it's mine. See where I bit the lining!"

Full of the suspicion that is inborn, he had feared that he might not get the suit he had chosen. So, in trying on, he had somehow, either managed to take a tooth through the lining where the hole would show to only his knowing eyes.—Exchange.

In Self Defence

"Jones," said the officer, frowning darkly, "this gentleman complains that you have killed his dog." "A dastardly trick," interrupted the owner of the dog, "to kill a defenseless animal that would harm no one!" "Not much defenceless about him," chimed in the private nastily. "He bit pretty freely into my leg, so I ran my bayonet into him." "Nonsense!" answered the owner, angrily. "He was a docile creature. Why did you not defend yourself with the butt of your rifle?" "Why didn't he bite me with his tail?" asked Private Jones, with spirit.—Youth's Companion.

And Father Pays Bills

"How is Robert getting on at college?" asked the minister, who was being entertained at dinner. "Splendidly," said the proud father, who then went on to tell of his son's various social, athletic and scholastic successes, and the minister said it was a fine thing to be college bred. That evening little James, who had been an interested listener, said: "Papa, what did Mr. Brown mean by college bred?" "Oh, that," said papa, who had been looking over his son's bills, "is a four years' loan."

Dogs Get 'Em Next Time

An American tourist had been battling again in the village inn. "Talking of scarecrows," he said, "why, my father once put one up, and it frightened the crows so much that not one entered the field again for over a year." He looked triumphantly around his audience. Surely that had settled the matter. But he was to meet his match. "That's nothing," retorted one farmer. "A neighbor of mine once put a scarecrow into his potato patch, and it terrified the birds so much that one rascal of a crow which had stolen some potatoes came next day and put them back."

Portia's Costume Correct

Wearing the wig and gown of a barrister of the Inner Temple, Lady Eliza Rose completely upset the equanimity of Mr. Justice Neville in the London law courts the other day, when she appeared before him and attempted to plead in a case in which she was interested. English law will admit no Portias, and Justice Neville politely but firmly told her as much. "Are you a barrister?" was all the astonished judge could say as his eye fell on her. "I am a barrister in my own cause," said Lady Eliza. Justice Neville replied: "The garb that you are wearing is reserved for members of the bar, and I cannot have you masquerading in that costume here."—New York Sun.

Collier Had the Remedy

William Collier, W. L. Abington and an English actor were discussing the war problem in the grillroom of the Lamb's club. "I think it is your duty to go home and fight," declared Abington. "It is not for you to say that," retorted the English actor. "You are a British subject yourself." "Yes, and I tried to enlist," declared Abington. "I was ruled out on my last day." "I tried to enlist in the army, too," said the English actor, "but was ruled out on account of my health. The surgeon discovered that I had a floating kidney." "You ought to have entered the navy," remarked Collier.

In Storage Two Years

The young lady from town was spending a week-end in the country, and she discoursed glowingly to the busy landlady of the rustic inn on the delight that real country butter and real new-laid eggs gave to a New Yorker. Her faith in country produce was destined, however, to be rudely shaken, for, on coming down to breakfast next morning, she was greatly shocked to overhear the good landlady say to her spouse: "The lady from New York's mighty keen on fresh eggs, John. Run and get half a dozen from the grocer's while I go in the yard and cackle."

The Auto Horn

The auto horn gives out a whoop. And seems a living thing. It sounds as if some demon troop had got him on the wing. There is astonishment we vow. Excuse is hard to find. For raising such a fearful row With nothing on his mind.

He sounds like some gigantic ghost Expressing dark despair. Or like a tyrant's reckless boast That bids us all beware. And still we feel surprise profound That he should be designed To utter such a mighty sound With nothing on his mind.

He gets attention near and far. And fills us with alarm. Sometimes his exclamations are A help in dogging harm. In nature as in human art. What wondrous works we find. Each built to play a holier part With nothing on his mind! —Washington Star.

FOREST SERVICE

Manufacture of Needle Oil in the United States

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Shoe-black- ing owes its peculiar aromatic odor, faintly suggestive of the deep woods and spruce or hemlock needles, and the ground, to an oil which is manufactured from these same kinds of needles. Smaller oils are obtained from the foliage and small twigs of various cone-bearing trees, and are used for a number of purposes. In Europe, the needles of these trees are used extensively as perfume in soap. They are common components of liniments and other medicinal preparations. Cedar oil is chiefly used in the preparation of insecticides, and, to some extent, in making liniment.

Preservations of the yield and the value of the oil obtainable from some of our southern and western trees have been made by the forest service, partly with a view to the possible utilization of waste material left after the use of the needles in the production of insecticides, and partly to the value of the oil obtainable from some of our southern and western trees have been made by the forest Fast Mail Train Wrecked by Tornado Near Saunemin, Ill.—18 Injured—One May Die

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., June 2.—A tornado blew the Chicago-St. Louis fast mail train No. 17, on the Wabash railroad, from the tracks near Saunemin, Ill., early today injuring 18 persons, one probably fatally. The accident occurred in a deep cut, which kept the cars from overturning and probably prevented heavy loss of life.

The combination baggage and smoking car and four coaches were blown from the track. A Pullman sleeper crashed through the smoking car, tearing it to pieces. It was in the smoking car that most of the casualties occurred.

26 WERE INJURED

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., June 2.—Twenty-six persons were injured when the Wabash night mail train No. 27 bound from Chicago to St. Louis was blown from the tracks by a tornado early today near Saunemin, Ill.

The train was traveling forty miles an hour when it was wrecked. None of the injured was in a serious condition.

Reply to Carranza Delayed—The Troops to Stay—No Cabinet Meeting Today

WASHINGTON, June 2.—A week or more will be taken by administration officials to frame a reply to Gen. Carranza's last note, threatening war if American troops are retained in Mexico, it was said today. President Wilson was out of the city and no active preparations were being made to draw up an answer. The usual cabinet meeting was cancelled, since the president was not to return until late today from Annapolis, where he went to attend the commencement exercises at the Naval academy.

Army officers today looked for a report from Gen. Pershing on his conference yesterday at Colonia Dublan with Gen. Gaviara, Carranza's military commander in northern Chihuahua. The meeting was brief and it is assumed only questions of co-operation in troop movements were discussed. Gen. Pershing described the conference as "very satisfactory," according to unofficial reports.

The war department's plans for maintaining Pershing's column in Mexico were unchanged.

FRENCH ADVANCE IN COURSE OF HEAVY FIGHTING ON VERDUN FRONT

PARIS, June 2, 12:10 p. m.—In the course of heavy fighting on the Verdun front, which continued through the night, the French progressed slightly south of Caurettes wood, the war office statement of today announces. The struggle between Thiaumont farm and Vaux, a prominent feature, was described as extremely violent. The artillery action on both sides was extremely heavy throughout yesterday and last night.

Aside from the Verdun fighting, the night passed quietly along the front. The text of the statement follows:

"In the Argonne there has been fighting with hand grenades in the Vauquois sector, at Courtes Chaussees and Fille Morte. We caused the explosion of several small mines, which inflicted damage upon the subterranean works of the enemy."

"On the left bank of the river Meuse a counter attack delivered by our troops made it possible for us to progress for one hundred yards into the communicating trenches of the enemy south of the wood of Caurettes. Between this wood and the village of Cumieres an attack on the part of the enemy was checked by our curtain of fire and the Germans could not move out."

"On the right bank of the river the battle continued yesterday and last night with extreme violence along the entire front between the Thiaumont farm and Vaux. It even spread to the east of the Vaux fort as far as Damouloup. In the region of Thiaumont and Douaumont the assaults of the enemy were repulsed by our fire and our counter attacks."

"South of the Douaumont fort the Germans were successful in penetrating the southern portion of the Caillotte wood as well as the southern shores of the Vaux pond. On our right all the attacks directed upon the sector between Vaux and Damouloup were broken by the counter resistance of our troops who inflicted very heavy losses upon the enemy."

"In the course of this fighting the artillery fire reached an exceptional degree of violence and continued all along the front attacked."

"The night passed relatively quiet on the remainder of the front."

"Yesterday French air squadrons engaged in combat the group of aviators who came to bombard Bar le Duc and compelled a second group of enemy machines to disperse. A German machine was brought to the ground near Etain, and in the course of this pursuit a 'Joker' machine, attacked by the French machines came down near Bouconville."

NEW YORK, June 2.—New high records were registered by three widely divergent issues in today's early market. Norfolk and Western rose 1-1/4 to 130-1/4, Chandler Motors one point and Gulf States Steel 1-1/2 to 55-1/2. The movement otherwise was in keeping with these gains. Mercantile Marins being the most active issues. The preferred opened with a block of 1600 shares at 95-5/8 to 96, an over-night gain of 1-1/4, soon advancing to 97 on very large transactions, with an advance of a point for the common. Best sugar, Allis-Chalmers preferred, and rubbers comprised the other strong stocks. Later rails as a whole improved materially.

Additional records were made during the busy forenoon, Willy-Overland rising 18 to 293 and Beet Sugar 1-5/8 to 73. Meanwhile, Norfolk & Western eclipsed its previous maximum, touching 123, with gains of 1 to 2 points for New York Central, Canadian Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Chesapeake & Ohio, Southern Railway preferred and some of the minor rails. "Big Four" controlled by New York Central rose 7-1/2 points to 59 on rumors of an early resumption of dividends. Reading and Lehigh Valley were under pressure and United States Steel was singularly inactive, with further gains in Gulf States Steel. Bonds were firm.

Another record was made in the afternoon, Marine preferred rising to 98-1/4. This was of some consequence, given the heaviness in copper and profit-taking elsewhere and a marked cessation of activity.

Stocks broke violently in the last hour, wiping out virtually all gains and substituting numerous net losses. The closing was heavy.

BOSTON MARKET

BOSTON, June 2.—The elements that made last week's copper market dull and weak and others that aim to create an advance were both present in the early trading today. A result was that irregularity marked the price fluctuations. Zincs were generally lower.

NAVAL BATTLE

The Losses on Both Sides Were Extremely Heavy

BERLIN, June 2.—Germany's high sea fleet met the main part of the British fleet in battle in the northern section of the North sea on May 31. In the heavy engagement which followed the German fleet, according to a report issued by the German admiralty, sank the British battleship Warspite, the British battle cruisers Queen Mary and Indefatigable, two armored cruisers believed to be of the Achilles type and a large number of warships of smaller tonnage. Several other British battleships are reported to have been damaged, including the battleship Marlborough, which was struck by a torpedo.

The German losses are announced as the battleship Pommern, sunk by a torpedo; the cruiser Wiesbaden, sent to the bottom by gun fire; the protected cruiser Frankeburg reported missing and several torpedo boats which did not return to port.

BERLIN REPORTS THE CAPTURE OF CAILLETE WOOD

BERLIN, June 2, via London, 5:30.—The capture of Caillette wood, south of Fort Douaumont on the Verdun front, and of adjoining trenches, was announced today by the war office.

A counter attack by the French southwest of Vaux wood was a failure, although made in strong force, the statement adds. The capture of seventy-six officers, 2000 men, three guns and more than a score of machine guns is reported.

The statement follows:

"Western front: After an increase of artillery fire and preliminary mine explosions, strong British forces attacked last night west and southwest of Givochy. Such as had not been forced to withdraw with heavy losses by our curtain of fire were driven back after hand to hand fighting."

"On the west bank of the Meuse the French repeatedly attacked without success."

"On the east bank of the Meuse we stormed Caillette wood and trenches adjoining. An enemy counter-attack this morning with strong forces west of Vaux wood failed. Up to the present 76 officers, 2000 men, three cannon and at least 23 machine guns have been captured."

"Southwest of Caillette a British aeroplane with its occupants fell into our hands undamaged. A French single-seat battle machine was brought down in an aerial engagement over Marre ridge. Furthermore, one biplane was brought down within our reach over Vaux and another west of Meerchingen."

"British biplane reported upon yesterday is the fourth enemy machine to be put out of action by Lieut. Muzel."

"Eastern front: A successful German reconnoitering advance on the front south of Smorgon resulted in the capture of a few dozen prisoners. Southeast of Lake Privilaya a Russian aeroplane was destroyed by our

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Three great features stand out on the bill at the B. F. Keith theatre for the last three days of this week. The first is the romantic "Brown Eyes and Bullets," in which Bessie Barriscale appears, the second, the comedy of thrills, "The Submarine Pirate," with Syd Chaplin in the principal part, and the third is the New York Preparedness parade shown in the Realistic Vitaphone pictures. This is a combination very hard to beat, for each one of these three stands practically alone in its own class.

Yesterday many saw the opening of the three days' program. "Brown Eyes and Bullets" is a Triangle Kaye picture, in which the beautiful Bessie Barriscale is shown at war. Underlying all, however, is one of the prettiest of love affairs, which, in the end, turns out to be a comedy. Miss Barriscale plays the role of "Princess Olga," and William Desmond, a starring actor, has the part of "Prince Karl." The picture is a real gem of the Vitaphone, and the Realistic Vitaphone pictures are shown in the Realistic Vitaphone pictures. This is a combination very hard to beat, for each one of these three stands practically alone in its own class.

"A Submarine Pirate" is a revelation in motion picture photography. It is a story of a submarine which, when at work under water, and, aside from the comedy features brought forward, the picture stands out as a masterpiece. The story is a real gem of the Vitaphone, and the Realistic Vitaphone pictures are shown in the Realistic Vitaphone pictures. This is a combination very hard to beat, for each one of these three stands practically alone in its own class.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

While clothes usually attract the attention of every woman, yet when a woman is wearing beautiful clothes the men will, as a rule, be more than casually attentive to what is going around about them. This is the principle of the five-act success, "The Maternal Right," at the Merrimack Square theatre today and tomorrow. The picture is a real gem of the Vitaphone, and the Realistic Vitaphone pictures are shown in the Realistic Vitaphone pictures. This is a combination very hard to beat, for each one of these three stands practically alone in its own class.

OWL THEATRE

ROYAL THEATRE

Another fine week-end performance has been arranged for this Friday and Saturday at the Royal theatre, with "The Mystery of the Nile" and "The Mystery of the Nile" as the main attractions. The picture is a real gem of the Vitaphone, and the Realistic Vitaphone pictures are shown in the Realistic Vitaphone pictures. This is a combination very hard to beat, for each one of these three stands practically alone in its own class.

GREAT FIGHTERS

But Yaquis Indians Have Fondness and Talent for Music

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 2.—No Indians in the southwest have earned a greater respect for their fighting ability than the Yaquis, who were reported recently as threatening the line of communications of one of the American forces operating along the Mexican border in pursuit of bandits. Concerning this warlike tribe the National Geographic society has issued the following bulletin from its headquarters in Washington:

"A distinguished ethnologist has said of the Yaquis that they are the only Indians on the continent who, surrounded by whites, from the beginning of their history have never been subdued. In spite of the numerous defeats which they have sustained at the hands of Spaniards and Mexicans, dating back to the first half of the 16th century, they are today a brave, stalwart, athletic race, admired by the industry as well as for their courage. Most of the Yaquis are to be found in the southern part of Sonora, one of Mexico's border states, to the south of Arizona. Here they raise corn, cotton and the mesquite-producing maguey. The women are expert weavers, while the men are always in demand as miners, sailors, farm laborers, and as expert pearl divers. Most of their trading is done at the port of Guaymas, on the Gulf of California, where one of their chief articles of barter is the salt gathered on the adjoining coast.

"The Yaquis are not a numerous tribe, the highest estimate of their number being 50,000 in 1909. It is probable that at the present time there are not more than 20,000, about 20 per cent of whom were transported by the Mexican government to Yucatan and Tehuantepec a few years ago as the surest means of quelling the uprising which continued to occur periodically. As far back as 1609 the Yaquis were a dreaded foe, Captain Muraldo in that year sustaining three successive defeats at their hands, meeting with his most serious reverse when he commanded 50 Spanish cavaliers and 4000 Indian allies.

"One of the most sanguinary revolts of the Yaquis was that which occurred in 1855 when they were led by the remarkable chief known as Banderas, because of his banner which was said to be a relic of the Montezuma empire. Banderas was a resourceful organizer as well as a capable fighter. He manufactured his own gunpowder and made treaties with neighboring tribes. He also recognized the advantage of 'preparedness' and engaged several white soldiers to drill his tribesmen in the science of war. At the end of three years he had been so successful that he was able to effect an advantageous peace with the Mexican government.

"The Price" is a wonderful five-act picture of the famous stage success of the same name. It will be the attraction at the Owl theatre today and tomorrow. The picture is a real gem of the Vitaphone, and the Realistic Vitaphone pictures are shown in the Realistic Vitaphone pictures. Almost every one of the reports of the fighting on the Austro-Italian front in which Emperor Francis Joseph's soldiers, led by his heir, Archduke Charles Francis, have pushed back their enemies, speaks of the heights on which the combats are taking place. This theatre of war is in fact the highest in Europe, and battles have been joined at 6000 and 6000 feet and even higher. In the picture may be seen an Austrian outpost on a height watching the enemy's movements.

one of the conditions being that he be made a general of the regular army. A few years later Banderas led a second revolt, but this time he suffered a disastrous defeat, was captured and shot in the presence of his soldiers.

"The Yaquis take their name from the Rio Yaqui (Chief river), which flows for 500 miles through the mountain gorges of Sonora and finally emptying into the Gulf of California. Along this river the Indians make their homes of reed and adobe, with roofs of grass and mud. The warriors are a well-proportioned race, but they are prone to over-indulgence in the native drink, mescal. Family ties are more or less negative among the men, the custom of exchanging wives being a popular practice of a not distant past. They are closely related to the Mayas, who from time to time have been forced into an unwilling alliance with their more hellish kinsmen.

"A noteworthy characteristic of the Yaquis is their fondness and talent for music. They have retained many of their primitive dances, but the custom of tattooing the chin and arms is no longer practiced to any general extent. Some of the conferees believe that they will not finish their work for two or three weeks.
